A Long Jump.
Four Days More.
Starting a Revolution.
Education by Pictures.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

YESTERDAY A man jumped from the one hundred and third floor of New York's Empire State Building.

Why does that interest every one? Only the last few floors count. They are "the hardest." Why would the average man find it more difficult to leap from the hundred and third floor than from some floor lower down?

ONLY FOUR more days after this day, then election. It has not been a pleasant or inspiring campaign. Mr. Rogers says in Mr. Hearst's Seattle Post-Intelligencer:

"The President's term should be for six years, no re-election, and retired for life on half salary."

The cowboy-philosopher for once is mistaken. Two terms are necessary. The President, whoever he may be, must have something more to expect from the people.

EVERYBODY KNOWS what influences occasionally name and elect a President. That kind of influence would own him if it were not for that second term, which causes him from the fourth of March, when he enters the White House, to think continually about getting elected AGAIN. Even as it is, results are not too good.

STARTING A revolution in England is not easy. The people are really in control of their government, and can change it if they choose. They put the Labor party in power, with MacDonald, formerly a coal miner, as prime minister, writing speeches for the King to read to the Lords and Commons. Imagine that sort of government in this "democracy."

Revolutions make little headway against firmness, combined with common sense. The English possess common sense and firmness and display both in time of need.

A "hunger army" that marched on London, endeavoring to take possession, threatening Buckingham Palace and demanding the right to enter the House of Commons, is said to be breaking up, scattering.

SUCCESSFUL revolution means weakness in government.

The flabby, feeble Czar made revolution easy for Lenin and Stalin.

Napoleon, who rose to power on the ruins of the French Revolution, knew that a few cannon, properly located, plus courage, would have prevented that revolution.

It is fortunate for the human race that the "few cannon and courage" happened to be lacking. The French revolution was a necessary revolution, as was our own in 1776, which set the good example before the French.

NEW YORK'S Board of Education has adopted an excellent idea, long ago suggested in this and other newspapers. Talking films will teach foreign languages to students, at the same time teaching about foreign countries, manners and methods of life.

Talking and silent pictures, in years to come, will constitute seventy-five per cent of all teaching. Language, history, geography, geology, natural history and many other branches will be taught by pictures, and the student will learn more history in half an hour through pictures than he can learn now in half a month through words.

JAPAN IN Manchuria has, literally, shocked some of China's so-called "rebels."

The Japanese prepared defenses with innocent-looking wires around them not the barbed wire entanglements so hard to cross, but simple arrangements of wire. The Chinese charged these wires and sixty of them dropped dead, coming in contact with a heavy electric current

War is changing and two-legged, marching warriors will be not important, against scientific contraptions, including the airplane.

YESTERDAY THE learned Professor Einstein was to submit to other scientists "unification of his relativity theory, and his new field theory, constituting a complete cosmogony."

Nothing could be more welcome than a really complete "cosmogony" which would mean an explanation of the cosmos, or universe, telling how it started, how it runs.

PROFESSOR EINSTEIN has contributed much to science, but his "complete cosmogony" would probably amuse the high intelligence that really runs and understands the cosmos.

But let us not underestimate values.

It is remarkable that a human microbe, living on this grain of dust traveling around one of billions of stars, should be able even to THINK about the cosmos, much less explain it.

HERRIOT, PRIME Minister of France, honors Zamora, President of the new Spanish republic, conferring upon him the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor, and receiving from Zamora the "Band of the Republic of Spain."

The French attitude, considering Spanish confiscation of Catholic church property and expulsion of Catholic priests will not be pleasing to the Vatican France, once known as the most faithful daughter of the church, has changed.

GREEKS JAIL INSULL AS FUGITIVE

Plea of Illness Fails Utility 'King,' Held On U. S. Warrant

By WILLIAM PARKER
International News Service.

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 4.—Losing his battle to escape detention in a prison cell, Samuel Insull, indicted former Chicago utilities magnate, was arrested at the request of United States authorities today and ordered held overnight in the Athens jail.

Insull had pleaded for permission to remain at his hotel during the period of detention, declaring his health would be endangered by another prison sojourn. The prosecutor, however, ordered his detention after examining a medical certificate from Insull's physician.

BEGS FOR FREEDOM

The two hours following Insull's arrest provided a dramatic sequence of events during which the former Chicago magnate transformer magnate, now charged with embezzlement, transformed himself from an invalid into a fugitive sufficiently spry to take himself to the prosecutor's office and request in person that he be spared the ignomony of another sojourn in jail.

Acting under the Greco-American extradition treaty, which came into effect on November 1 after months of delay, Director of Police Coutsoumaris formally placed Insull under arrest at 12.01 p. m. as he lay in bed in his suite at the Hotel Petit Palais.

Insull had taken to his bed, complaining of a chill and recurrence of an old diabetic ailment.

The police official asked Insull to accompany him to the office of the prosecutor at once.

DELAY GRANTED

BABY DESERTER SOBS STORY

A 19-year-old girl buried her face in her hands in Morals Court today and between sobs tried to explain why she had abandoned her six-weeks'-old baby in Rosella Maternity Hospital.

The sisters at the hospital hadn't refused to accept her baby, she said, but had referred her to a charity organization. So she wrapped Gloria Marie in a blanket, placed her on a bench in the vestibule and hurried away.

Police located her with Schenley avenue friends with whom she has been living. And she was arrested. Today she was held for further investigation. She said:

"I didn't know what to do. I don't have any money or a job. My parents live out of town, and they're poor. They don't know about this."

Roosevelt Riddles G.O.P. 'Fear' Myths

Grundy Ends Silence To Speak for Tariff

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Breaking a silence he has maintained throughout the campaign, former United States Senator Joseph R. Grundy today urged re-election of congressmen who will uphold present tariff levels.

Attacks Republican Administration's Rule by 'Guess.'

By RAYMOND I. BORST
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt was swinging down the homestretch of the campaign today with the unqualified indorsement of Owen D. Young, noted industrialist, and confident he has copletely riddled President Hoover's repeated warning that Democratic victory next Tuesday would retard business recovery and might plunge the nation further into the depths of depression.

Young, speaking from the same platform as Roosevelt, declared a Democratic victory would speed prosperity and assailed the Republican campaign of "fear."

Invading Brooklyn tonight the Governor will continue his slashing attack on the President for attempting to "arrogate to himself and his handful of associates in Washington the right to claim an exclusive interpretation of an ownership in the American system of government."

He will speak from the same platform with former Gov. Al Smith.

HUGE RALLY

The campaign will be brought to a close tomorrow night with a huge Democratic rally in Madison Square Garden and again Roosevelt and Smith will be on the firing line together. With Tammany 100 per cent for Roosevelt, Democratic leaders insist the national ticket will sweep New York state

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The last glimmering hope of the Republicans to break into the Democratic solid South this year by taking one of the normally debatable border states has been blasted.

West Virginia, the one Republican hope, next Tuesday will be found safely in the Democratic column.

This was made certain today with the tabulation of the final week's returns from this southern mountain state in the nation-wide postcard presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, in cooperation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday newspapers in the United States.

With 2,219 ballots in this week's consignment, Gov. Roosevelt received 1,221 to 956 for President Hoover, a Roosevelt majority of 223. The Democratic candidate had 55 per cent of this final batch of returns. That is a proportion sufficient to show the state safely Democratic even in the face of any late Republican gains.

For the whole poll period West Virginia has returned 16,900 ballots, of which Roosevelt has received 9,652 and Hoover 7,248, a Roosevelt majority of 2,404. His percentage registers 57 to 43 for Hoover.

PRESIDENT STUMPS WEST

Sees Present Issues As Similar to Ones Lincoln Faced

ABOARD PRESIDENTIAL SPECIAL, EN ROUTE WEST, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Making a dramatic appeal for the support of the American people, President Hoover today in a speech prepared for delivery this afternoon at Springfield, Ill., where Abraham Lincoln is buried, drew what he called an "analogy" between the issues in this campaign and those when the Civil War President was re-elected.

The President said that in 1864, with the country in deep gloom and the Democrats demanding a change of leadership at Washington, the nation declined emphatically to turn aside to untried policies and experimental leaders and re-elected Lincoln.

SAME ALTERNATIVES

He said:

"The same alternatives are before the country today that lay before it in that momentous campaign of nearly three-quarters of a century ago. The choice that the American people made in 1864 was made on November 8, the choice they are called to make in 1932 will be made on November 8. My fellow citizens, can we doubt what the choice will be?

"The turn in the tide of the Civil War was made at Gettysburg. The turn in the tide in this crisis was made in the last winter and just as after Gettysburg long months of continual battle were required to bring about the saving of the Union, in the same manner we must continue the fight today to recover our prosperity and to preserve the social and political principals for which Abraham Lincoln stood."

In his speech prepared for delivery in the heart of the Illinois

SAYS RAILWAYS OUSTED CARDS

The Pittsburgh Railways Company and other street car companies ordered the Democratic advertisements off the street cars, and not the offices of Barron G. Collier, advertising agents, it was announced today by David L. Lawrence, county chairman of the Democratic party.

The car cards, Frank R. Phillips, president of the Philadelphia Company and its subsidiary, the railways, said yesterday, were ordered out by Collier, after complaints against them had been sent on to the advertising agents.

Lawrence made public a telegram received today from Charles Michaelson, director of press relations of the Democratic National Committee, which follows:

"Barron Collier, head of the advertising company in charge of street car advertising in Pittsburgh, advises me the political ads taken out of the street cars in the various cities were not ordered removed by his New York office or by local office, but were taken out on order of the railways company."

Of the three cards ordered out, one said:

Kreuger Director Sentenced One Year

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Sven Huldt, director of one of the Kreuger & Toll puppet companies, was sentenced to 12 months at hard labor today for his part in the Kreuger debacle and ordered to pay 337,000,000 francs, equivalent to $13,480,0000, to the Continental Investment Company.

He was said to have confessed that he issued false certificates of deposit stating that French government bonds worth 400,000,000 francs were on deposit with the Nederlansche Bank.

Hoover's Alibi on Public Works Refuted by Study By Investment Bankers

IN SETTING his face against a large and thoroughly adequate program of federal public works of sufficient magnitude to materially increase employment, increase purchasing power, and so affect the whole economic situation, President Hoover repeatedly argued that he did not want the government to suck capital funds from private industry.

The presidential policy was avowedly based on a desire to keep the pool of capital open for the needs of private industry.

On the other hand, proponents of a vast prosperity loan argued that it was necessary for the government, whose credit alone was unquestioned, to step into the breach, because the flow of capital from investors into private industry had been stopped because the buying power of the public had been stopped and there would be no opportunity for profitable employment of additional funds until the buying power of the public had been restored.

The paucity of new capital issues thus far in 1932 supports the position of the advocates of a larger public works program, to increase employment and stimulate the purchasing power of the community.

The non-political Investment Bankers' Association of America, whose members are experts in this field, just approved a report of its "trends of business sub-committee," which said:

"To state that the demand for new corporation capital almost entirely disappeared during the first six months of 1932 is to recite a fact familiar to every informed person. Whatever may be the complex causes which nourished the spread of economic paralysis in general, the absence of demand for new corporation capital is directly a result of the fact that IT WAS IMPOSSIBLE TO EMPLOY EXISTING CAPITAL AT A REASONABLE PROFIT."

THERE CAN BE no profits where there are no purchasers.

Yet, ignoring these important facts, President Hoover continues in his mistaken views.

For example, in his Detroit address, in seeking to knock down a straw man, who was represented as standing for an excessive amount of public works, the President indicated that such a program of borrowing "would suck the resources from industry and commerce and cause unemployment to other millions."

It becomes evident, therefore, that the President not only knows nothing of existing conditions, but learns nothing from facts and experience.

To put such an obstinate incompetent in charge of the nation's destinies for another four years would show our people to be as uninformed and as unwilling to learn as the President and would simply be to deserve the additional disasters we would undoubtedly incur.

PENALTY CUT TO $5,000 BY JUDGE

Holds Carnegie Banker Dragged From High Esteem by Case

The $19,000 fine imposed upon John A. Bell, Carnegie banker and coal operator, when he was sentenced to six and a half years in jail for embezzlement five years ago, today was cut to $5,000 by Judge Frank P. Patterson.

In cutting the fine, remission of which had been sought by Bell, the Judge said:

"The defendant by his conviction and imprisonment has been dragged down from his high estate and place of esteem, his health has been broken and he has been impoverished to the point of being adjudged a bankrupt."

After citing his physical condition now, the Judge concluded:

"All this disaster comes upon him in his old age as a direct visitation because of his wrongdoings and he has the conscious knowledge of having dragged trusting friends into the mire of poverty with him."

In September Judge Elder W. Marshall refused to annul the $30,000 bond put up when Bell took an appeal to the Superior Court following his conviction in connection with the wrecking of the Carnegie Trust Company. When Bell lost the appeal the bond was held effective to guarantee the payment of the fine. Bell served one day in jail and then was taken to Allegheny General Hospital and was paroled about a year later.

R.F.C. Relief Loan May Be Last

Relief for Allegheny County and other sections of Pennsylvania was assured for November today by a Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan of $5,462,265 to the state.

In making the loan, however, the Corporation said it would hesitate to advance further money to Pennsylvania unless state, county and municipal divisions took additional action to meet the emergency themselves.

The Corporation directed Atlee Pomerene, its chairman, to tell Gov. Pinchot that his application for funds, showing that one-sixth of the population of the state is dependent upon relief, showed the need for further action within the state.

The Allegheny County Poor Directors are among the group that has failed to raise any money to aid the distressed, although efforts have been made to persuade them to float a relief loan.

CONVICTS RISE, FIRE PRISON

ST. VINCENT DE PAUL, Quebec, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Prisoners in the penitentiary on the Island of Jesus rose in mutiny today and set fire to the tailor shop.

A detchment of Royal Mounted Police galloped out from Montreal, nine miles away, and the Montreal fire department hurried to the assistance of the penitentiary force.

While one group of convicts set the tailor shop afire another group set up a disturbance in another part of the building to draw the guards away from the flames. A third group cut around outside the tailor shop to slash the fire hose, but prison guards beat them off.

With the arrival of the Montreal firemen the flames were extinguished. The mounted police, with drawn guns, assisted the prison guards in herding the men back to their cells.

Britain to Make Debt Plea After Election

Universal Service.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Great Britain will take the initiative for European debtors of the United States in asking the Republican administration in Washington to reopen the entire war debt question after the presidential election next Tuesday, it became apparent today.

The London News-Chronicle, Liberal party newspaper, in a front-page editorial declares that Great Britain and Europe, under agreements reached in the past few months, will ask for drastic reduction of Europe's $11,000,000,000 war debt to the United States shortly after the presidential election.

The editorial, counted as confirmation of Universal Service dispatches to this effect, declares:

"In a few days, America will be freed of the distractions of her presidential elections, and the moment will have arrived when her European debtors must ask drastic revision of the war debt settlements, which the Lausanne agreement on reparations rendered necessary.

"Not much time will be available before December 15, when Britain is due to pay over £30,000,000 (not provided for in the budget) to the United States, and other European countries have to make payments on the same date.

"Unless defaults occur, it seems essential to arrange for a temporary postponement of these payments while the negotiations over the whole of the debt question are proceeding."

It has been pointed out in Universal service dispatches that Britain is prepared to open the war debt question with a request to a renewal of the Hoover moratorium after the election, while in France it is generally considered that the Hoover moratorium ended all war debt payments.

M'NIDER, BECK DODGE BONUS, BEER AT G. O. P. COUNTY RALLY

SENATOR REED SOUNDS NOTE OF FEAR

McGovern for Hoover But Pledges No 'Coercion'

By MARK SHIELDS

Hanford MacNider, former head of the American Legion and former Assistant Secretary of War, ignored the issue of the immediate payment of the soldier bonus in a Republican rally last night at Syria Mosque.

This, and the failure of Congressman James M. Beck, of Philadelphia, leader of the wet Republican bloc in the lower House of Congress, to go deeply into the attitudes of Gov. Roosevelt and President Hoover on the Eighteenth Amendment and modification of the Volstead act, were being remarked today in discussion of the last big Republican the campaign.

COERCION

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, evidently taking cognizance that efforts were being made to coerce voters to be for Hoover, emphatically told the audience that he was for Hoover, but had asked no man in the county government how he was going to vote, and warned any one else against doing so.

McGovern devoted most of his address to an attack on the regular Republican control of the old county government, and was somewhat apologetic for speaking at a regular meeting.

Senator David A. Reed took a leaf from the Republican campaign of fear with the prediction that no man in Western Pennsylvania would build a mill or start a plant or venture anything for the future for many months, should Roosevelt be elected. Reed, as well as Beck, excoriated William Randolph Hearst and Senators Norris, Brookhart and Johnson, Progressive Republicans, as menaces to the country.

About 3,000 were in the audience, the lower floor and the first balcony being filled, with 200 invited guests on the stage. Prominent there were Mayor Charles H. Kline, at whose instruction city employes were present; Senator James J. Coyne, former Govs. John S. Fisher and John K. Tener, Frank R. Phillips, president of the Philadelphia Company, parent of Pittsburgh utility companies; President of Council John S. Herron and Charles J. Graham.

KLINE CALLED BACK

County Chairman William H. Coleman, who presided, acted as master of ceremonies in introducing some of them at the conclusion of the meeting. The Mayor, who fidgeted noticeably while McGovern was lighting into the old regular organization, had started to leave the stage as Beck finished his speech.

Coleman stopped him with a shout, and in the confusion introduced him, at the same time calling upon Coyne to rise. The two city leaders, between whom a coolness is reported to have sprung up, smilingly took curtain bows from opposite wings of the stage. Incidentally, the Mayor received more applause than any of the speakers.

The audience, which had been warmed up prior to the meeting by the rousing music of the Tarentum Fife and Drum Corps, applauded the speakers at times, but there was little enthusiasm. One of the attaches of the campaign committee described the crowd as "icebergs," with the further plaint that:

"They ain't with us."

BECK SCORES "RADICALS"

Beck said both parties were for a return to the states of liquor control, but warned the battle for repeal was not won, contending southern representation in Congress might block a resubmission resolution. The Congressman devoted much time to the tariff, explaining that Gov. Roosevelt through the tariff commission could substantially reduce rates without waiting for congressional action.

Striking at what he called radicalism, he said:

"Overshadowing every issue of the campaign is that of whether the country shall be radical or conservative. The South and West are not interested in this country. Roosevelt sought nomination at the hands of the worst radicals in the Democratic party.

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, a Republican only on election day, now supporting Roosevelt, is a dangerous and malignant agitator, and Norris, Brookhart and Hiram Johnson should be thrown out of the Republican party. Hoover saved the country in an economic crisis as Lincoln did in 1864."

McGOVERN FOR HOOVER

McGovern's speech was the real high light of the evening. The Independent leader declared himself flatly for Hoover, and said he supported many choices, but the main portion of his remarks aimed at the organization. He said failure of Democrats to be effective in local affairs contributed to the waste by Republican county administrations. He said:

"There were 5,000 on the county payroll last September. There are 1,700 now, and by December 1 there will be $150,000 less to spend for payroll purposes than now. Your county finances were wrecked, and this could have been avoided by a strong Democratic party in Allegheny County. The old regime in the county wasted your money.

"This is the second time I have ever appeared at a regular meeting. I have my fights inside the party, and I'm not through yet. But I'm not going to make any more excuses for being here, I'm not going to apologize any more. I'm for Hoover because I believe he is the best man."

REED APPREHENSIVE

Reed said he thought the Democrats have as much patriotism as Republicans, but he feared the results to industry of Western Pennsylvania should Roosevelt be elected. He contended they were not competent to handle the economic affairs during the present crisis, charging that Roosevelt would be surrounded by radical advisers.

MacNider, introduced by Charles W. McGinnis, said the Republican party always had been the friend of the soldier and always would. Every piece of beneficial veteran legislation from the time of the Civil War had been passed by Republican administrations, and he asked veterans present to vote the ticket. He did not mention either Republican or Democratic attitudes on immediate bonus payment.

City Chairman William J. Soost opened the meeting, turning the introduction of speakers over to Coleman. The latter predicted a 60,000 Hoover majority in Allegheny County, and at the conclusion of the rally asked those present to help him make that prediction come true.

KEEP UP HUNT FOR BANDITS

MARIENVILLE, Pa., Nov. 4.—Search for two bold, methodical bandits who held four persons prisoners Wednesday night and robbed the Gold Standard National Bank here yesterday, continued today with descriptions of the pair and of an automobile as the principal clues to their identities.

Business continued as usual in the small but modern banking room where the bandits obtained $7,500 in their daring holdup.

The wrists of Fred R. Johnston, his wife, their daughter, Elinor, 18, and Fred Pickens, 18, high school boy, still bore the marks of copper wire that bound them while robbers held them prisoners in the Johnston apartment above the banking room all Wednesday night until the time lock on the bank vault was released shortly before 8 a. m. yesterday morning.

Johnson Predicts Roosevelt Sweep

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, predicted today Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt would carry California "and all the other Pacific Coast states."

The insurgent Republican Senator, who is supporting Roosevelt, said he was not a prognosticator and could not forecast the result of the presidential election over the nation, but that he believed "the general outlook is favorable."

and Coutsoumaris consented to wait until the lawyer arrived and until the prosecutor ruled on his plea to avoid jail.

Insull spent the afternoon in the lobby of the hotel, with two police guards in plain clothes keeping a watchful eye on him. They were under instructions not to let him leave the hotel except to visit his doctor.

Under the terms of the extradition treaty, Insull will remain in provisional custody of the Greek government until Chicago state's attorneys arrive here to present evidence concerning the indictments returned against him.

President's Train Here for 2 Minutes

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad special train bearing President Hoover and his party on its westward journey paused in Pittsburgh for two minutes last night at 11:40 p. m. The stop was made at Marion Junction, at the foot of Greenfield avenue, where train crews were changed. The President and his party had retired.

agricultural area, the Chief Executive reiterated the 12 policies he enunciated in his Des Moines speech a month ago today, for the relief of agriculture, and commented on Franklin D. Roosevelt's "apparent reactions" to them.

'GREAT MYSTERY'

Mr. Hoover said:

"The Democratic candidate has developed one of the greatest mysteries of this whole campaign in his proposal for relief to agriculture. He has not been willing to state the method by which he proposes to secure the advance of agricultural prices. He has stated with great care six methods by which he can escape from any demand that he make good on his mysterious proposal.

"It seems to me cruel to hold out hope to a suffering people by vague plans the most specific parts of which are the ways of escape from putting it into action. The only thing we know of the plan is that he is unwilling during all these many weeks to submit it to debate."

JOSTLED BY CROWD

Mr. Hoover told them that 1,000,000 men had returned to work since Congress adjourned and added:

"If you want 1,000,000 more to find work, return the Republican administration."

Commenting on the size of the crowd, the President said it was an indication of how the state would vote November 8.

CONNELLSVILLE STOP

Mr. Hoover did not make speeches, except for a few remarks at Connellsville, but chatted informally with those who crowded around his rear platform at Martinsburg, W. Va., and Cumberland, Md.

His first stop, about dinner time, was at Martinsburg, already visited by him twice before during the past month. One of the group there apologized for not having a bigger crowd out to see the President.

To the group, almost invisible in the darkness, Mrs. Hoover called out:

"What are you all down so late for?"

One man replied:

"Because we are for Mr. Hoover."

Mrs. Hoover returned:

"I've been for him a long time."

The President had started to retire when the train arrived at Connellsville, Pa., late at night, but he made an appearance after he found a crowd waiting. He told the assembled group:

"It's nice of you to come down at this time of night. We are making headway. I am confident of carrying Connellsville and the state of Pennsylvania complete."

Somebody called out:

"Where's the missus?"

The President laughingly said:

"I'm afraid she's gone to bed."

GOV. ROOSEVELT RAPS HOOVER 'GUESS' RULE

by a plurality ranging from 500,000 to 750,000.

In one of the most vigorous speeches of his campaign, before 5,000 "Roosevelt Republicans" in the Metropolitan Opera House, the Democratic nominee last night charged that the present Republican administration at Washington had ruled the country "by guess and by gamble."

Gov. Roosevelt said:

"It is this kind of government by guess and by gamble that the people of this country have resolved to put out of power. I rejoice that Republicans everywhere have decided to lay aside party, to put their shoulders to the wheel to achieve recovery, not by magic or gambling, but by hard common sense and, above all, by serious and resolute action."

He said there were 10,000,000 reasons—10,000,000 unemployed—why the present Republican administration should be turned out of office.

REPLIES TO HOOVER

Replying to President Hoover's charge that the election of the Democratic national ticket will cause the grass to grow in the streets of a hundred cities, Gov. Roosevelt said:

"Well, the grass has little chance to grow in the streets of our cities now. It would be trampled into the ground by the men who wander these streets in search of employment."

Striking out straight from the shoulder, Gov. Roosevelt charged that the President doesn't know what the American system of government "really means." He characterized the efforts of the President to claim ownership of this system for the Republican party as "the most un-American episode of this entire campaign." Gov. Roosevelt said:

"The American system of government is a common heritage and a common possession of all Americans. Next Tuesday these Americans by an overwhelming vote intend to deny and reject the exclusive patent sought by the President and his friends."

Gov. Roosevelt said that his idea of the American system of government "certainly does not mean the combinatiton of foreign and domestic gambling that the present leadership of the Republican party has sponsored." He added:

"It does not mean inviting on one hand the trade of other countries and on the other hand declaring economic war against them. This is not the American system as I understand it. You do not spell out America by combining the economics of John Law and his Mississippi bubble with those of Mr. Grundy and his campaign contributors."

TWO ARGUMENTS

Asserting that President Hoover is basing his campaign for re-election on two arguments—first—that things might have been worse, and second—that the nation should wait and hope for some miracle to make things better, the Governor said:

"Faith and hope are splendid things, but the hunger and suffering of millions of unemployed men are too insistent to justify a governmental policy that pins its faith on such a mere remote possibility. The American government cannot be conducted on the speculation of some new invention which has not yet been made."

The Governor declared that his program, if elected, will be national in scope and will include all groups and all economic interests. He said:

"Such a program permits of no yielding to sectional or immediate selfish special interests such as those represented by the clients and backers of Mr. Grundy. It represents a recognition of the fact that a neglected group, a submerged group, be it agriculture, labor, finance or industry, will prevent the recovery of the entire nation."

Roosevelt said his plan for restoring prosperity includes a restoration of agriculture, rehabilitation of railroads, more drastic federal regulation of public utilities, a tariff policy "aimed to restore international trade and commerce with all nations," that the national government shall not permit any citizen to starve, more strict regulation of investments, and an "honest, national budget system."

PINCHOT'S AIDE SCORES HOOVER

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Pinchot forces in Montgomery County were looked upon today as in open revolt against the candidacy of President Hoover following the address here at an Independent Republican meeting of Richard J. Beamish, Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Although Beamish failed to mention the candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt, he demaned "a new deal and a square deal for the people of America."

Regular Republican leaders interpreted this declaration as advocating support of Roosevelt in preference to Hoover. Beamish urged:

"Go out next Tuesday and play politics, and play them up to the hilt."

Davis Will Address 3 Meetings Tonight

Senator James J. Davis, winding up his campaign of the state, will speak at three meetings tonight, in Clairton, Carnegie and in the Gladstone School, Fifteenth Ward. He will speak several times tomorrow.

A general sentiment for repeal and immediate modification of the Volstead act is evident throughout Pennsylvania, he said.

Gen. Butler to Talk In New Kensington

Gen. Smedley Butler will be the chief speaker at a Roosevelt rally tonight in the Ritz Theater, New Kensington.

Butler is to be met at East Liberty station at 6 o'clock, and an automobile caravan will escort him to New Kensington for a "depression dinner." After dinner there will be a parade through New Kensington street to the theater.

PINCHOT WARNS OF FRAUDS

HARRISBURG, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot broke his pre-election silence with a statement today, but his remarks extended neither to parties nor to individual candidates. His words were a warning against election frauds.

The Governor has returned to his home at Milford and intends to remain there until after the election next Tuesday. His statement of today is expected to be his only participation in the election.

In his statement, the Governor asserted that vigilance at the polls always is necessary, but doubly so this year because of the importance of the fight. He said:

"Problems of the utmost importance to the future welfare of Pennsylvania depend upon the outcome of this election. The plans and practices of election crooks must be fought more vigorously than ever before. The disgrace Pennsylvania has for generations sustained through the corrupt use of election machinery by entrenched political gangs must be wiped out."

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—The Union League will not poll its membership on the question of the resignation of Raymond Pitcairn, militant wet leader who recently announced his support of the candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt for the Presidency, it was announced today. E. Lawrence Fell, president of the club said:

Mellons' Tax Refunds Linked to G. O. P. Gifts

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Representative John J. O'Connor (Dem.), of New York, in a statement today said "once again the Republican campaign is being financed out of the treasury of the United States."

A number of the "more substantial contributors" to the Republican campaign "are men who have received large awards from the federal treasury," he said, listing contributions given by Andrew W. Mellon, R. B. Mellon and W. L. Mellon. The statement went on:

"Ambassador Mellon has received a personal refund of $72,359.55, while the Mellon Aluminum Company of America has received from the treasury in refunds, credits and abatements a total of $1,555,925.27. The Mellon Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company has received $693,134.09."

Among others he said had contributed to the Republican campaign and had received tax refunds was Mrs. Edith Oliver Rea, of Pittsburgh.

Gallagher and Lyon Clown at Airport

"Skeets" Gallagher, comic man of the movies, had his baggage balanced at the county airport today, but fellow passengers were wondering what Ben Lyon, husband of Bebe Daniels, did to accomplish the feat for his bachelor vacation companion.

"Skeets" offered to throw his dress suit overboard when informed that he had five pounds excess baggage, for which a fee of $3.50 was demanded. Later he offered to pay, but Lyon said it would not balance the budget. Whereupon Lyon removed a carefully wrapped something from Gallagher's luggage and put it in his pocket.

At the weighing in, Gallagher scaled 145 and Lyon 170.

The two actors spent more than an hour at the county airport. Gallagher said he had forgotten the name of the new movie he is hastening back to California to make.

Concerning politics, the pair said they had no choice, only hoped that times would brighten to fill all seats in the movies.

Lyon predicted the movies would be one of the first to react to better times. He said people would spend money for enjoyment, just as soon as they had any to spend.

PLIGHT OF VETS AROUSED OLD MARINE

Police Leader Strove For Peace After Congress Snub

By BRIG. GEN. PELHAM D. GLASSFORD

Former Chief of Police of the District of Columbia.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Washington Herald and Universal Service, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Tragedy hovered over Washington from the moment Congress adjourned on July 16 without enacting the bonus bill. Up to that point the veterans lived on hope. Even after the Senate killed the bill, the men still had an almost fanatical confidence that Congress would not adjourn without passing a relief measure for them. All hope was now blasted. Their purpose for being in Washington ceased to exist.

Realizing the crisis was approaching, I spent the 12 days between the adjournment of Congress and the final eviction of the Bonus Army on July 28, in ceaseless effort to avert a catastrophe which seemed inevitable unless the utmost precaution and diplomacy were exercised. I combined with other agencies in using all means to persuade the men that their mission in Washington was ended, that it was useless and dangerous to remain here longer.

Waters Against Retreat

Waters initiated the slogan:

"We will stay here until 1945 if necessary to get our bonus."

It met with enthusiastic and popular acclaim in the B. E. F. and it was evident that five or six thousand of the veterans intended to stand by Waters and continue in the camps. However, thousands of the men were made to realize the futility of their position and they melted away at an average rate of about 1,000 a day. From the adjournment of Congress to the eviction the number of veterans in Washington was reduced from some 20,000 to less than 8,000.

Waters was aided in his efforts to keep the B. E. F. in Washington by outsiders, among them Gen. Smedley D. Butler. The quick sympathy and fighting spirit of the General had been stirred by the plight of the veterans. He came to Washington and added his voice to that of Waters in urging the men to "stick."

In the latter days of the occupation, the B. E. F. altered and broadened its policy. It came to Washington with the demand:

"The bonus or a job."

It had concentrated on the bonus as an immediate practical objective. When that failed the veterans demanded jobs as the price of evacuation.

'Curs and Cowards?'

Just prior to the adjournment of Congress the B. E. F. News, official organ of the movement, gave an idea of the new policy. The B. E. F. was hailed as the "front line of an army of distressed" reaching through every state in the union. An editorial entitled, "Are You Curs and Cowards?" read:

"A dog in the gutter will fight to feed its pups. Yet millions of Americans are standing idly on street corners, or slinking up back alleys, afraid to demand what God intended them to have."

All this meant the "forgotten man" was finding a voice. I had been aware from the first that the B. E. F. was symbolic of the vast army of the unemployed. Anything unfortunate that happened to the B. E. F. was bound to have its effect in the country at large and might easily precipitate widespread disorder.

One fortunate "break" was the departure of Roy Robertson, the picturesque leader of the "death march." His final act was to threaten to transfer the "death march" to the White House.

Alarmed by this and other threats to picket the Executive Mansion, Commissioner Crosby gave me explicit orders to prevent all such efforts. This was simple enough in view of the fact that these efforts were confined to the small group of not more than 200 radicals. The Communists' attempts were easily frustrated.

Five days after Congress adjourned, on July 21, the administration showed its hand. I was summoned before the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia. I went with foreboding. On the faces of the three commissioners was

MRS. ERNEST WHITWORTH MARLAND . . . NO CAMPAIGNER SHE

Mrs. Marland, for four years the wife of Millionaire Marland, former Pittsburgh attorney who made money in Oklahoma oil, who timidly declined to address a Perry (Okla.) woman's club in behalf of her husband's congressional campaign. He adopted her in 1916, lost his wife in 1926, annulled the adoption, married her in 1928.

MRS. M'CORMICK PLAN ON ROCKS

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—The dream Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCorick had of building perfect homes crashed today with the filing of a foreclosure suit for the Edith Rockefeller McCormick Trust.

Bonds of the trust are in default, according to the petitioner, the Straus National Bank and Trust Company, and should be redeemed so far as is possible by the sale of property supporting them.

The suit suggested that if there is any deficiency, Edwin D. Krenn and Edward A. Dato, associates with Mrs. McCormick in the trust, should be held liable.

'Limited' Derailed, Two Women Injured

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Mrs. Lillian Hoeksera, 58, and her daughter, Ida, 31, of Little Rock, Ark., were injured when the Wabash "Midnight Limited" from Chicago to St. Louis was derailed in crossing a switch here early today.

Fire Truck Crashes Into Train; 1 Dead

MONROE, Mich., Nov. 4.—(INS.)—One fireman was killed and three others seriously injured when Engine Company No. 2, racing to a fire, crashed into a Michigan Central freight train at a grade crossing today.

FREIGHT KILLS RUNAWAY BOY

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Tragedy and the cold today ended the journey of three youths from Webster, Pa., who sought adventure.

John Snozick, 18, was found dead along the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks west of here after his two companions, numb with cold, were arrested as they slipped off a freight train in Philadelphia.

The boys, Nicholas Patrick, 19, and Robert Loughland, 18, said they left home yesterday with Snozick to go to Newark.

They finally hopped a freight train. Cold winds benumbed them, they said, and after several hours they tried to break into a box car.

Failing in this effort, Snozick started crawling on hands and knees across the top of the car and apparently fell to his death under the wheels.

Gene Tunney Loses His Fight for Vote

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 4.—(INS.)—James J. (Gene) Tunney lost his fight to vote in Tuesday's election today when Superior Court Judge Frank P. McEvoy dismissed his petition which would have forced the Stamford Board of Registration to enter his name despite the fact that he failed to register within legal time limits because he was ill in a New York hospital when registrations closed October 22.

HOOVER BLAMED FOR BONUS DISORDERS

Boos Greet Mention Of President by Glassford

Universal Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—All blame for the bonus army disorders in Washington last summer was placed squarely on the Hoover administration by Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, former police superintendent of Washington, in a speech here last night.

There would have been absolutely no trouble, he told an audience of nearly 5,000 in the Metropolitan Opera House "if the satellites of an intolerant and short-sighted administration had not seen fit to repudiate everything that had been done and to take matters into their own hands."

BOOS SHAKE BUILDINGS

Glassford spoke under auspices of the United Veterans' Committee. Thousands more than the building could hold turned out, although the speech was to be broadcast. Floyd Gibbons, noted war correspondent, presided. Glassford was introduced by Smedley D. Butler.

Several times, when Glassford referred to President Hoover as "our peacetime, commander-in-chief," a tremendous hooting and booing went up from the jammed house. And when he said, "you veterans who have borne arms in the defense of the country must still revere him as your supreme commander," the booing shook the building. He continued:

"In my mind, it would have been disgraceful to apply to the veterans who had fought for their country the usual police procedure in dealing with derelicts and bums.

MAC ARTHUR'S THREAT

"Armed with modern implements of warfare, the peacetime army of our present commander - in - chief, Herbert Hoover, drove from the national capital at the point of the bayonet the disarmed, disavowed and destitute army of Woodrow Wilson.

"According to a statement made public by the President, the army was called 'to assist the district authorities to restore order.' The real objective was made known to me by Gen. MacArthur (chief of staff of the army), while the troops were on the way.

"He said: 'We are coming to break the back of the B. E. F. within a short time. We will move down Pennsylvania avenue, sweep the billets there, and then clean out the other camps. It will be done tonight."

Glassford's Warning To District Cited

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(Universal.)—While Gen. Glassford was speaking in Philadelphia last night the district commissioners made public a report by Glassford early in the invasion.

The statement was obviously designed as an answer to Glassford's articles being published by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and Universal Service. Glassford's report recommended:

"That preparations be made by the commissioners to declare an emergency, and to provide for the use of the National Guard, or to place in effect 'the white plan.'"

Commissioner Reichelderfer explained:

"The white plan referred to by Gen. Glassford is the official designation of the War Department of the plan to be followed by the regular army in quelling of serious internal disorders.

"It is only applied under critical conditions when civil authority and all other normal sources of protection have failed. Glassford was undoubtedly familiar with its general provisions and the seriousness of the situation which it envisioned."

Thus did the commissioners themselves confirm Glassford's statement that he warned them, eight weeks before the bonus army riots, to prepare for an emergency.

THAT SIREN ALMOST HIT THEM!

PLANE'S SIREN FALLS, PERILS 4

Four persons gazing at an airplane soaring over the North Side as a fish-selling publicity stunt today wondered why the siren on the plane suddenly ceased blowing.

A few seconds later the 12-pound siren, unseen in its 500-foot plunge from the plane, struck the ground in the back yard of Gottleib Kehrli, 1201 Linden place, with such force that it was broken into bits, 15 feet away from where the four were standing.

The spectators were Mrs. Kehrli, her son, Herbert, 4; a neighbor, Rudolph G. Arn, of 1203 Linden place, and his son, Rudy, 3.

BIDDERS IGNORE SPEAKEASY OWL

A stuffed owl, the wise old bird that looked down on tipplers and toppers in a well-patronized speakeasy, together with two pheasants, a crow and a squirrel, all stuffed, went unnoticed today as bargain hunters bid for confiscated speakeasy furnishings at the government auction in the Morrowfield Garage. Approximately 200 persons edged close to the auctioneer in the garage, at Maeburn road and Alderson street, this morning, but they were mostly bent on selecting furniture.

Ten tables went at $5, 22 chairs at $8, four cuspidors, a stove, rocking chair and glassware brought 75 cents. A piano and stool was knocked down at $6, and reproductions of famous paintings went under the hammer at $1. Two iron gates and five mirrors brought a total of $1.75.

Two Dances Bring Deportation Of Italian

DETROIT, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Because he left the United States once for 15 minutes to enjoy "two short dances," Crescenze Cece, 33, today was en route back to his native Italy.

Cece entered the country illegally in 1926 and was arrested in 1931. But he could not be deported because of the statute of limitations.

Last summer he went on a boat excursion to Bob-Lo-Island which is Canadian territory. He explained:

"I didn't intend to leave the boat, but I couldn't resist the orchestra music. I got off for two short dances."

He was deported today for re-entering the country illegally, from Bob-Lo-Island.

CHILD BITTEN BY DOG DIES

A few minutes after he had been admitted to Homestead Hospital this afternoon, Gabriel Orose, 5, of Fourth street, Homestead, died a victim of blood poisoning. According to the hospital report to the Coroner, death was due to toxemia, following tetanus, due to having been bitten on the arm by a dog.

Dr. H. H. Hartley, who had treated the child, said he was called to attend the victim three days ago. He said the mother had just discovered the injury, but that it evidently had been inflicted several days before.

Snow Shoes Needed To Reach Idaho Polls

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—If the people in the high country in the vicinity of Bergdorf in Central Idaho wish to vote, they may have to use snow shoes going to the polls.

The locomotive, baggage car and five coaches left the rails, but only one car overturned.

POOR CHILDREN GET FREE MILK

Distribution of milk to needy and undernourished children in Allegheny County was under way today on the basis of 60,000 quarts daily.

Funds for its purchase were made available last month by the State Emergency Relief Board, Harrisburg, which set aside approximately $100,000 of federal aid funds.

The State Health Department is principal distributing agent, with the aid of various school groups, in most parts of Pennsylvania, including Allegheny County. In Pittsburgh, however, distribution is handled through a special committee formed of representatives of public and parochial schools and the City Health Department.

The distributing committee acts as a sub-committee of State Senator Frank J. Harris' Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board.

Two glasses of milk a day is the ration given to the children—one in the morning, one in the afternoon.

Identify Suicide In 103-Story Leap

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—The body of the man who leaped from the one hundred and third floor of the Empire State Building was identified today as that of Friedrich Eckert, 33, of Queens, N. Y.

The identification was made by his cousin, Mary Kneer, who said that Eckert was married and had come to this country from Germany two years ago.

Girl Sees Man Die By Poisoned Candy

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Benjamin T. Randolph, 35, of St. Louis, died on the floor of a hotel room yesterday before the eyes of his sweetheart after eating poisoned candy as the result of what police said was jealousy.

The woman, Miss Bertha Barnes, 32, of Cleveland, was taken to a hospital, where she recovered quickly from the effects of eating a piece of the candy.

SICK STUDENT DISAPPEARS FROM BED

Believed by his parents to be wandering in a delirium caused by illness, William Westenberger III, 19-year-old student of Pittsburgh Academy and former athlete of Shady Side Academy, was the object of a county-wide search today following disappearance from his sickbed at the Westenberger home, Bonnie Brae, West Waldheim road, O'Hara Township.

The youth, former basketball captain at Shady Side and the only son of Mr. and Mrs. William Westenberger, Jr., has been under his mother's care, suffering from a cold. His mother said he was asleep in bed when she entered his room at 12:30 a. m. to minister to him. He was missing when the family arose this morning.

He apparently had clothed himself fully, but his automobile still was in the garage and he had taken no other belongings. His father told police the youth had $25.

The family could give no explanation of his absence other than that he might have been delirious from the illness or had suffered a nervous attack. Young Westenberger was knocked unconscious in a robbery last July when two men kidnaped him in Highland Park and forced him from his car in Freeport road.

Sturges Annulment Urged by Referee

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Referee John M. Tierney has recommended that Eleanor Hutton Sturges, cereal heiress, be granted an annulment of her marriage to Preston Sturges, playwright.

The recommendation was made yesterday on the grounds that when Sturges' first wife, Estelle Mudge, obtained a Mexican divorce her husband was not served with a notice within the prescribed time limit, thereby making the action illegal.

DIGEST GIVES 41 STATES TO ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Roosevelt leads in 41 states with a total popular vote of approximately 3 to 2 over Hoover in the final returns of the Literary Digest's nation-wide poll, according to tomorrow's issue of the magazine.

A grand total of 3,064,497 ballots were returned and tabulated. Of these 1,715,789, or 55.99 per cent are for Roosevelt, 1,150,398, or 37.53 per cent voted for Hoover and 148,079, or 4.84 per cent, registered their sentiments for Thomas.

HOOVER LEADS IN SEVEN

The final vote gives Hoover a lead in the seven states of Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New Jersey.

A division of the vote by an Electoral College apportionment would give Roosevelt 474 votes to Hoover's 57.

The Literary Digest editorially concedes the possibility that Roosevelt may carry five of the states in which Hoover leads in the final tabulation. It is stated that in the 1928 poll Rhode Island and Massachusetts were indicated as Hoover states but were carried by Smith in the election. An analysis of the present vote, it is shown, reveals that ballots have not been voted in adequate quantity by Democratic voters in these states.

PENNA. IN DOUBT

The Literary Digest points out also that the same situation obtains in Connecticut, New Hampshire and New Jersey, where the declared Republicans voting in the poll outnumber the declared Democrats considerably in excess of the actual relative party-strength in these states, and the magazine, therefore, notes the possibility that Roosevelt may carry them.

The Literary Digest editorializes that although there are many political claims that Pennsylvania will vote Republican, no such forecast can be deduced from the poll returns from the Keystone State.

Presidential Trend By States

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States. It also shows the certainty that each candidate has in each state in which he is leading. In addition it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each state as compared with the last preceding report from the state. These state reports are usually a week apart. The final feature of this table shows the net gain of each candidate in each state where he has improved his position as compared with the preceding report from that state.

REED ATTACKS COERCION

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(Universal.)—Former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, last night brought a distinguished audience of men and women to their feet in the Congress Hotel with a scathing denunciation of President Hoover and employers who seek to intimidate their workers into voting for Republican candidates.

Reed said his trip across the continent convinced him Gov. Roosevelt will be elected "by a landslide."

The Republican campaign, he said, has reached the "crying stage of a drunk."

Pointing out the President has said conditions would be worse if he is not re-elected, Reed said that and similar remarks of Hoover seemed to him "as cheap and wicked a performance as a public man has ever engaged in."

McGinnis Listed For Roosevelt Talk

Bernard B. McGinnis, Democratic leader, who served as assistant United States attorney during the Wilson administration, was to talk at the Henry George Club dinner today at the Downtown Y. M. C. A., on "Why Liberals Should Support Roosevelt for President."

FARLEY STANDS BY LANDSLIDE PROPHECY

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—In more than 30 of the 48 states, Democratic Chairman James A. Farley predicted today, Gov. Roosevelt's majority on election day will be more than President Hoover's total vote. Farley, in what he described as his "final" analysis of the situation, said:

"I predict a great and triumphal victory. Gov. Roosevelt will place a new record into American political annals for posterity to marvel at.

"We need not go beyond the Literary Digest's plain figures of what is going to happen next Tuesday."

ROOSEVELT SWEEP

The Literary Digest announced that a tabulation of 3,064,497 ballots returned in its nation-wide poll showed 1,715,789, or 55.99 per cent, for Roosevelt; 1,150,398, or 37.53 per cent, for Hoover, and 148,079, or 4.84 per cent, for Thomas.

The final vote, the magazine announced, gave the President a lead in the six New England states and New Jersey, with Roosevelt leading in the other 41 states. The announcement said:

"A division of the vote by an electoral college apportionment, the announcement said, would give Roosevelt 474 votes to Hoover's 57."

In the formal statement he handed out at national headquarters, Farley listed four predictions he has made at various times since the Chicago conventions, and said he still "stands by them."

EARLY PREDICTIONS

They are:

"1. That Gov. Roosevelt has a chance to carry every state in the union.

"2. That his popular majority will be 10,000,000 votes.

"3. That in at least one state he will have a plurality of 1,000,000 votes.

"4. That the Republican party is going to sink to the lowest estate that it has experienced in a two-party contest since the Civil War."

The statement also said:

"The answer of the American people to the protestations of Chairman Sanders, of the Republican National Committee, and others who claim to see nothing conclusive in the Literary Digest poll will be given next Tuesday.

"It (the poll) is a sample, fairly taken and intelligently presented, of what the American people are thinking about."

America's Retreat Halted, Says Chapin

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Roy D. Chapin, Secretary of Commerce, in an address last night, said:

"There is no question America is no longer altogether on the retreat. Regardless of partisan considerations, one cannot review the history of America's campaign against the depression without becoming impressed by the wisdom and timeliness of every move initiated by the President."

Labor Party Gains In Municipal Vote

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Final results from Tuesday's municipal elections throughout the United Kingdom showed today that the Labor party made a net gain of 15 seats in borough councils. The Labor candidates fared particularly well in the industrial municipalities. Their campaign was pointed at the method of administering the dole.

The Conservatives lost 10 seats and the Liberals lost six. Independents gained one.

"On the Avenue"

YOUNG PRAISES ROOSEVELT AS LIBERAL

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Owen D. Young, international financier and industrialist, last night declared he was giving unqualified support to Gov. Roosevelt and Speaker Garner because a liberal party under liberal leadership was imperative to America's business recovery and future prosperity.

At the same time he criticized President Hoover and his supporters for predicting the nation's economic stability would be destroyed if he were not re-elected; arraigned the Republicans for "vacillation and indecision" as to a national policy; warned that threats, used to influence votes, can destroy business; and pleaded for voters not to let threats coerce their ballots.

ENDS SPECULATION

Preceding Gov. Roosevelt on the speaker's platform, Young addressed a widely demonstrative crowd of several thousand that jammed the Republicans-for-Roosevelt League's mass meeting at the Metropolitan Opera House. After first setting aside all the speculation as to his support of the Roosevelt-Garner ticket which had arisen as a result of his silence in the campaign, Young plunged into his speech. He said:

"Following the war one of two courses was open to this country, one was to retire into self-satisfied isolation, or seek the maximum development of the world's trade and commerce in order that we as the greatest creditor nation, might share in the world's enlarged stakes. My complaint is that we chose neither course, but drifted aimlessly.

"This vacillation and indecision of the country under Republican administrations induced a false prosperity in the twenties, and a real catastrophy in the thirties."

PLEA TO LIBERALS

He continued:

"Now with currencies abroad broken, with our own economic machinery threatened and endangered, with debts in every land crushing their people, it is time that liberal parties came into power to save conservatives from their own destruction, and to save the rest of us, who are victims, too."

Until this happens, Young said that our surplus cotton, grain, wheat, manufactures, will not move. On this premise he pleaded for the liberal leadership of Roosevelt.

NO TIME FOR THREATS

Taking up the subject of threats being used to influence voters, he said this was no time to make threats. He expressed happiness over the fact that "Gov. Roosevelt and the Democratic party have not held up the specter of what might happen by way of social disturbances if he, as the representatives of the liberal party, were not elected," continuing:

"But the President of the United States and his supporters have not hesitated to predict what would happen to securities and business if he were not elected.

"Threats can destroy business. Let no one be afraid—let no one be coerced directly by threats, or indirectly by advice."

His words recalled the recently published reports that certain prominent Republican employers had sought to "intimidate" their employes to vote for the re-election of Hoover on the grounds that a Democratic victory would destroy industry, and, incidentally, jobs.

NOT APPREHENSIVE

Young said:

"I am not afraid of mobs if Mr. Hoover is re-elected, and I am not afraid of markets or business if Mr. Roosevelt is elected. Even the President and the Secretary of the Treasury will, I think, not deny me the right, even as a raw recruit, to express a view on markets and on business. So let us be done with fear, and rest assured that voting as we feel will bring a result which we can look forward to with confidence and optimism."

The Republican party's claim that it was dangerous at this time for the country to make a change in parties and in personnel, was cast aside by Mr. Young, who said:

"I resent at any time or at any place the attitude that the safety of this country depends on any man holding his job. No man has achieved that strength and this country has not deteriorated to that weakness."

At this time of crisis in a fast-moving world Young said what he is concerned most about "is not so much a program as a spirit of approach—not so much a mind as a heart." He concluded:

"A program lives today and dies tomorrow. A mind, if it be open, may change with each new day, but the spirit and the heart are as unchangeable as the tides."

Doak Again Attacked By Trainmen's Chief

CLEVELAND, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, today repeated a recent assertion, that "it appears very clearly that the Secretary of Labor (Doak) was not free to serve the interests of labor as he had previously done as their representative."

ESTEP SCORED AS 'ABSENTEE'

Henry Ellenbogen, Democratic candidate for Congress in the Thirty-third District, last night assailed his Republican opponent, Congressman Harry A. Estep, as the "absentee representative."

Ellenbogen spoke in South High School with Father James R. Cox.

The Democratic candidate listed four important measures for economic recovery and direct relief to the needy on which he contended Estep did not vote. He said:

"A record of no action deserves no vote. If I am elected I will really represent you, ably and honestly."

CANNON TO VOTE FOR HOOVER

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., told the North Alabama Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, last night that although he is not a Republican, he would vote for President Hoover "as the only way to defeat Roosevelt."

The dry leader, who four years ago was active in the anti-Smith campaign in the South, said that in casting his vote for Mr. Hoover this time he wanted it understood he "totally disagreed" with some of the President's statements; felt that "he has not done all that he could have done to make prohibition effective," and considered his modification plan "vague" and "impractical."

HEIRESS BROKE, AIRS TROUBLES

DETROIT, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Mrs. Nell Barden, 36, former Toledo society girl and heiress to a $250,000 fortune, told in Circuit Court yesterday how she lived with three of her children on $3.50 weekly welfare allowance, after her husband, she charged, deserted her.

Judge Thomas M. Cotter issued a writ ordering the husband, Frank Barden, radio singer and song writer, to pay $15 a week toward her support.

Mrs. Barden is the daughter of the late Herman Eoff, Toledo newspaper publisher. She said her husband spent the $250,000 left her from her father's estate, and then went to Chicago last January with their twin daughters. She was left without funds to support their other three children, she said.

She told Judge Cotter she finally left the children with friends in Boyne City, Mich., and hitch-hiked to Chicago. Her husband refused her money, she claimed, so she hitch-hiked back to Detroit to start the court action.

Barden is author of the Chicago pageant of progress "theme song," the court was told, and is manager of Chicago's world champion American Legion Band.

Fithian Closes Dry Drive for Senate

CLARION, Pa., Nov. 4.—Dr. Edwin J. Fithian, banker-manufacturer of Grove City, today closed his campaign for election to the United States Senate on the Prohibition ticket with a speech at the Clarion County Courthouse. He said he expected to roll up the largest vote ever given a dry nominee for Senate in this state.

STIMSON CITED ON SEA RIGHTS

GENEVA, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—The Kellogg pact automatically provides for blockade of any aggressor nation, Joseph Paul-Boncour, French minister of war, told the Stering Committee of the disarmament conference today.

Paul-Boncour revealed the proposal abolishes traditional freedom of the seas.

This, Paul-Boncour said, is the logical interpretation to be placed on the Kellogg pact in view of the recent speech by United States Secretary of State Stimson stressing the consultative phases of the treaty.

Election Outcome To Determine Golf Attire

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The election outcome will determine whether this golf match is to be a high-hat affair or a masquerade in feminine clothing.

It's to be played November 13 at the Washington Golf and Country Club.

J. G. C. Corcoran and Dr. S. T. Noland agreed that if the Democrats lost, they would appear in full dress suits and top-hats. George T. Howard and E. S. Pardoe, in return, agreed to play in women's clothes if the Democrats win.

TRIBUTE PAID CHIEF SMITH

Representatives of City Council and the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council attended a luncheon in honor of Fire Chief Richard L. Smith in the Chamber of Commerce yesterday. The luncheon was under auspices of the life and property protection committee of the chamber.

Efficiency of the Pittsburgh Fire Department was lauded by Charles Donley, chairman of the chamber's fire prevention committee, who said Pittsburgh had the lowest per capita fire loss of any city of more than 500,000 population from 1928 to 1931.

110 miles an hour! Just think of it! Twice the ordinary speed of road travel. PHARIS ROADGRIPPERS have astonished the entire motoring world. NO other stock tire has ever gone so fast. NO other tire has ever proved itself in so conclusive a test. This sensational, gruelling demonstration was the first of its kind ever made under the sanction and supervision of the American Automobile Association. . . . It definitely proves the high quality and supersafety of the famous PHARIS FIRST-LINE ROADGRIPPERS.

NO SPECIAL PREPARATION

The ROADGRIPPER tires used by "Deacon" Litz in this startling run had no special preparation. They were not even tested in preliminary runs. They were purchased at random by an A. A. A. official right out of a dealer's store, and went onto the rims of the Litz-Miller special racing car at the Indianapolis Speedway on October 18, 1932, a few hours before the official test. Smiling and confident, the famous race driver, Litz, and his mechanic, Billy DeVore, climbed into the car and immediately put the speedy racer over the emery-like surface of the brick track for six warming-up laps at speeds up to 107 miles per hour—then roared around an officially timed lap of 2½ miles at 110.687 miles per hour. A. A. A. officials timed the run, and examined the tires and tubes at the finish, finding them in perfect condition.

They Said No Stock Tire Could Stand It—But Pharis Roadgrippers Did

Many racing drivers, officials and competitors had said they didn't believe such a speed could be made safely on anything but specially built racing tires. But smiling "Deacon" Litz had visited the PHARIS factory and had seen PHARIS ROADGRIPPERS made. He said he could do it—and he did—on PHARIS ROADGRIPPERS—calmly and safely.

Come in today and make your car safe with 110-mile-per-hour PHARIS FIRST-LINE ROADGRIPPERS at great savings

GARBAGE DUMP PLANS OPPOSED BY TOWNSHIP

Patton Township objects strenuously to the low bidders' proposal to dispose of city garbage by burying it in an abandoned coal stripping operation along the Monroeville road, one and a half miles north of the William Penn highway.

The Township Board of Road Supervisors plans to carry the protest to City Council and the County Commissioners. Their protest concerns the proposal of Joseph Miele, of Maplewood, N. J., whose bid of $5.95 a ton for garbage collection in the city, excepting the North Side, was lower than the bid of the American Reduction Company.

Miele proposes to truck the garbage from Pittsburgh 12 miles to the disposal site in Patton Township. In a letter accompanying the bid, Miele outlined his disposal plan. The bids were opened in Council yesterday.

A. J. Elliott and Charles Mertz, Patton Township supervisors, yesterday visited the site of the proposed garbage dump. William Graham, third member of the Board of Supervisors, was not present, but Mertz said he would join in the protest.

A letter was prepared by Township Secretary T. B. Ferguson which Mertz declared would be presented in Council today. James Cunningham, president of the Patton Township School Board, also voiced objection to the proposed dump.

Junior-Misses' Coats

Do Tricks with Fur

$39.75

They have detachable capes of dyed squirrel or black caracul, which make one coat have the variety of two . . . They have animal scarfs of wolf, to be swirled about the shoulders in sophisticated manner . . . They have the new types of shawl collars, in fitch and other furs.

The furs are of a grade that do their fashion job with pride. The coats are of crepey and suede-finished fabrics, in brown, green, wine and black—an especially attractive group for Saturday shoppers.

Sale! Finer Coats

$75

Don't be deceived—the name of a fur, alone, doesn't mean anything, for you could find a dozen varying grades of these furs if you looked long enough. But when Horne buyers personally select their trimming furs, as they did in this case, employing the process of elimination to maintain certain high standards, you are assured marvelous quality and lasting beauty.

This event is great news to those accustomed to buying coats in the higher price ranges. For the precious furs are lavishly used to give that extravagant look which Paris insists coats must have this year, on models which have proved in earlier selling, to be the season's successes.

Women's Regular Sizes 34 to 44. Half Sizes 33½ to 43½. Misses' Sizes 12 to 20.

Double-Breasted Fleece Overcoat, with collar that can be turned up about the ears when the weather demands. A coat that combines service and warmth without undue weight; Skinner Satin lined. A Steelcraft leader at $35

Overcoat Headquarters

This store because of the size and completeness of its stocks and its prominent specialization in the subject is generally recognized as the overcoat headquarters for Pittsburgh. Right now, on the threshold of winter, this department holds the center of public interest.

Our purpose is to make it easy for men and youngfellows to find exactly what they want in a winter overcoat—both as to style and price, and to provide them complete sizes so that they may be properly and promptly fitted. Our stocks offer not only all the standard and popular fabrics and models, but also the more exclusive types such as Clubfellow Overcoats, the English Burberrys, the fine Vicunas, Worumbos and Montagnacs.

Suede-Velours

For Your New "Coat" Hat

Felt may seem too casual, and velvet a bit formal, but these hats of luscious suede-velours are in perfect harmony with richly furred daytime coats.

And we don't give all the glory to the beautiful texture of the fabric, for it must split honors with the colors and the absurdly chic, little shapes—low-crowned sailors, toques and suggestions of berets. In glowing reds, bright and serene greens, briono and sapphire blue, black, and hazy grays.

. . . Horne's, Millinery Salons, Fourth Floor . . .

This Misses' Frock Has a Secret

Remove its little button-up-the-back jacket, which makes it a long-sleeve dinner frock, and you'll discover that beneath it is a "formal" with the new high front decolletage and low strap back.

Have it of velvet, in black, vivid briono blue, signal red, or the new purple shade called "night." Or of heavy-sheer crepe, in black or Frascati red.

KING TO ATTEND MILK PARLEY

Dr. Clyde L. King, chairman of the Public Service Commission, will be in Pittsburgh next Thursday to attend a conference of dairy farmers and milk dealers, it was said today.

His trip here will be to iron out difficulties between the two factions. Officials of both sides say their differences do not involve the question of increase or decrease in the price of milk.

Farmers Inspect Plants, Stores Here

CIPHER POETIC; 50-MINUTE BOGEY

Fans Get Test for Their Ingenuity And Speed

Two more cipher fans came through yesterday with word that they solved Sun-Telegraph Cipher No. 3 without the aid of clues. They scoffed at the letter frequency table published yesterday as "unnecessary."

The first mail in the morning brought from Clark Frutchey, of 302 Zara street, the correct solution:

"Marked decrease in British merchant ships sunk during last week is noted in Admiralty report tonight. Only eight vessels sunk by mine. Sinkings of boats recorded in late reports are smallest in point of number and probably lowest in tonnage since unrestricted submarine warfare began."

He solved it, he said, in 35 minutes.

But Burgin Digby, of 442 North Fairmont avenue, claimed the record with a perfect solution in seven minutes. Says Digby:

"Come on, give us a hard one. They're too easy."

So today we change our style and go poetic.

And if you do Cipher No. 4 in less than the 50-minute "bogey," be sure to tell the Cipher Editor at the Sun-Telegraph.

Meanwhile—no clues, excepting that you can't divide the alphabet by three and come out even.

Steel Patent Suit Arguments Finished

Closing arguments were made yesterday in Federal Court in the suit of the Cold Metal Process Company, of Youngstown, O., against the United Engineering & Foundry Company, of Pittsburgh, charging infringement of a patent for metal rolling.

The hearing, before Judge Nelson McVicar, started October 17. The court reserved decision pending the filing of briefs.

WIFE SPEAKS FOR ANTI-DRY

Appeal for Democratic votes on behalf of her husband, was made before a Turtle Creek audience by Mrs. Leo Guthrie, wife of the Repeal party candidate for Congress in the Thirty-first District.

Mrs. Guthrie said Congressman Clyde Kelly, with Republican and Democratic nominations, was pleading for support of President Hoover and the straight Republican ticket, and therefore does not deserve the votes of Democrats.

Mrs. Guthrie contended Kelly was trying to shelve the prohibition question. His past record shows him a dry, while Guthrie is for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and modification of the Volstead act.

Democrats' Hopes High As Election Nears

Polls and Private Calculations Favor Roosevelt

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Only four days from the great decision, the pencil wielders in both Democratic and Republican headquarters got down today to the cold business of calculating electoral tables.

The results were far more reassuring to the Democrats than to the Republicans, for taking straw votes, newspaper polls, confidential reports from state leaders, and other factors which enter into the final calculations. It appeared the Republicans will be hard put to find the 266 electoral votes necessary to election. The Democratic case appeared much easier of arithmetical proof.

Publicly, the Democrats are unwilling to concede the electoral vote of a single state to President Hoover. That, of course, is the height of optimism. But even privately, Democratic leaders refuse to admit that the Republicans will carry more than 13 states next week, having a total of 130 electoral votes. That is how confident they are, with only a few days to go.

South Held Certain

The Democratic argument, substantially, is this:

No one seriously questions that Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt will carry the 10 states that comprise the solid South, i. e., Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas and Virginia. These states have 113 electoral votes.

There is scarcely less doubt that the Democratic candidate will carry the six so-called "border states" of Missouri, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Tennessee, West Virginia, and Maryland, although the Republicans are disposed to dispute the claims with regard to the last two.

In any event, these six states have 64 electoral votes, which added to the 113 of the solid South make a total of 177, and leaving only 89 votes to pick up in the 32 remaining states.

New York's 47 alone would account for more than half this number. Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Illinois would come within one of it.

Concede Only 130 Votes

Taking into account the straw votes, the various polls, private reports and political precedents, the Democratic calculators concede privately the Republicans an even chance or the edge in the following states, notwithstanding that some of them are in the Roosevelt column in most polls;

Maine, 5; California, 22; Colorado, 6; Connecticut, 8; Delaware, 3; Iowa, 11; Kansas, 9; New Hampshire, 4; New Jersey, 15; Pennsylvania, 36; Utah, 4; Vermont, 3; Wyoming, 3. Total, 130.

But beyond these concessions the Democrats will not go. They hope to carry California, despite its traditional Republicanism and the fact it is Mr. Hoover's home state, and that he is going out there to make a final appeal.

On the Republican side, the claims are not so optimistic, although the Republican mathematicians scoff at the Democratic figures and maintain stoutly that the polls and straw votes do not yet reflect the "drift" to Hoover in the past month.

No 'Start' For G. O. P.

But the Republicans do not start off with any solid bloc of 113 undisputed electorial votes, as do the Democrats from the solid south. Nor the 64 votes that represent the border states. The Republicans start from scratch.

They start with the eastern tier and claim it all—Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware, a total of 144 electoral votes.

To that the Republicans add a bloc of nine states almost invariably Republican — California, 22; Colorado, 6; Iowa, 11; Michigan, 19; Utah, 4; Idaho, 4; Oregon, 5; Indiana, 14, and Kansas, 9—a total of 94 electoral votes.

Hope to Make Up Lack

Added to the Eastern claims, this list of states represent an electoral vote of 238, or 28 shy of the necessary 266.

They hope to make up that number—or more—from these states: Nebraska, 7; Washington, 8; South Dakota, 4; Illinois, 29; Ohio, 26; Minnesota, 11; North Dakota, 4; Maryland, 11.

But the Democrats dispute nearly all these states. And in most instances they are confirmed by the newspaper polls and straw votes.

And meanwhile, the betting in Wall street, the so-called "wise-money," is going down on Roosevelt at odds that vary from two to three to one

GLASSFORD TELLS OF FIGHT TO AVERT CRISIS

VETERANS FIRM AGAINST PLEA TO DEPART

a look of stolid determination. It was evident they had their orders. I said to myself:

"At last, they have made up their minds, or had them made up, to take matters into their own hands."

I was correct in my surprise. Handing me a typewritten page, Gen. Crosby said:

"We have decided to issue this order."

The order provided for a drastic eviction program to commence the next day and extending over a period of approximately two weeks. It required, also, the return to the National Guard of the tentage and rolling kitchens which I had borrowed for the B. E. F. The order made reference to "the great latitude due to the unusual circumstances" that had been "allowed with reference to the enforcement of the regulations and ordinances of the District of Columbia."

Instead of directing the first efforts of the eviction against the billets occupied by the Communists, the greatest potential trouble makers, the Commissioners selected the Pennsylvania avenue area for the first eviction. This site was to be converted into a park, and an injunction prevented the immediate demolition of all but one of the buildings. The Sixth Regiment B. E. F., which occupied this area, was composed of southerners. They were particularly orderly and tractable. The Commissioners were emphatic in their demands that this area be cleared by midnight the next day (July 22). Commissioner Crosby said:

"We have got to have definite action. Show these men they cannot take possession of the city, ignore our city ordinances and defy constituted authority."

'Big Stick' Swings

Argument was hopeless. I counseled against drastic action that might have unfortunate results. The Commissioners, however, insisted upon an immediate distribution of the eviction order to all B. E. F. camp and billet commanders. The "big stick" was to be wielded.

The laws of the District of Columbia are complex. There are so many different jurisdictions, each one involving different laws and a different procedure. Before carrying out this order, which repudiated all the policies I had pursued, I decided to check on the legality of its requirements.

I went at once to the office of the Corporation Counsel, the legal adviser of the Commissioners. Assistant Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West was acting in the absence of his chief, W. W. Bride. West was astonished at the illegal nature of the Commissioners' order. I went into the matter further with the acting District Attorney and other lawyers including two from the Treasury Department, which had jurisdiction over the government buildings which the veterans occupied.

Fears Bloodshed

The next morning I wrote to the Commissioners:

"The situation is fraught with potentialities of riot and bloodshed should any attempt be made in an illegal manner to evacuate the buildings in question by midnight of this date.

"From police investigation the bonus marchers are known to be preparing for passive resistance against forcible ejection under the commissioners' order, and are believed to be preparing to bring reinforcements from other camps and billets to oppose ejection by force, if necessary."

I recommended postponement of the evacuation order until all legal questions were adjusted. Soon I received a formal memorandum from the Secretary of the Board of Commissioners. It stated:

"I am directed by the Commissioners to advise you that on account of certain possible legal requirements the execution of the said order will be postponed until after the fulfillment of these legal requirements . . ."

The situation the next few days became more and more ominous. The veterans resented deeply the Commissioners' order. They had, they argued, fought in a great war for their government. Now, in their hour of desperate need, the rude homes they had provided for themselves in the nation's capital were to be taken from them. They could not understand why federal park and building programs should be more important than their temporary use of the dilapidated buildings as living quarters.

Realize Danger

Commander Waters and his staff realized the gravity of the situation. Yet they stuck with determination to the decision not to move the men from the rude shelter they occupied until other quarters could be provided.

More than three weeks before, Waters had made an agreement with me to establish a cantonment for the entire B. E. F. on the land owned by the Hon. John Bartlett, a former Governor of New Hampshire. This site, on the outskirts of the city, was inaccessible and was not a popular location with the rank and file of the B. E. F.

I desired it for just the reasons that made it undesirable to them. Here they would be isolated from the heart of the city, from the constant mass of curious and sympathetic visitors, and from all the glamour that intrigued their fancy. Deprived of this, I foresaw the eventual and peaceful dissolution of the B. E. F. in Washington.

Also it was probable that some units and individuals would refuse to obey Waters' orders for the move. Instantly they would be placed in the category of rebels, and as Waters tolerated no opposition to his supreme command he could be counted upon to assist in their eviction.

Waters had held off developing this project, but now that the continued existence of the B. E. F. was seriously threatened he showed his willingness to take action to put my plan into effect.

The climax came on July 27. The entire day was spent in conference with the Board of Commissioners. Lawyers were present representing the District Commissioners and the Treasury Department. Acting Corporation Counsel West, who at first rendered me disinterested advice, apparently had decided to play ball with the Commissioners.

With tremendously important legal factors involved, I felt the need of sound legal advice and therefore called in, as my personal counsel, my friend Col. James S. Easby-Smith, one of the most distinguished members of the district bar. Legal difficulties were solved. It remained now merely a matter of drafting an eviction order.

The Commissioners still insisted upon launching the offensive against the B. E. F. at the Pennsylvania avenue billets—where the next day, as a result of their orders, there was to be rioting and bloodshed.

In an effort to prevent the disaster I sensed would result from the Commissioners' order, I sent for Waters. I wanted him to tell the Commissioners of his agreement to my plan to move the B. E. F. to the outskirts of the city. He came to the District Building, but the Commissioners refused to see him.

I made desperate efforts to avert the impending disaster. I oscillated between the board room and the office where I had placed Waters and his staff. My efforts to effect a compromise were of no avail. Waters was more than willing to be reasonable. The Commissioners were not. It was evident to me they were being driven by pressure from higher up.

'Surprise Attack'

Waters agreed to send 200 men from the Pennsylvania avenue billets the next morning to start construction work on Gov. Bartlett's land and then to evacuate the entire B. E. F. to this cantonment as quickly as tar paper shelter and additional tents could be provided.

The Commissioners remained adamant. They directed that I should not give Waters advance information of the impending eviction.

The whole thing had an ugly aspect. The administration was forcing the issue, making a "surprise attack."

Resentment and antagonism already had been created. These now were to be strained to resistance and violence.

Within 24 hours two veterans who served in France were to pay with their lives for the blundering intolerance of an ungrateful and selfish administration. Troops, intended for war against foreign aggression, were to be deployed against hungry and defenseless veterans of our last war.

FAY TEMPLETON KIN DIES AT 92

Mrs. Annie Patterson, 92, member of a pioneer Pennsylvania family, died last night in her home. Her death was caused by old age precipiated by shock following a fall six weeks ago in her home, 214 South Dallas avenue.

The mother of Dr. Ellen J. Patterson, well-known physician, Miss Mary F. and John Patterson, she was also the mother-in-law of Fay Templeton Patterson, the actress. Mrs. Patterson was born in Pittsburgh.

She was a member of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the family home, with the Rev. Dr. Robert MacGowan, pastor of the Bellefield church, conducting.

2 MINUTES LEFT TO LIVE, SAVED

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Two minutes before they were to begin their march to the small whitewashed electrocution chamber where they were to pay with their lives for the murder of three men, a father and son were snatched temporarily from death today.

A long distance telephone order from I. K. Hay, secretary to Gov. Richard B. Russell, Jr., halted execution of William and Fred Hulsey as prison officials were preparing to carry out their electrocution at 10 o'clock.

Stay of execution was ordered after the son, Fred, confessed that he alone killed three men in a fight at the Hulsey farm that followed a poker game two years ago.

RUNAWAY CAR CRASHES HOME

A parked automobile rolled backward in Squirrel Hill and through the front doors and wall of the home of Mrs. L. A. Feustle, 6301 Caton street, today. While the doors were knocked from their hinges, the glass was unbroken. A lamp and radio in the living room were moved two feet as the machine crashed through the wall, but neither was upset.

Miss Mary Evans, of 265 High road, McKees Rocks, a maid in the Feustle home, had turned on the radio and walked away as the crash occurred.

The car had been parked by Mrs. Robert T. Shoop, 6308 Caton street, in front of the Caton street home. It was not badly damaged.

PEACE SOUGHT WITH N. J. IN TRUCK WAR

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—A peace conference was arranged late today between Pennsylvania and New Jersey authorities as the motor truck license war goes on.

With Uncle Sam declining to intervene until tomorrow, Pennsylvania has set a dead line at 8 o'clock tonight on New Jersey motor trucks entering this state without a Pennsylvania license.

Federal District Court action in Camden, expected to bring some sort of enforced truce between the warring states, was postponed until tomorrow.

The action was brought by the [illegible] of the Camden Rail and Harbor Terminal Corporation, who sought to restrain Harold G. Hoffman, New Jersey commissioner of motor vehicles, from interfering with trucks from Pennsylvania.

The controversy arose when Pennsylvania began enforcing a new law that any truck from another state hired out to transport property must have a Pennsylvania license if it operates in this state more than 15 days a year.

New Jersey's response was to withdraw its reciprocity agreement with Pennsylvania on all trucks. Maryland, Delaware, New York, Ohio and West Virginia, it was stated at Harrisburg, changed their reciprocity agreements to make them conform with the new Pennsylvania requirement.

Hoffman announced that he had arranged through an automobile club to discuss peace moves in Philadelphia late today with Leon D. Metzger, Pennsylvania secretary of revenue.

WILL PROVIDES HOME FOR SON

Provision for a son, with a request that he be placed in "some good Christian home" is contained in the will of Eleanor L. Spens, of Emsworth, in her will filed for probate today. She left an estate of $4,000 for maintenance and education of the boy, William Edward Spens.

Melville L. Stout, of 218 Bingham street, left an estate of $42,500 to a brother and three children. An estate of $20,000 was left by Fred Gangloff, of McCandless Township, to 11 children. Mrs. Louise Raeder, North Side, left $14,500 to a son, John R. Raeder. William A. Hamilton, McKees Rocks, bequeathed $15,200 to a nephew, a grandnephew and a grand-niece.

SPURNED, KILLS BRIDE-TO-BE

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Mrs. Alice Fleming, pretty 34-year-old divorcee, was brutally beaten to death today a few hours before her intended marriage.

Charles L. Robinson, a former roomer at Mrs. Fleming's home, was arrested. He admitted beating Mrs. Fleming to death, describing himself as a rejected suitor, police said. He was quoted:

"I recently roomed at Mrs. Fleming's home. She obtained a divorce. I expected to marry her. She met another man, became engaged to him and was to marry him tonight. I went to her home today and pleaded with her to break the engagement. A rage seized me. I choked her, knocked her down and beat her."

N. Y. 'Grand Duke' Arrested in Paris

PARIS, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Harry Gerguson, picturesque New Yorker, who delights in posing as "Grand Duke Michael of Romanoff," was arrested here today charged with infraction of an expulsion order issued against him by the French authorities.

Gerguson was recently deported from the United States after stowing away aboard the liner Ile de France, setting himself up in an unoccupied de luxe cabin.

SLEMP SEEKS BENEDUM'S AID FOR HOOVER

Bascom Slemp, former secretary to Calvin Coolidge, and handy man of the Hoover administration, is persistent, if not successfully persuasive, in his efforts to lure M. L. Benedum, Pittsburgh oil man, from his support of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

For te third time within a month Slemp came from Washington yesterday to plead with Benedum to turn in for Hoover, as he did four years ago. Yesterday's adventure, like the first two, was unproductive, except for what pleasure Slemp may have gotten from an airplane trip.

Mr. Slemp

Benedum today declined to discuss the political aspects of the visit, explaining that it was "social." Slemp was averse to being photographed when he left Benedum's office in the Benedum-Trees Building.

Today Benedum said:

"I am for Roosevelt for President now, as I have been. I think the Democratic candidate not only will be elected by a tremendous plurality, but that he will carry Allegheny County and all of Pennsylvania.

"I was for Mr. Hoover in 1928, and the reason I am not for him now is the record of his administration."

LIFE FOR KILLER OF MOTHER

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 4.—John R. Boyle, 36-year-old lawyer, prominent in Alabama society, has been convicted of murdering his 60-year-old mother and punishment fixed at life imprisonment.

The conviction came late yesterday after jurors had deliberated 23 hours at the close of a 10-day trial. Boyle was calm and unruffled as he heard the conviction and sentence.

Boyle, executor and chief beneficiary under his mother's will, was accused of luring her to Shades Mountain last June on a wild flower picking expedition, slashing her throat and then tossing her body from a precipice.

He told officers after the slaying that he and his mother were attacked by a highwayman, exhibiting superficial stab wounds on himself. As the trial started here, he pleaded not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity.

Barry, Gem Robber, Returned to Prison

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 4.—(INS)—Arthur Barry, notorious jewel robber, recently cleared of connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping, was taken to Auburn, (N. Y.) prison today from which he made a sensational escape.

Besides having to serve out a 25-year sentence resulting from his theft of valuable gems from the home of Jesse Livermore, Barry faced charges of inciting the riot at Auburn during which he escaped.

Marian Nixon Fails To Identify Bandit

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Marian Nixon, film actress, said in court yesterday she was unable to identify Buster Bevill, Folsom prison convict, as the man who boarded a passenger train here in May, 1930, and robbed her of rings valued at $7,500.

Actor in Hospital After Fighting Lion

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.—(AP)—As the "lion man" in a moving picture, Clarence (Buster) Crabbe, noted swimmer, mixed it with an adult lion in a rough and tumble bout yesterday and was sent to a hospital. The lion bit him on the leg, inflicting severe lacerations.

NERVOUS WOMEN

Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I am so nervous it seems as though I should fly"..."My nerves are all on edge"..."I wish I were dead"...how often have we heard these expressions from some woman who has become so tired and run-down that her nerves can no longer stand the strain.

No woman should allow herself to drift nto this condition if she can help herself. She could give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. For nearly sixty years women have taken this wonderful tonic to give them renewed strength and vigor.

Write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Dept. L-5, Lynn, Mass. for a free trial bottle.

Garqled Constantly. Bad Breath Still

HE couldn't understand why nothing helped—until a friend suggested, "It might be your stomach!" And it was—clogged intestines that invariably spread poisonous wastes through the system and lead to upset stomach, colds, lack of energy, biliousness, etc. What a difference when he took NR (Nature's Remedy). Regular bowel action thereafter. He felt pepped up, remade. And breath became pure as spring air. That's because NR stimulates the entire intestinal tract to normal functioning. Safe, dependable, all-vegetable. At druggists'—only 25c.

CITY ACCEPTING PART PAYMENT ON BACK TAX

City Treasurer Richard Thompson, at the request of City Council, has made known his policy of accepting installments of 10 per cent of city taxes now delinquent. He also announced that after the first of the year current taxes may be paid monthly.

Thompson said it has been possible to pay delinquent taxes in installments of 10 per cent for some time but many taxpayers were unaware of the privilege.

The new policy of accepting current taxes in monthly payments will be in effect after the first of the year through an ordinance passed by Council, made possible through a recent act of Legislature.

It was pointed out at the Council meeting that water rents were not taxes and were not included in the action. However, the Treasurer said persons unable to pay water bills in full could make some arrangements for installments.

I. C. C. TO SCAN FREIGHT RATES

Through class rates on freight traffic from Pittsburgh and other eastern points to western destinations will be reconsidered by Interstate Commerce Commission, according to the Traffic Department of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce.

The rates will be considered when the Western Trunk Line case reopens before the commission. While Pittsburgh industry is favored by the present through rates, the railroad contends they have decreased their revenue sharply.

The case will open in Chicago, December 7. The chamber's traffic committee has announced it will protect Pittsburgh's interests at the hearing.

DENTAL EXPERT SPEAKER HERE

Dr. Weston A. Price, of Cleveland, will be the principal speaker Tuesday, November 8, at the fifty-first annual meeting of the Odontological Society of Western Pennsylvania.

The subject of his paper will be "Field Studies on Dietary Control of Dental Caries." The paper will show the results of extensive studies in 1931 and 1932 in Switzerland, France, Italy, Scotland and islands in the North Atlantic.

Noted physicians, dentists and nurses from the tri-state district will attend the meeting.

SCHOOL ON OLD ARSENAL SITE DEDICATED

On the site of historic Allegheny Arsenal, the scene of an explosion that killed 74 persons September 17, 1862, and a landmark in the history of Pittsburgh since 1814, Pittsburgh's newest school building was dedicated today.

Arsenal High School, Fortieth and Butler streets, is unique among Pittsburgh schools, because it is a combination of practically every type of public school ranging from classes in kindergarten, vocational, open air, junior high as well as senior high school classes, with an enrollment of approximately 1,300 students.

Informally opened at the start of the school year last September, the school was officially dedicated this morning with a program in the auditorium.

N. R. Criss, vice president of the Board of Education, made the principal address, with Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of schools, accepting the new building. Dr. A. L. Lewin, member of the school board, presided.

A pageant, folk dances and ball game marked the children's program during the afternoon, with a public inspection of the building announced for tonight.

ART

Don Swann Etchings On Exhibition

By PENELOPE REDD

In the Junior League galleries about 60 etchings by Don Swann, of Baltimore, are on view through November 14. Swann's way is not in the least Don Juan's way for he approaches renowned relics of the nearby southland without a trace of swagger.

Miss Redd

In old Annapolis, he does the Academy from the Severn, Carvel Hall, the Colonial Treasury, and Red Head Lane. Many places such as Fredericksburg, Stratford, and Yorktown, associated with George Washington, are shown for the bi-centennially minded. Williamsburg, in such well known subjects as Bruton Parish Church, the Wythe House Doorway, and the Sir Christopher Wren Building at the College of William and Mary, make a serious little series. The Rotunda, the Serpentine Wall and other familiar motifs at the University of Virginia are portrayed.

Don Swann's etchings will not excite the sophisticated in the graphic arts. However, he has modestly priced his prints and he does have a genuine sensibility for his subjects. These days economic determinism is likely to compel a quick turnover, rather than allow craftsmanship to be lavished on one fine plate of approximate perfection. This is a good show for youngsters who want to get started collecting prints from their own allowances, since they get both subject interest and an etching.

Goodyear Blimp Cruises Over City

Thousands of Pittsburghers had a glimpse of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company blimp "Defender" as it circled the district for three hours last night. Aglow with Neon lights, the lighter-than-air craft was visible for miles.

The ship, one of a fleet, is 150 feet long and has accommodations for 11 passengers. After leisurely cruising about the Pittsburgh district the ship returned to its port at Akron, Ohio.

Avoid Illness by Building Resistance

Efforts are being made to simplify the terms used in medicine, but even though many words are simplified, their true meaning is not understood by the public. Two such words are "resistance" and "immunity."

Dr. Copeland

Just what do we mean by resistance? I can think of no better explanation than to say that by "resistance to disease" is meant the natural ability of the body to ward off infection. This resistance is increased by general good health, and it is lowered by eating improper food, by excessive fatigue and by exposure to cold, dampness and disease germs.

An excellent example of "resistance to disease" is the normal action of the body in warding off tuberculosis. Medical authorities state that at some time or other every person has some form of localized tuberculosis. General good health and the ability of the body to build up resistance conquers the disease.

If a person is continuously exposed to the germs of tuberculosis and has poor food, no fresh air or sunshine and inadequate rest, he is unable to build up the resistance to active tuberculosis. Since we are continuously exposed to the germs of tuberculosis, this means that all of us would contract the disease if we did not possess this resistance.

We are always surrounded by germs, but they are only a menace when the resistance of the body is low. Poor health goes hand in hand with lowered resistance. Fortunately, nature has endowed us with some protection against disease; and this brings me to the explanation of the second word, "immunity."

Not all persons possess the same degree of resistance to disease. The certainty of resistance to a disease is often referred to as "immunity." Immunity, then, is that protection against disease which results from the development of certain protective substances within the body.

This protection may be "artificial" or "natural." Persons who are vaccinated against smallpox are given immunity against this disease. Another example of artificial immunity or protection against disease is shown in the use of diphtheria immunizations. When a child receives diphtheria injections he develops an immunity against diphtheria which lasts throughout his life.

Natural immunity is acquired by having an infectious or "catching" disease. This results in the development within the body of certain substances which prevent a second attack of the disease. It is possible, too, that these substances are passed on from parent to child.

You may have the satisfaction of knowing that intensive studies are being made to conquer disease by increasing our knowledge of "resistance" and "immunity." Some day the mystery will be solved, and then we will be rendered safe from colds, influenza, pneumonia and other diseases which are influenced by resistance and immunity.

SOUGHT 4 YEARS AS WIFE SLAYER

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Under indictment by a Crawford County (Pa.) grand jury for the slaying of his wife, Ray Wallace surrendered to police last night, four years to the day on which he is alleged to have committed the crime.

Police quote Wallace as saying the shooting occurred on the lawn of his wife's mother's home—the residence of Mrs. Matilda Jack at Linesville, near Meadville, Pa.

The authorities announced he waived extradition and will be returned to Meadville immediately.

Wallace was indicted by the Crawford County grand jury on November 8, 1928, charged with the murder of his wife four days previously.

Mrs. Wallace, the defendant's estranged wife, was returning from a dance at the time of the slaying.

How Coughs and Colds Yield to Creosote

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

What is Cross Blending?

an Artist

might explain it this way...

"Let's say you're painting clouds. You've got your primary colors here on the palette. But you haven't the clouds until you blend certain colors into the special tone you want.

"This is very much what happens in making a good cigarette. And I gather that what Chesterfield means by Cross-Blending is what an artist does with colors. Their Domestic and Turkish tobaccos—many varieties of each—are the primary colors. They blend and cross-blend these tobaccos until they get the special tone they want—in other words, the Chesterfield flavor.

"And just as each color you use acts on the others to change and enrich them, so each Chesterfield tobacco partakes of the fine qualities of every other.

"You 'weld' different kinds to get a better kind. That's Cross-Blending!"

MORO CHIEFTAIN DIES IN BATTLE

JOLO, P. I., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Fighting of native troops with Moro outlaws, which previously had cost 56 lives, broke out anew today when 65 Philippine constabulaymen attacked the Sulu entrenchments, killed the maddened leader of the revolt and routed tribesmen.

One constabularyman was killed and many Moros were believed to have been wounded in the eight-hour battle. The fleeing outlaws left behind the body of Iman Ibbah, a Moro leader generally blamed for instigating the first ambush of a constabulary detachment nearly four weeks ago. He was recently reported crazed by wounds and chained to a tree in the forest.

Princess Dayang Dayang and Tarhata, nieces of the Sultan of Sulu, provided guides who led officers to the forest hideout of the Moros after peace negotiations broke down. The princesses previously negotiated the surrender of six outlaw leaders including the husband of Princess Tarhata. She is a graduate of the University of Illinois.

DUNLAP DENIES HOUSTON'S CHARGE ON BIDS

POLITICS

Cleanest Election Here In Years Forecast

By MARK SHIELDS

Tradition is being followed, and we are beginning to hear stories about possible frauds in the election next Tuesday, the Democrats raising the cry that the Republican organization is planning some sharp practice.

Mr. Shields

Only muscular reaction, an inescapable habit, could explain fraud in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County this year, though the story may be different in Philadelphia, where William S. Vare has personally pledged support for President Hoover. In this community, however, we shall probably have the cleanest election in years, the nearest thing approaching complete honesty possible.

The explanation involves no sudden excess of civic virtue. But this year among professional politicians there is not the usual intense interest in the campaign. They feel not so much is at stake, and why take a chance?

Small Fry Not In Desperate Fear

True, the smaller fry who commit the election law infractions have not had thrown into them any desperate fear by recent punitive measures. They get indicted, all right, some are convicted, but few eventually reach jail, and those stay only a short time.

However, these things are annoyances, if no more, and there is no need to invite annoyance in a presidential fight. If there is something vital to local politicians, like a Mayoralty or County Commissioner fight, even a battle for the glamorous office of Constable, then the boys can do their stuff.

Spur of Cash Needed For Lethargic Spirits

Pennsylvania business men who have grown energetic for President Hoover are going to be invited by practical Republican politicians to give their zeal a more tangible form than holding luncheons, more substance even than exhorting their employes or putting notes in their pay envelopes suggesting it would be well for them to vote for the President.

The practical politicians have carried on this campaign with a meager amount of cash, probably the cheapest campaign in history, and they want some money for election day with which to pay workers. They are asking for it, and the business men are being told they had better make the investment if they feel so concerned about the affair of next Tuesday—for the average run of Republican political workers don't, and require the spur of cash for their lethargic spirits.

Boys in Trenches Wait for Ammunition

Democratic leaders contend the Republicans are planning to put an average of $30 a district into the state. That is almost incredible, especially in view of the fact that the allotment for 1928 was only $5 to the district. Some districts require little or no money, some of the friendly and neighborly rural sections. The $30 ratio would mean much more than that for some Pittsburgh and Philadelphia districts.

The boys in the trenches who have held back waiting for ammunition will want to know if this can be possible, if happy days are here again, and their importunities may be annoying to County Chairman William H. Coleman, who already has sufficient troubles and work for more than one man.

Signs of Kline Interest Increase

There are signs that Mayor Charles H. Kline is more interested in the campaign than he was, though more as a matter of pride than anything else. He has asked some ward chairmen to hold meetings and "bring in their wards." The response from a few, at least, has been that they would try their best, but that the proposition was not the easiest they have every tackled.

Despite the accelerated interest of the Mayor, there is no evidence that any ward chairman where he finds substantial and intense Roosevelt sentiment is to be asked to make enemies through zeal for President Hoover. There is a municipal election next year in which the Mayor will be vitally interested, whether as candidate or supporter of some would-be successor. He naturally wishes all the support he can get then. At the same time he does not want some elements of the community to be able to say next Wednesday that he ran out on the party.

Much Same Confusion Of Sentiment as in 1928

It will be recalled that in 1928 there was much the same confusion of sentiment in controlled wards that prevails today. Hoover carried the city over Al Smith by approximately 7,000, which was deemed sufficient to save the Mayor's face. In that election Smith carried 14 city wards.

It may be news to Republican leaders that their vice presidential candidate, Charles Curtis, was in Pittsburgh last Sunday afternoon fo two hours. He secluded himself from politics and politicians seeking rest. Some Democratic wags explain he was in training for the period after next March 4.

GIRL HELD UP IN EAST END STREET

Taxi Driver Puts Man To Rout; Victim Saves Purse

Miss Madeline Ludgate, 24, of 355 Spahr street, East End, saved her purse from a Negro who accosted her at Kentucky and College avenues, and a taxicab driver put the would-be purse snatcher to rout.

The young woman was returning home from work in Braddock when the Negro appeared and said:

"I need money."

Miss Ludgate drew away and screamed. The Negro fled as a pedestrian approached. The young woman entered a nearby house and summoned a taxicab. When the cab arrived, the driver and Miss Ludgate saw the Negro hiding in bushes in a nearby yard. The driver gave chase, but the man escaped.

Several hours later an armed Negro held up Miss Mary Riznow, 20, a domestic in the home of Samuel Krinsly, at 24 Collins avenue, while she was returning from a store near the Krinsly home. The gunman fled after learning his victim carried no money.

Two bandits last night held up Schatzman's drug store at 811 East Ohio street, and escaped after rifling the cash register of $110. W. E. Schatzman, the proprietor, and two customers were held at bay by the robbers.

COURT GRANTS WIFE ALIMONY

Judge W. Heber Dithrich has ordered Joseph Gillespie, 2128 Forbes street, to pay his wife, Mrs. Josephine Gillespie, 1122 Province street, $100 a month alimony and $50 counsel fees, pending the outcome of her divorce action.

Mrs. Gillespie accuses her husband of cruel and barbarous treatment. She said Gillespie owns the Forbes street property, but has failed to support her and their 10-year-old daughter since they separated.

Gillespie filed an answer, asserting his wife had ample funds to care for herself and daughter.

Man Held for Court In Stock, Bond Deal

George R. Morancy, alleged confidence man, was at liberty today on bail of $13,000 furnished for his appearance in court in December. He was released from County Jail last night. Morancy was arrested after he was alleged to have attempted to induce shareholders of the Penn Light and Power Company to trade their stock for bonds.

Man Tossed Through Auto Top Uninjured

Hurled through the top of an automobile as it rolled down a hillside near Sterling street, late yesterday, Regis Dominick, 22, of 2414 Spring street, escaped injury. Dominick said he had gotten into the machine to move it from an incline near the Horseshoe depression mine operated by the unemployed.

Hoover Shuns That Short and Foaming Word

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Here's a nice kettle of gasping flounders.

The G. O. P. is trying to make Mr. Hoover indorse beer in his St. Louis chatter.

But Mr. Hoover refuses to mention the foamy monosyllable that made Milwaukee conspicuous.

His campaign managers believe that a malt transfusion would save the Republican party. It's rather late to lay a laurel wreath on the keg that cheers.

For a mining engineer who is supposed to be an expert Herbert has certainly been having trouble with his metals. He almost lost the gold standard and can't locate the brass rail.

Why not compromise? All we want the beer for now is for a chaser.

HOOVER RALLY HAM NOT FOR HUBBARD

Campaigns at Plant With Food for 'Bait,' Can't Vote Himself

Jack Hubbard, head of the Lawrenceville hardware manufacturing company which bears his name, should not be entitled to one of the 10 hams offered as raffle prizes to employes in an effort to get them to attend a political rally at the plant today. He can't by his own vote help to bring home even the Hoover bacon.

County Chairman David L. Lawrence says records disclose Hubbard, resident of the Second District, Seventh Ward, is not registered to vote.

The Hubbard raffle, to which "listed employes" are invited, is claimed by the Democrats to be a part of the pro-Hoover effort among employers to influence their employes, past, present and hopeful, to vote for Hoover. Employers were urged to this campaign of influence at a luncheon last Friday in William Penn Hotel, at which they were informed of various means of inducing workers to vote the Republican ticket.

In his statement Lawrence said:

"As the meeting is called for the purpose of 'influencing' and not 'coercing' the employes to vote for Mr. Hoover, it might be well for one of the employes to ask Mr. Hubbard who he is going to vote for. A search of the records of the Courthouse discloses Mr. Hubbard has not thought enough about his vote for President to register.

"He will, like Henry Ford, another 'influencer,' be unable to vote for Mr. Hoover himself."

GOOD VISION AID TO EDUCATION

The human being is unique in being able to fuse both eyes on an object to get depth of vision, Dr. I. D. Metzger, Pittsburgh educational authority and eye specialist, told the Academy of Science and Art in a lecture in Carnegie Lecture Hall last night.

Dr. Metzger dwelt upon the value of good eyesight in relation to education, declaring:

"The entire mental development depends upon the presentation to the mind through the five senses, and the most important of these senses is sight. The ease with which we see indicates the ease with which we will learn."

Sleuths Await Tips To Wage Vice War

County detectives stand ready to make a wholesale cleanup of vice resorts and speakeasies which Judge Frank P. Patterson in a speech Wednesday night in the Sixth Presbyterian Church, Squirrel Hill, declared were operating in the city.

County Detective Chief George W. Murren said his men were ready to act on any complaints of "joints." Patterson told the church congregation he had authentic information of the location of more than 400 vice and moonshine establishments.

LATE CUSTOMER ROBS GROCER

When Norman Papernick, 50, of 801 Delaware avenue, Glassport, opened his confectionery shortly before last midnight to accommodate a "late customer," three armed men pushed their way in, drove him and his wife to the rear, ransacked the cash register of $63, stole a quantity of cigarets and fled in a waiting machine, he reported to police.

Papernick said he and his wife were alone in the store when a man knocked at the door. When he opened it, he said, one man pointed a revolver at him and the others walked in.

Superstitious Chinese Seek Gall of Tiger to Cure Their Afflictions

CHAPTER XX.

My idea of the strangest book that could possibly be written would be one dealing exclusively with Asiatic superstitions. One of the queerest chapters would be the one devoted to the various superstitions that prevail regarding animals.

There is, to begin with, the belief among the Chinese that the gall bladder of the tiger contains a panacea for all ills. There is no ailment, no matter how severe, that cannot be cured by the bitter gall—dried and taken internally—of the jungle's great striped cat. Diseases of the heart and lungs, so the legends go, disappear as soon as a little supply of tiger gall appears on the scene. For he who possesses this magic substance instantaneously becomes a lucky man, a favorite of the gods. Realizing the futility of trying to vanquish one so richly endowed, the demons of ill health move out of the body of the blessed one and take up their abode in a frame that will offer less resistance.

This superstitution about the curative powers of tiger gall once proved costly to me under circumstances that eventually managed to get fairly exciting.

DEATHS ON SHIPBOARD

Practically all boats plying Far Eastern waters have Chinese stewards and crews; so it wasn't surprising that, on a trip I was making some years ago between Singapore and Hong Kong (on a British freighter that carried a small

FOOD PURCHASE EXPLAINED TO COUNCIL

Action on Alderdice Waste Accusation Awaited

City Supplies Director W. R. Dunlap today in a letter to Council denied that specifications had been changed after bids had been received during the purchase of a quantity of asparagus several months ago, as was charged by John D. Houston, wholesale grocer. The letter is to be read in Council Monday along with reports from other department heads on charges made by Houston.

In denying the charge, Dunlap declared that the purchase had been concluded when it was decided to make changes in specifications for asparagus in future purchases. He said the change was made June 17 and the bids referred to by Houston were received March 29.

REPORT ON HOUSTON

Dunlap also reported to Council, at their request, on whether the Houston company had been dissolved and whether they were properly bonded with the city. He reported the company was dissolved by a court order on October 19. He declared, however, that bond for the Houston company, which expired September 22, was renewed on that date for another year.

Houston, explaining the court action concerning his company, said:

"We did obtain a court order on that date. It simply meant that we changed from a commercial concern to strictly institutional business. We formerly operated under a charter, but now we are operating under a partnership. The name is the same and we are very much in business, bidding each month on orders for the city institutions."

WAITS COUNCIL MOVE

Meanwhile, Houston is awaiting some move by Council before he decides to press the demand that Council investigate his charges that 35 per cent of the city payroll is graft. He said he is looking forward with much interest to Council's meeting Monday, when Dunlap's letter will be read. At this time Council probably will also hear from Controller James P. Kerr as to whether his office can perform the duties now performed by the budget controller. Assistant City Solicitor Thomas M. Benner is expected to inform Council as to what steps have been taken by the city toward collecting on the bond of former Supplies Director Bertram Succop for any losses that the city may have suffered.

Houston declares that Kerr must publicly declare on whether his office force can do the work now performed by Robert Alderdice as budget controller before he brings any further charges to Council's attention. Houston has declared that the job of budget controller is unnecessary and a waste of taxpayers' money.

RESUME RIVER HUNT FOR BODY

Police today resumed dragging the Monongahela River at Brown's Bridge in search for Ted Webb, 22, of 1122 Greenfield avenue, whose clothes were reported found on the river bank yesterday.

Webb and two other men were said to have been drinking since Halloween. Don Gorman, 21, of Beechwood boulevard, seen with Webb in Homestead early yesterday, arrested on a charge of drunkenness after being found on Brown's Hill, was unable to throw light on Webb's disappearance. The third man was found in his home and he, too, was unable to tell what happened to Webb.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

CLEVELAND, Nov. 4.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

There is comedy in this campaign. Otherwise we would all go "nerts." Mr. Hoover says in case of Democratic victory "grass will grow in the streets of American cities." But look at the fun it will be to see every traffic cop pushing a lawn mower. Then Secretary of the Navy Adams said, "It will bring gloom to a hundred thousand firesides." Yes, but look at the hundred thousand Democratic postmasters whose gloom wouldn't be so noticeable.

Will Rogers

Tonight somebody else will funny over the radio. Don't miss 'em.

Just flew over the Alleghanies into Ohio. Fine trip, plane full of passengers. Great race for governor in this state. Good Democrat, and the Republicans' ace of aces, Dave Ingalls, running against him. He is the "class" of the whole Republican stable. Well, I must hurry to California to welcome Mr. Hoover. He is coming 3,000 miles to vote for himself.

Yours, WILL.

Dog and Young Freed From Golf Hazard

The owner of a wolf-gray German police dog was being sought today by three good Samaritans who rescued it from a hiding place where she had gone to bear her young.

The place was a hazard on the eighteenth hole of an abandoned miniature golf course, 4100 Brownsville road. Harold Roberts and James Hillard, of 4138 Brownsville road, and Walter Hiller, of 3626 Brownsville road, were the rescuers.

For 14 days, the dog lay in concealment, refusing to come out. The two men fed the dog by poking bones and dog biscuits in with a stick.

Yesterday, the brood's providers tore open the hazard and freed the mother.

Only one pup remained. They say there were three "blessed events" originally.

When bids were asked last month, only one dealer offered to supply the famous Santos coffee, requested by Dunlap, and the price was much higher than usual. With the revolution settled and the natives back at work, Dunlap hopes to receive more favorable bids.

EX-REPUBLICAN PROSECUTOR FOR THOMAS

John R. Keister, former Republican district attorney of Westmoreland County, and at the time an ardent dry, has decided to vote for Norman Thomas, and says he has been converted to the principles of the Socialist party. His position was made known in a letter to the editor of the Greensburg Tribune Review.

Keister sees no relief through a change from Republican to Democratic rule, holding the Socialist party to be the only one with "a real mission to fulfill, a mission that can claim the devotion and enthusiasm of every forward-looking voter."

BEATEN FOR JUDGE

Keister entered the Republican judicial primary fight between Judge Charles D. Copeland and R. W. Smith a few years ago, the result being that Copeland won the Republican and Democratic nominations, and had no opposition in the general election.

President Hoover's tariff appeal was ridiculed by James H. Maurer, Socialist vice presidential candidate, upon arrival here today for a series of meetings. Condemning a campaign based on "a poor attempt to get sympathy as an overworked man," Maurer struck at the tariff appeal:

"With the worst depression of all times, Hoover makes his chief appeal on a high tariff. Hoover says our success is dependent upon it. He got it three years ago, and right alongside of it there are 11,000,000 people begging for work."

SPEAKS TONIGHT

Maurer speaks twice tonight, in the Coraopolis High School at 7:30 p. m. and at North Side Carnegie Hall at 9 o'clock. Dr. William J. VVan Essen, for United States senator, and John W. Slaton, for Supreme Court, speak at North Side.

Maurer is to speak tomorrow afternoon in Canonsburg and at night in Turtle Creek. Van Essen will debate with Attorney Andrew G. Smith, Democrat, in Moose Temple, Penn avenue, Sunday night.

INSURANCE PLOT FAKER SEIZED

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—An insurance "racket" whereby a man feigned paralysis to defraud a Rochester insurance company of $7,400 was revealed here today, and police said he was wanted in several other cities for working the same scheme. They refused to reveal his name.

Police said he used an accomplice for the fake accident here. He was able to feign paralysis of the lower limbs so well, insurance doctors said, that red hot instruments or needles seemingly failed to produce any sensation.

After he had been in bed four months the case was settled for $7,400.

Police said his hoax had cost insurance companies all over the country thousands of dollars.

COLFAX, Wash., Nov. 4.—(AP.) Bonds valued at $63,290, stolen from the First Savings and Trust Bank here by bandits armed with machine guns September 21, were back in the vaults today.

Clive Roberts, cashier, one of 10 employes made to lie on the floor while the bandits took the bonds and more than $100,000 in cash, said the securities were ransomed through an intermediary by a Seattle insurance company. Only $500 in Liberty bonds were missing, Roberts said.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Two years ago this time you couldn't keep me out of the night places . . . I would waste more time warming a cushion in a corner of the dimly-lit spots than anyone in town . . . And when I think back to those nights, I wonder why I squandered the moments so recklessly—for "copy" couldn't be depended on in them . . . Nowanights they can't drag me into any cafe, and I can't remember the last time I dozed in one . . . There's more diversion swapping trivia with my fellows in the coffee-houses, anyway . . . But now I think I know why the drinking asylums got on my nerves . . . Most of the people in them let their hair down when they drank too much, and so they became repulsive . . . The other night, frixample . . . The innocent-enough tenor in the speakessy told me how he shuddered for the man in the case . . . The girl, after a dozen or so drinkees, went over to the warbler and handed him a note with her phone number on it, reading: "Call me tomorrow at noon" . . . Her escort, returning from another table, saw her do it . . . He caused no scene . . . He calmly spoke to her, and then proceeded to take her home . . . And as she went to arrange her hat, the man went over to the singer and mournfully said: "I don't blame you, at all. A dame is a dame! . . . That was our wedding supper. I married her this afternoon" . . . Gee! What a start that is!

The mendicants and other specialists in panhandling along Broadway probably have their problems, too . . They have so much opposition to combat in the first place . . . And it grieved me no little the other theater-time to see this incident . . . A mother about 30 and her two children, about 7 and 8, stationed themselves in the foyer of a closed shop and played various instruments . . . But a blind beggar snail-paced along, his dog leading and barking boisterously—to the annoyance of the mother . . . And so she walked over to him, dropped a few coins in his cup, and whispered: "Give me a break, move faster" . . . He had no idea, it seemed to me, what she meant, and his face flushed as he replied: "I can't move fast lady" . . . Say! Even a person who can see where he's going can't move fast on Broadway with the pavements choked with people! . . . It seemed to me that she could have been a bit patient, and waited until the blind one had passed along, and not have wasted the coins she dropped in his cup—if she needed coins so desperately—to make her tots beggars, too . . . Surprised to hear that Joe K. Howard permits audiences to believe that he wrote "Old Man River" when he sings his own medley of tunes in his act . . . He doesn't mention Kern, at all, and most listeners take it that Howard also wrote that classic . . . One critic in New Orleans thought so in print, at any rate . . . I wish the scallion growers would send a scallion to the people who rate them in this column . . . A good ad for them, and funny, too.

They think I skip stuff in the daily mail, because I am so occupied with other matters, but I dont . . . It is a wearying routine, of course, looking over each letter, but there's always the possibility that one of them might contain a nugget or something for a filler . . . That letter, frinstance, from the publicity bureau of the American Felt Company . . . Would I be interested in iteming one of their products? . . . How funny! . . . The same firm fired me after two weeks as office boy when I was a kid—andthankheaven, too! . . . I might have been peddling felt these days, instead of wordage . . . Seems to me that the reason most men do not progress is that they never get fired when young . . . They hold their jobs and decay with the outfit employing them, poor things.

And now after five years as a three-act play, a movie, five years in London, and 30 years as a book, "Dracula" will become a vaudeville act running 40 minutes . . . And the Hungarian Lugosi Bela (they print it backward in that country) will be seen as the famous Count . . . I wondered what happened to Adrienne Allen, who was Merivale's leading lady in "Cynara" when the piece opened here . . . Manny Cohen, when he got Schulberg's job on the coast with Paramount, told the clever actress that she had to go to school and learn acting! . . . And like a chump, she believed him, and has left Hollywood for London to learn . . . It is difficult to believe, I know, but I know one movie magnut, who climbed to the heights from the furrier business on Fourteenth street who now is back peddling them! . . . A lot of us wondered why "The Anatomist," which closed after a few days' run, was eulogized by Hugh Walpole, the famous novelist and short story scrivener . . . It was such a glum show about coffins and corpses and graveyards . . . Well, it appears that Walpole liked it so much because of Henry Ainley's uncanny acting, which was so swelegant it caused the show to run in London too long.

The chief duty of the subway train dispatchers at the I. R. T. express stations, as one arguer argues, is to hold a local at the station until an express rolls in—and then start the local going before the express fares can cross the platform, and vice worser . . . I wish they'd make me Mayor for a week—what a lotta fun it would be hanging people like that! . . . The critics evened matters with one new show which advertised an 8:30 curtain the other premiere . . . Most of them came at 9 o'clock, and it was complained that the late curtain meant overtime for stage hands, which it doesn't, because stage hands do not charge overtime at openings. . . . Of the seven plays that guaranteed 8:30 curtains this season, one of them kept its word . . . And so the manager, who is sincere about it, henceforth will have to be content with his sincerity . . . Rushing to the play, only to wait anyway, is hard on the digestion . . . George Jean Nathan is the only critic who comes early . . . And when he comes at all, I don't know . . . To "Dinner at Eight," he was most indifferent and gave it a merciless spanking . . . And when I told him that he was wrong again, because that show is a "sensation," he barked: "So are the five and ten cent stores!" . . . A chomming chep . . . Always belittlin' this and that, and the sort of person who doesn't cross a street against the traffic lights . . . For fear, I suspect, that an actor is driving a truck.

TALKIE REVIEWS :-: AMUSEMENT NOTES

Menjou Gets New Talkie Lead

By HARRISON CARROLL
(Copyright, 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4. Allowing for last minute slips, it looks as if Adolphe Menjou will portray the leading role in "Now You See It," R-K-O's talkie suggested by the life of the late Harry Houdini.

The studio has okayed Adolphe for the part and has given him the script to read. If he likes it, the deal is set.

Written by Fulton Oursler, "Now You See It" relates the exploits of a magician and escape artist who delights in exposing fake spiritualistic phenomena. Though not identified as Houdini, the hero closely resembles the famous spook-debunker and duplicates many of his experiences.

Adolphe Menjou

In addition to Oursler, the forceful Kubec Glasmon will have a hand in writing this melodrama. Two directors, Dudley Murphy and Alexander Leftwich, have been assigned to the picture.

INTIMATE GLIMPSES:

For a man who is the center of so much suspense, Leslie Howard takes it all very calmly.

I looked him up on the R-K-O lot to ask about "Berkeley Square," Fox has just bought the play and the inference is obvious.

"Yes," he admitted, "I think we'll eventually do it together. Mr. Lasky wants me to sign an exclusive contract with him, but I am tied up here until January. After that, I don't know. I've been afraid of long agreements with one company, and besides I have a fine stage contract with Gilbert Miller. There would have to be an arrangement of some sort.

"But you can be sure," he said, "that I will strain a point to play the lead in 'Berkeley Square.' I should very much hate to see anyone else do it."

After performing brilliantly as "Good Old Charlie" in "Strange Interlude," Ralph Morgan will do his first straight lead for the films in the Fox production, "Broadway Dad." He was signed along with Joan Blondell, who comes over from Warners to take the role for which Fox once tried very hard to find an unknown girl. Hamilton McFadden expects to start this picture almost immediately.

Ralph Morgan

TOWN GOSSIP

After giving a farewell luncheon to his friends at Paramount, Gene Raymond will not go back to Broadway after all. He is leaving the studio, however, and will become a freelance player.

Aline MacMahon's contract with Warners provides that she must be allowed to go back East five times a year. The reason being that her husband is a New York architect and she is determined that film work will not separate them.

Do you remember Wilhelm Baron von Brincken, who got so much notoriety and was interned in San Francisco during the World War? He is now in Hollywood playing a German fight referee in M. G. M.'s production, "Flesh."

Logic Decides Film End

Branding "happy" and "unhappy" endings as a tradition which the American public no longer will tolerate, Cecil B. De Mille, movie director, today declared that truth and logic are the prime considerations in modern screen entertainment.

"The phrases 'happy ending' and 'unhappy ending' are misnomers," De Mille says. "They belong to an era when the public demanded a saccharine finish to every picture, irrespective of whether or not it was logical.

"Film goers of 1932 require a new standard. They are not concerned particularly about the picture's end so long as it is truthful. Naturally, they do not want a preponderance of depressing themes, but I am firmly convinced they would rather witness a tragic finish that is truthful and logical than a sugar-coated ending that is not."

Ill, Wants to Live To Vote 'Roosevelt'

SEATTLE, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—James McDonald, 83, had only one request when they took him to the city hospital. He pleaded:

Drama Theme In Stanley

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Three On A Match," screen feature in the Stanley, is no light entertainment, and the statement thereof is not intended as a pun but a dramatic truth. It is tragic. The story is poor from the standpoint of plausibility, or even probability, but it has a strong dramatic punch, excellently acted, characterization that ranges from natural juvenile types to the tough eggs of gangdom. Boiled down, it is essentially the story of a bad girl who becomes good and a good girl who becomes bad. Incidentally, there is a kidnaping sequence that parallels all the terror such things cause one to imagine.

The "three" of the title are girls of the same grammar school, one a tomboy, one proud and haughty, and the other just a wholesome youngster. The first two mentioned are principally concerned—they don't like each other. In their young womanhood all three meet again, the haughty one married, the tomboy an actress and the other a stenographer, and they find that the bond of childhood memory has made them real friends.

Around a reunion luncheon table, each lights a cigaret from one match, and the old superstition is laughingly mentioned. So-o-o-o bad luck strikes—and hits the once proud and haughty girl who had looked with scorn on the tomboy during their schooldays. For no reason whatever, she leaves a loving husband and rich home for a good looking tramp, taking her young son along. It turns out just as you might imagine, but the picture can reveal the details better.

Warren William, Ann Dvorak, as husband and wife; Joan Blondell, Lyle Talbot and Bette Davis are the players principally concerned and they are all to be credited with gold-medal characterizations. Buster Phelps, as Junior, little son of Mr. William and Miss Dvorak, is largely in the eye, too, and it is a pleasant experience.

Broadway Beckons Leni Stengel

On completion of her role in support of Ann Harding and Leslie Howard, in the RKO Radio production, "Animal Kingdom," Leni Stengel, young actress, plans to leave for New York, where she is scheduled to do a play. It was on Broadway that Miss Stengel first attracted the attention of motion picture scouts and subsequently came to Hollywood.

Crook Movie In Fulton

By EDWARD W. GOSS

"The Crooked Circle," mystery film in the Fulton this week, runs much in the direction of comedy and melodrama that appears like burlesque. Most of the fun, however, can be traced back to the comedy sequences in which the reliable Zaza Pitts and James Gleason are featured. Miss Pitts and Gleason are diverting enough, but Ben Lyon, the other featured player, is exceedingly poor.

It is obvious Lyon is not entirely to blame for the pathetic figure he makes of himself. To him is handed the job of enacting a serious role in a production which can't be taken seriously.

The setting for "The Crooked Circle" is a house haunted by a gang of de luxe crooks. There are hidden doors, eerie music, moveable walls and graves which hide stairways leading into the headquarters of the crooks. Zasu Pitts plays housekeeper to the owner of the establishment. James Gleason is a dumb cop and Ben Lyon a member of a crime club dedicated to breaking up the gang of crooks. Irene Purcell appears as an investigator of the United States Department of Justice and the heart interests of Lyon. Miss Purcell makes few appearances and adds nothing to the enjoyment.

The Hearst Metrotone News, with "shots" showing Pitt drubbing the much-publicized Notre Dame football team, and an animated cartoon, are also billed.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By MARK HELLINGER

In Which a Customer Does the Work

"STONE AND JOHNSON—Advertising."

"That's a simple way to start a story, Mark," writes Leonard Lyons, "and it's a simple story, too. Its first chapters were written in a local high school, where Charlie Johnson was the pride of the football team, and Donald Stone was manager.

"It was the same way through the college they both attended. Charlie did the real work, while Donald managed. After graduation they decided to pool their talents. They entered the advertising business, where pooled talents sometimes bring results.

"As usual, Charlie devoted himself to the actual work in hand, while Don styled himself the 'contact man.' In other words, it was Don who got most of the business for the firm.

"The passing years brought success to both of them. Don exhibited an unusual talent in procuring clients for the agency while Charlie made certain that these clients were satisfied with the work. In due time, Charlie married. But Don wanted nothing to do with the matrimonial game. It was his notion that he owed constancy to nothing and nobody but the actual partnership.

"'It's this way, Charlie,' Don used to say, 'one of us must be sensible about marriage and business. I've got to do a lot of stepping to keep us going. A wife would only be a handicap to me. Getting more and better business is the only thing that interests me.'

"Along came 1930—and 1931. That mightn't have been so bad if 1932 hadn't popped up. But it did, and the outlook for the firm of Stone & Johnson was dark indeed.

"Advertisers did not fall so easily for the persuasive charms of Donald Stone. Clients became scarcer and scarcer. The partners realized that conditions were most dire.

"'Don,' said Charlie one morning, 'we not only have to do something, but we have to do it doggone quickly.'

"Donald nodded glumly.

"'You can say it again,' he muttered. 'If something doesn't pop up pretty soon, we'll be on the breadline. I wish I could get an idea of some kind. I'd do almost anything to land a good account.'

"Both men sat quietly for a few moments. Suddenly Donald snapped his fingers and leaped to his feet.

"'I've got it, Charlie,' he cried excitedly. 'I've hit it! I'm going to get that Jones business—and we'll be set for a long, long time.'

"Charlie stared at his partner.

"'That Jones business?' he repeated incredulously. 'Have you gone completely goofy? They've been giving their business to that big outfit for almost twenty years. How do you figure that you'll break it?'

"Donald pounded his partner on the back.

"'You just leave it to me, boy,' he asserted. 'I know plenty of things about that Jones outfit. I happen to know, for instance, that old man Jones' secretary is the real brains of the outfit. She's a homely monkey all right—but that doesn't make her any less important. I happen to know that what she says over there goes.

"'Watch my smoke, brother. I am going to give the old gal a thrill. And if I don't land the Jones account, you can call me anything you have in mind. Watch me go!'

"And go he did. He took that woman everywhere, Mark. Theaters, dinners, parties, speakeasies—the entire works. But sad to relate, the desired results did not happen. The secretary said nothing about the Jones account—and Charlie grew glummer and glummer.

"Just when it appeared that their office would be moved from under them, Donald bounded into the office with big news.

"'Shake my hand, old pal,' he exulted. 'Our worries are over. No more troubles. No more heartaches. We'll have the Jones business before the end of next week!'

"'Great!' cried his partner. 'How the devil did you do it?'

"'Very simply,' was the reply. 'I proposed to Mr. Jones' secretary—and we're going to be married next week.'

"Charlie's expression changed abruptly.

"'Look here, Don,' he said. 'I'm not going to permit you to become a complete fool. Business or no business, you're not going through with any such crazy idea.'

"'That's no woman for you—and you know it. She must be more than 10 years older than you, and she has a face that would stop an electric clock. Why should you tie yourself down to such a situation because—'

"Donald would listen to no more.

"'That's enough, pal,' he interrupted. 'All you can say along those lines, I've thought about myself. I always told you that getting more business is the only thing that interests me—and if I have to go through a marriage ceremony to do it, that's okay with me.

"'Maybe I'm not playing square with the woman, but she must be used to that by now.

"'No, Charlie. There's no use arguing with me, because my mind's made up. As soon as we're married, she'll swing the Jones business to our firm—and we'll be set for life. You leave that part of it to me.

"'I know what I'm doing, Charlie—and I want you to keep trusting in me. With my wife right next to old man Jones, we can't miss. What's going to happen to our married life as soon as we get the Jones' contract is something else again. But you leave that to me, too.

"'Congratulate me, boy. Don't you think I deserve congratulations?'

"'No,' returned Charlie shortly. 'I don't.'...

"The wedding was set for 3 o'clock on a Thursday afternoon. At the appointed hour, everyone showed up—including five renting agents. And so I give you the saddest words of tongue or pen; they were married.

"Donald's friends congratulated him heartily and then proceeded to get drunk as rapidly as possible at the reception that followed the ceremony. If you could have seen that woman's face, Mark, you wouldn't have blamed them.

"At any rate, not long after the reception had got under way, the wife drew her husband aside.

"'Darling,' she said softly, 'I have a surprise for you. And I know it's going to make you very happy. I spoke to Mr. Jones this morning.'

"Donald beamed. He had expected results, but not so quickly. He placed an arm around her shoulders.

"'That's fine, dear,' he cried. 'And what did Mr. Jones say?'

"'Kiss me, darling,' said his wife.

"Don kissed her.

"'He said,' murmured the woman, 'that it was okay.'

"The man felt like jumping for joy. But he restrained himself.

"'What was okay?' he smiled.

"'My resignation, dear boy,' was the reply. 'I knew you wouldn't want your wife to work any more, so I gave up my job this morning!'"

Woman against Woman . . . Charm against Charm!

YOU may think of other women as "friends," but are they, really? To excel you in beauty—to triumph in life's Beauty Contest—is their pleasure. Happy the girl who wins, dull and drab the loser. Dull as we suspect her skin is.

Perhaps nature slighted you when it came to skin. Perhaps you were "born with a bad complexion." But probably the fault is yours—or that of the soap you use.

Try Camay, the Soap of Beautiful Women. It's delicate on even the most delicate skins. Give your skin the modern, safe, luxurious care with Camay—the beauty soap that costs you less and serves you better!

NEVER SUCH VALUES IN SOAP

Camay's new price . . . and Camay's new package are the sensation of the beauty soap world! Women are flocking to buy! New thousands every day! Women keen for value, keen for beauty, in themselves and in their soap.

Never has a soap so fine sold at a price so low! Camay gives a more profuse lather, and comes in a gay new dress, in Cellophane. The price is so low, you can afford a dozen cakes!

CAMAY THE SOAP OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

If you have any doubt in your mind about a woman's love of bargains, just drop in at 532 Penn avenue today or tomorrow, if you can get in the door. You'll probably succumb to the lure of bargains being offered there by the Women's Exchange.

The sale opened yesterday, attracting hundreds and hundreds of women, and men, too! I saw a number of men examining the furniture department.

The windows are salesrooms, too. Mrs. Harry Darlington, looking ever so smart in a black wool suit with a jacket fitted at the waistline and boasting a flared peplum, was selling glassware in one window, and so was Mrs. William Christopher Robinson, Jr., in a green smock.

Mrs. William Zang, who's publicity chairman for the Exchange, and one of the committee for the sale yesterday, told me that bathing suits, dating in style ever so many years ago, had been sold out immediately.

Bathing Suits

The storeroom was jammed near the jewelry counter, where Mrs. Richard Beatty Mellon, Althea Robinson, Mrs. Christian I. Shannon, Mrs. M. H. Hoover, Mrs. Herman G. Veeder and many others were busy selling to crowds of customers.

Mary Franklin Robinson was busy at the shoe counter, and selling books were Emily Bryce and Mrs. J. Wade Elphinstone.

One of the best stocked departments is the clothing. And there were hats galore fastened with clothespins to lines crisscrossed over the chapeau counter.

Clothing Galore

Lamp shades, odd pieces of china and glass that suggest museum pieces, radios, and oh, just everything you can imagine may be bought at the sale.

And the proceeds will be used to maintain the Woman's Exchange, which sells needlework, gifts, and baked goods, for deserving women who must work in their own homes.

There's another addition to the debutante list, popular Margaret Meanor, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Craig Meanor. Margaret will come out in the holidays at a tea her mother will give. Just now the debutante is studing at Pennsylvania College for Women.

And another addition—Esther McDowell. Her parents, the D. F. H. McDowells, of Fifth avenue, are planning to present her during the Christmas holidays at a tea.

Trenton Wedding Of Interest in Pittsburgh

A wedding to take place in the East Saturday, that of Miss Nancy Backus Messler and Karl Patterson Hughes, both of Trenton, N. J., will be of interest in Pittsburgh.

The bridegroom-elect is a nephew of Mrs. George B. Raser, of Walnut street, and the son of the late Dr. Willet Patterson Hughes and Mrs. Hughes, who formerly lived in Pittsburgh. Dr. Hughes was a surgeon.

The wedding ceremony will take place Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, in the Prospect Street Presbyterian Church, Trenton, to be followed by a small reception at the bride's home.

The bride-elect was graduated from Wellesley College in June, and Mr. Hughes from Princeton in 1930.

Former Pittsburgh Woman Weds in California

News has just reached Pittsburgh of a marriage on October 18 in the Wee Kirk of the Heather, Los Angeles, of a former Pittsburgh society figure, now of Los Angeles, Mrs. Sara Young Heinz Slocum, to James Powell Frazer, of Los Angeles, formerly of Macon, Ga.

Among the bride's attendants were her two daughters, Nancy and Dorothy Heinz, who are granddaughters of the late H. J. Heinz, of Pittsburgh.

After the reception in the home of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Frazer motored to Arrowhead Springs for their honeymoon and are now at home in Los Angeles.

The bride wore a gown of maroon velvet with a hat of white velvet and a shoulder spray of gardenias. Miss Mary Neilson, of Mars, as her only attendant, wore green velvet with a white velvet hat, and shoulder corsage of yellow roses. William Hess, Jr., of Pittsburgh, served as best man.

Reception Held For Century President

Somewhat simpler decorations than in former years, but none the less effective, characterized the president's reception at the Twentieth Century Club from 4 until 7 o'clock yesterday. Great jars of lovely chrysanthemums, small vases of roses and urns of huckleberry vine were used throughout the clubhouse. On the center one of the three long tea tables was an epergne of fruit with tall yellow tapers, the other tables being centered with low bowls of exquisite chrysanthemums in yellows and bronzes.

At intervals during the receiving hours the duties at the tea and coffee urns were discharged by Mrs. Edward Vose Babcock, Mrs. Silas Benham, Mrs. Samuel Harden Church, Mrs. Herbert DuPuy, Mrs. W. H. R. Hilliard, Mrs. James I. Kay, Miss Martha Jamison, Mrs. Frank Leovy, Mrs. James R. Macfarlane, Mrs. Richard Beatty Mellon, Mrs. Thomas A. Mellon, Mrs. Morimer Miller, Mrs. James Hay Reed, Mrs. W. B. Rodgers, Mrs. John D. Shafer and Mrs. Francis J. Torrance, under the co-chairmanship of Mrs. Stephen Stone and Mrs. W. Eugene Gary.

Receiving with the president, Mrs. Charles S. Shoemaker, were Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., and Miss Julia Morgan Harding, honorary presidents; Mrs. William Anderson and Mrs. William R. Thompson, the honorary members; several of the former presidents, including Mrs. William Nimick Frew, Mrs. William D. Hamilton, Mrs. William Watson Smith, Mrs. Robert T. Reineman, Mrs. Joseph W. Marsh, Mrs. Henry Clay McEldowney, Mrs. William Sage Dalzell and Mrs. William Maclay Hall, and the vice presidents, Mrs. Frank T. Hogg, Mrs. John A. Murtland and Mrs. Howard H. McClintic.

A delightful feature of the afternoon was the drama committee's presentation of Mrs. Carroll Miller's amusing little play, "Everybody's Doing It," which, directed by Mrs. H. Allen Machesney, was given with charm and naturalness by Mrs. Howard McFeely, Mrs. Leonard K. Guiler, Miss Elizabeth Thomas, Miss C. Dorothea Jenkins, George P. Bassett, Jr., and Oliver Evans.

Epoch Club members began their year's study of "The Changing World" when they met yesterday morning with Mrs. F. D. Newbury, Briarcliff road. Although the subjects assigned sounded dry, each was injected with unusual interest that made for an especially enjoyable meeting. Mrs. Clark Hammond discussed "The Age That Gave the World Edison, Marconi and Einstein"; Mrs. Newbury's topic was "Standardization and Mass Production," and Mrs. George Oliver reviewed Raymond Fosdick's book, "The Old Savage in the New Civilization."

GOSSIPY CHAT

By NANCY JANE

Why do the young visitors—as so many are—at the Harry W. Rafferys (she was Mary Margaret Marshall) race madly in their roadsters round and round the circle in front of their house, Glen Arden drive, with much blaring of horns, before drawing up before the door?

Among the most frequent visitors are jolly Jane Marshall, the youngest of the C. D. Marshalls' daughters, and young Mrs. Rafferty's sister, and her fiance, Aiken W. Fisher. Which reminds me—his nickname is Fish!

Perhaps you've been wondering, too, whether Althea Robinson, the W. C. Robinsons' youngest daughter, is coming out this season. Her mother told me yesterday that she's not.

Mrs. Robinson will not be out of mourning until spring, so until then she wouldn't give a party, of course, for Althea. This youngest member of the Robinson family is going to stay at home this winter.

Even the debutantes don't know about Patsy Mellon's status. Although her mother, Mrs. T. A. Mellon, hasn't yet added her name to the list of debs, Patsy is rehearsing with the buds for the feature dance at the Cinderella ball November 25.

MOTHER— why rub CLOTHES INTO RAGS?

Chipso keeps clothes like new

Don't wear out your good clothes on the hard bumpy washboard! Any soap that asks washboard rubbing from you is doing you a bad turn. Rubbing hurts you. And rubbing may be harder on your clothes than months of wear.

Chipso is all SOAP—richer, sudsier than any other soap you can buy! Put your clothes safely to soak in Chipso's soapy rich suds. Leave worries and rubbing behind you. Dirt floats out in Chipso suds. Chipso does a man-sized job on your heavy wash . . . soaks dirty towels and greasy work clothes good and clean!

Remember what hard-rubbing washdays can do to your hands—they cause rough skin, split cuticle, spoiled manicures! Then see the change when you soak your clothes clean in Chipso—smooth skin—smooth cuticle—pretty hands!

Chipso is safe for silks and wools . . . that's how safe it is! Gives you snowy clothes! Marvelous for your hands! Chipso certainly belongs in your dishpan, too!

BROWN AND WHITE COMBINED IN ALL TYPES OF COSTUMES

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Brown and white remain fixed as one of the favorite combinations in street clothes. Brown winter coats are worn over white dresses; brown dresses take collars, cuffs and sashes of white; brown suits are worn with white hats and gloves; brown evening wraps appear over white dresses and brown evening dresses are worn with white fur wraps.

THERE IS a whole lesson in color designing in the choice of brown which the Paris dressmakers choose for this brown-and-white alliance. Warm, reddish browns are seldom seen in company with pastels; they take to wood greens or wine reds. The brown which seems to go best with white is one of classic tone—neither reddish brown, nor bluish, but rather the common or garden variety which leans toward neither one color nor another.

* * *

CHANEL MAKES much use of this type of brown in her collection. In the sketch is shown one of her winter suits—coat, skirt and blouse combination. Both the line of the coat and its fabric—brown broadcloth—make it a wrap suitable for afternoon wear, yet the blouse and skirt are quite simple.

NOTE THE way the fur is used. It is brown astrakan, the same brown as the broadcloth, and is used as if it were a fabric—for sleeves, collar and bow-tie. The blouse, is brown and white-striped jersey, has a sash-belt of the same fabric, which winds about itself at the front, instead of fastening with the customary buckle.

PRUDENCE PENNY'S RECIPES

TODAY'S REFRIGERATOR has many more calls upon its versatility than did the ones of a generation ago. In those days an ice box raid could be looked for on a Sunday afternoon about 6 when the afternoon's walk or games had made children forget they ever had a hearty 2 o'clock dinner.

Every day or any day may be a raid day now. Late staying neighbors, impromptu bridge foursomes, home comers and guests after a lecture or late movie are sure to say "let's see what's in the ice box."

IT IS WISE to save yourself trouble and see that the refrigerator has good things for those who are fond of foraging—gelatin salad and sparkling fruit drinks for daughter who brings some of her crowd in from motoring; canned lobster, salmon, crab or tongue for generous rye-bread sandwiches for son who plays tennis and ice box cookies and malted drinks for the youngsters.

* * *

IF YOU HAVE some trays handy and some of the new colorful paper napkins that have that linen look, you'll save time and table linen. It's fun to fix one's own food now and then and dilly-dally over Sunday tea in some nook that appeals. You'll doubtless try it yourself at luncheon time now and then.

I AM SURE you will like these ways of making gelatin salads of icebox foraging:

JELLIED CHEESE AND PINEAPPLE—Soak 1 tablespoon gelatin in 4 tablespoons cold water, then dissolve over hot water. Mash 2 3-ounce cream cheeses, add 2 cups crushed pineapple and 18 stuffed, sliced olives. Add gelatin and season to taste with a few grains of salt and paprika. Pour into individual wet molds or one large mold and chill. Serve unmolded, garnishing with whole stuffed olives or if you do not use olives, with cream mayonnaise.

JELLIED CUCUMBER AND PINEAPPLE SALAD—Soak 2 tablespoons gelatin in ¼ cup cold water 5 minutes. Then dissolve in 1 cup boiling water. Add 1/3 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup vinegar and the juice from ½ lemon. The 4 added to the large recipe is to aid in making the large quantity hold its shape nicely when unmolded. The sugar in the large recipe may be omitted, if desired. CRAB, LOUISIANA—1 small onion, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 4 medium-sized tomatoes, 1 cup water, ½ green pepper, chopped; 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, ½ tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, salt, pepper, cayenne, 1 can crabmeat.

Chop the onion fine and simmer it in the butter for a few minutes. Stir in the flour and let it brown lightly. Add the tomatoes, peeled and cut in small pieces; the water, green pepper and chopped parsley. Season highly with the Worcestershire sauce, salt, black pepper and cayenne. Add the crabmeat and simmer for 20 minutes.

BAKED STUFFED PEPPERS—2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, 1 pound can salmon, 2 tablespoons chili sauce, 1 hard-cooked egg, salt, pepper, 6 medium-sized green peppers, buttered crumbs.

Make a white sauce of the butter, flour and milk. Add the salmon which has been freed from bones and skin and flaked. Add the chili sauce and chopped egg, and season with salt and pepper. Cut a slice from the stem end of each pepper and remove the seeds and white portion. Parboil the peppers in salted water for five minutes. Drain, and fill with the salmon mixture. Cover with buttered crumbs. Place the peppers in a baking dish, add a little water, and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for about half an hour.

DUTCH PLUM CAKE—2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1-3 cup shortening, 1 egg, about 2-3 cup milk, fresh plums, sugar, cinnamon, butter.

Mix and sift the flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Cut in the shortening, and add the beaten egg and enough milk to make a soft dough. Spread the dough in a greased baking pan and cover with a layer of plums which have been stoned and cut in quarters. Sprinkle the plums with sugar and a little cinnamon, and dot with bits of butter. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) for about 30 minutes. Serve hot, with or without cream.

Sweet Potato Is Wholesome And Nutritious Food

This Food Is an Abundant Source of Vitamin A As Well as Being Exceedingly Rich In Alkaline Salts.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator From New York,
Former Comissioner of Health, New York City.

In Japan and certain parts of South America, it is a common sight to see individuals walking along the streets eating roasted sweet potatoes. This delicacy is commonly sold by street vendors. Though this vegetable is well known in our country, it has never attained such popularity.

The sweet potato is a root tuber and grows in vine-like fashion. It is cultivated chiefly in the East Indies, the Philippines, the southern parts of Europe and in the United States. Though it closely resembles the white potato, it is not botanically related to the white potato, although it is related to that plant called the "morning glory."

The food contents of the white potato and the sweet potato are similar. The latter contains 4 to 10 per cent more sugar than the white potato.

There are two varieties of the sweet potato. One is the small, mealy, dry potato; the other is the large, soft potato, often incorrectly called the "yam."

RICH IN VITAMIN A

Like its white cousin, the sweet potato contains water, starch, mineral salts, proteins and vitamins. It is particularly valuable because of its abundant supply of vitamin A. Next to carrots, the sweet potato is our richest source of that vitamin which is found in all yellow colored vegetables.

A deficiency of vitamin A lowers the resistance of the body to disease and infection. Children suffer decidedly from its lack because when it is absent from the diet, normal growth are retarded. opment of the body are retarded. Adults, too, cannot thrive without it.

The sweet potato is exceedingly rich in alkaline salts, particularly lime, magnesium, potash and soda. It is a base-forming food and may be used to combat a tendency towards acidity.

NUTRITIOUS FOOD

This valuable vegetable is easily prepared and can be served in a variety of ways. It is most commonly served baked or candied.

Contrary to a common belief, the ripe sweet potato is not difficult to digest. But you should avoid eating mouldy and dry potatoes, because they are difficult to digest. It used to be believed that potatoes were the cause of rheumatism. But this theory has never been proved, and, in my opinion, is unfounded.

If potatoes were less abundant we would look upon them as a luxury and be more eager to serve them. Certainly the sweet potato is wholesome and nutritious. It should be included in the diet of the young and the old. It is an economical food and helps the housewife to maintain her household budget.

DEMANDS WIFE RESTORE HOME

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—For 28 years, Harry Lubberman told the court, he turned his weekly pay envelope over to his wife.

From this money, he said, Mrs. Lubberman purchased their home and built up a savings account.

Then, in July, 1930, Lubberman lost his job, two months later, he testified, his wife ordered him from their home.

Now, at the age of 70, Lubberman has petitioned the court to order Mrs. Lubberman to transfer the title of the home to him and to turn over his accumulated wages which he estimates at $15,000.

Decision has been reserved pending Mrs. Lubberman's answer.

Nagging for Wives Only, Says Judge

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—In granting Mrs. Dorothy Zentner Marx a divorce from Rene Marx, produce dealer, Superior Judge Cabaniss offered no sympathy for the husband. Marx nagged, said Mrs. Marx. The judge said:

"Since the dawn of ages it has been woman's exclusive prerogative to scold and nag—man usurps that prerogative at his own peril."

Near Beer Banned For Alabama Co-eds

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The Legislature's legalization of near beer in this state for the first time in more than a decade isn't going to mean a thing to University of Alabama co-eds.

The women's student government association has just published new rules forbidding, on its own initiative, the drinking of near beer by girl students. Rules also prohibit co-eds from smoking or driving in automobiles with men students on the campus.

A POPULAR RECIPE—MIXED MEAT LOAF

ALL INGREDIENTS SHOWN.

One of the most popular recipes with readers of the Sun-Telegraph food pages is the one illustrated above, "Mixed Meat Loaf." This recipe is a fine one to make and serve hot or to chill and serve cold with potato chips or potato salad.

GRINDING THE MEAT, BLEND THE INGREDIENTS WELL.

INGREDIENTS:
One pound of beef.
One pound of ham.
One pound of pork.
One medium sized onion.
One medium sized grated carrot.
One-half cup finely chopped pimentos.
One beaten egg.
One cup cracker crumbs.
One-half teaspoon celery salt.
One tablespoon melted butter.
One can of tomato soup.
Salt and pepper to taste.

METHOD: Place the ground meat, grated onion, grated raw carrot, finely chopped pimentos, beaten egg, cracker crumbs, celery salt and melted butter together in a bowl. Add about half the can of tomato soup and mix until ingredients are well blended. Pack into a well greased tin. Pour the other half of the can of tomato soup right over the loaf and bake in a moderate oven.

READY TO SERVE.

tablespoons corn oil, 5 cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon mace.

Put the egg yolks in a bowl and add the whole egg and beat with rotary egg beater until thick and creamy. Add sugar a little at a time and continue beating until the mixture is smooth and thick, beat in the corn oil.

Stir in sour milk. Sift flour with soda, baking powder, salt and mace. Reserve one-half cup of the flour mixture and add the remainder to the egg mixture. The dough should be quite soft. If the one-half cup is not needed for dough consistency, use it in rolling out the doughnuts.

Turn one-third of the dough out on a floured board, or better still a cotton canvas cloth such as bakers use. Knead very little and roll the dough to the thickness of one-half inch. Cut with a floured cutter or in strips from which twists are made. To the bits remaining add another third of the dough and proceed as before. Do the last one-third the same way. Cut all the dough before beginning to fry.

Meanwhile heat corn oil to 375 degrees or until a cube of bread will brown in it in one minute. It is best to use a heavy aluminum or iron kettle for deep fat frying, as this minimizes the heat fluctuation. Do not put too many in at one time as it cools the oil too much, and "crowding" the doughnuts does not give them a chance to rise or to brown evenly.

The side that has been "down" on the board should be put "up" in the fat. It takes about three minutes to fry a doughnut cut in an ordinary ring shape. A frying basket is handy. Cool on a wire rack or on crumpled paper toweling. This recipe makes about 30 doughnuts. To reheat doughnuts, put them in a pan and set them in the oven a few minutes before serving.

COMBINATION MEAT AND VEGETABLE LOAF—Mix well together ¾ pound ground round steak and ½ pound ground boiled ham, ¾ cup dry crumbs, 1½ teaspoons salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Add 1 can vegetable soup and two eggs slightly beaten. Put into a greased loaf pan and lay two bacon slices on top. Bake for an hour in a 400 degree oven. Serve sliced, either hot or cold. Serves eight.

CHICKEN SALAD LOAF—Use 1 cup cold boiled rice, fold in ½ cup mayonnaise, add one 6-ounce canned chicken cut fine and 1 10½-ounce can asparagus tips cut in small pieces. Add 2 tablespoons chopped walnuts and season to taste with salt and pepper. Pack into loaf mold and chill for 2 to 3 hours in refrigerator, turn onto a platter garnished with lettuce. Serve cut in slices. Service for six.

Melt the chocolate in a double boiler. Add milk, vanilla and salt. Stir in cocoanut. Drop by teaspoonfuls on a well-oiled baking sheet. Bake in a very moderate oven (300-325 degrees F.) for 15 minutes. Remove from pan while warm. 15 cookies.

Pie is regarded by some picnickers as the ideal ending to the lunch, but the follies of taking fragile pastries are well-known by everybody who has ever unpacked one from the bottom of the basket. Some clever cook has developed a new pie, however, in which the pastry is rolled entirely around the filling, as a protective covering. The filling, because, it is made of dried fruits, will not leak out.

PANTRY SHELF VS. ICE BOX—Your refrigerator is the best possible place for storing most foods, but not for all foods. Olive oil, for instance, turns to something that looks like half-churned butter. The sweet dried fruits—raisins, prunes, dates—become dry and hard as the sugar comes out of solution in fine white crystals. These foods from the hot countries keep best on the pantry shelf even in the warmest weather.

ECONOMICAL WAYS WITH CHICKEN—Even if we are watching our food budgets with an eagle eye, we still need not deny ourselves entirely the pleasure of having chicken occasionally. Like other meats, it has gone down in price. It is surprising, too, how far one chicken can be made to go if the uses to which it is to be put are carefully planned. Usually it is economical to buy a large chicken so that there will be a generous quantity left over.

For Sunday, perhaps, roast the chicken. But fill it with a new dressing. Have you tried orange stuffing?

ORANGE STUFFING—3 cups bread crumbs, ½ cup hot broth or water, 4 tablespoons melted fat, 1 egg, rind of 1 orange, grated, pulp of 1 orange, cut up, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 2 cups diced celery.

Pour broth or water over bread and let stand for a few minutes. Add fat, egg, orange rind and pulp, seasoning and celery. Mix lightly but thoroughly and fill into bird.

If you really wish to stir up your lagging energy and feverishly enjoy a May spring, give a children's party! Have the small folk make little May baskets of painted cardboard, with the invitation to the party inside. The baskets may be decorated with crepe paper or spring dandelions. The main requirement for a May basket is that it must be hung on the door as a May-day surprise for the person for whom it is intended! And here again, a sunny Saturday noon is the time to have a children's May party. You need not plan any entertainment. Just turn them out in the warm sunshine and let them caper.

The surprise that all children love may be tucked away in a May pole favor—how? Set a tall candle (unlighted) in the middle of the table and tie paper streamers to it for your May pole. Carry the paper to each child's place with a tiny favor like a little shovel and pail or a nosegay on the end. Little dolls representing May pole dancers may be put on each streamer. Nothing could be gayer.

Here are three recipes included in the menu which you may wish to have:

DAISY RICE—Boiled fluffy rice. Scrambled eggs.

On one large plate, or on individual plates, arrange 5 or 6 level tablespoons of rice in the shape of daisy petals. Place scrambled eggs in the center for gold heart.

ORANGE MAY BASKETS—Fill scooped-out orange baskets with ice cream, custard, or cutup fruit. Tie a tiny flower or sprig of fresh mint to the handle.

BANANA CANOES—6 ripe bananas, 1 cup cream, 6 fresh strawberries or other seasonal fruit.

Be sure the bananas are ripe. Then with a sharp knife remove a section of skin from the concave curve of the bananas. Remove the banana pulp, mash it with a fork and add the cream which has been whipped stiff. Refill the banana canoes and top with a fresh strawberry or cherry. Serve with cookies made in the shape of paddles. To do this draw a paddle on a piece of cardboard and cut it out. Lay this on the rolled-out cookie dough and cut around it with a sharp knife.

FRESH VEGETABLE SANDWICHES—Use any one of the following fillings: Minced cabbage and raisins, or thinly sliced fresh tomatoes with shredded lettuce, or minced celery, or minced cooked or canned string beans with stewed tomatoes, or cooked, canned or raw spinach with minced cooked or raw carrots.

FRESH CHERRY TARTS—Over the bottom of individual baked pastry shells spread a layer of cream cheese or whipped cream. Over this arrange large, perfect pitted cherries, which have been plunged in and out of boiling water, and well drained. Brush these with a boiling syrup made by boiling ½ cup sugar with 3 tablespoons water for 4 minutes. Garnish with sprigs of fresh mint or chopped mint leaves. Strawberries, raspberries and blackberries may be treated in the same manner as suggested above.

SPANISH EGG CANAPES—6 hard-cooked eggs, 1 3¾-oz. can pimientoes, ½ cup minced celery, mayonnaise, seasonings, olives for garnish, 24 rounds of bread or 24 crackers.

Chop celery, add eggs and drained pimientoes and continue chopping until mixture is fine. Moisten with mayonnaise or salad dressing, season with salt, pepper and paprika. Spread on rounds of buttered bread or on round crackers and garnish with sliced stuffed olives.

Split the pimientoes (there will be six large ones), drain. Sprinkle inner surface with salt and cayenne. Place rectangles of the cheese lengthwise on pimiento and roll up. Skewer with toothpicks, roll in flour, saute in hot fat 3 minutes (or until cheese melts and flour browns). Serve hot on ovals of toast. Makes 12.

SCANDAL SHEET STIRS SCHOOL

AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 5.—(INS.)—Police and University of Texas authorities today were trying to trace down the editors and publishers of an "outlaw" publication which appeared on the University campus, "The Daily Sexan" was the name of the publication, a burlesque of the title of "The Daily Texan," established student newspaper.

Numerous faculty members and students alike were involved in purported "scandals" reported. A virulent attack was made on the university board of regents.

Police questioned three newsboys who were caught selling the publication near the campus. The boys were unable to identify the persons from whom they had received "The Daily Sexan." All available copies were seized by police.

Dean V. I. Moore, of the University, enlisted the aid of police in his investigation.

No One Can Take the Hard Knocks of Life for Us

Does Dick want to be saved? No, indeedy! Dick is having a swell time, and doesn't desire a change.

But Amy is sure that she ought to step right in and make a man of him; and she isn't the first little girl who has kidded herself into tragedy by way of that same fond dream.

Listen!

"Dear Sally Martin:

"Will you please help me? I am a girl in my 'teens and I have a very bewildering problem. I need some advice, and I know you've helped others, so I thought maybe you could help me.

"For the past five years I have been associated with a boy (I'll call him Dick), and we have been the greatest of pals, treating each other like brother and sister. During the last year our affection for each other has increased, until we both care a great deal for each other.

"My parents both approved of Dick and thought him a fine lad. He had a good job, but a few months ago he lost it and was without a home, so Dad took him in and treated him like a son.

"But, a few weeks after this happened, he changed. Where he was once steady and sober, he is now wild and reckless. He travels with a fast crowd and doesn't seem to care about anything, just so he has a "good time." This is ruining his reputation.

GETTING WORSE

"His attitude is a devil-may-care one, and he is drifting into deeper and deeper water all the time. My parents have ceased to care about him, and they are both terribly disappointed in him.

"But, oh! I want to bring him back to where he was a few months ago! It breaks my heart to see him like this! It hurts me so. He was so fine then; and now—oh, it is terrible!

"Please help me. I know you understand things like this. Give me some of your straight-from-the-shoulder advice. Tell me, if you can, how I can detach him from this crowd he is going around with. He never liked that kind before, and I feel that if he were just rid of them, things would be different.

"AMY."

I don't know how you can save Dick, youngster, and I wouldn't tell you if I did.

For saving is a one-man job. No one can do it for us. They may make us go through the motions, but if a reform is going to stick, we've got to achieve it for ourselves.

APPEAL TO PRIDE

Then isn't there anything you can do? Yes. You can appeal to his pride—his fighting spunk. You can try to make him see that he is two-timing himself; that he doesn't need to wallow, just because Fate has handed him a few bumps. You can praise him for the boy he once was; remind him of his own spunk; tell him that he can come through with flying colors—if he wants to.

But that's all you can do, honey; for every one of us has to make our own life. We all have to stub our own toes, and to learn for ourselves, and no one else can "keep us straight." We must build our own characters, and we must take it on the chin if we build 'em wrong!

Even if you could detach him from his crowd, so long as he, himself, feels the way he does, he'd soon find another like it, because just now something inside of him likes that crowd and what it stands for.

So all you can do, little girl, is to let him go his own way, and if that way leads downhill, forget him. If it doesn't—if he wakes up and wants to stage a comeback—then you can stand by and encourage him, if he hasn't already wrecked his health and forfeited your help.

She Literally Fell Into Feature Writing, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

It is a literalism when I say that I fell down on my first assignment as a reporter.

The paper sent me to the county hospital to question a girl who shot herself over some man.

Arriving at her bedside, I felt suddenly faint. Fearing that I'd fall on her, I staggered out and fell in the hall.

An interne and a nurse found me, tossed me on a rolling cot, and gave me bitter medicine.

Coming to, I found I was being listed as a new case.

When I proved I was a reporter, they shrieked with laughter, and let me go.

Returning to my paper, green of face, with no story, the editor was so mad he made me—a feature writer!

Madge's Father Offers to Join in Search

Mary's only comment when I handed her the telegram I had written to Hugh Grantland was to say quietly, "I'll send this and no one shall see it." But at the door she turned hesitatingly.

"What about Ronald, Auntie Madge?" she asked. "Ought we to wire him at New Haven? He'll be crazy over this, all the more because I'm sure he didn't forgive Marion before he went back."

"That isn't in our hands, Mary," I said regretfully. "Mary and Ronald are not engaged you know, and we can do nothing. The Brixtons will notify him if they wish him to come down."

"I suppose so," Mary said, but there was distinct rebellion in her tone. She opened the door, and was partly through it, when she came back in and asked tensley:

CHIEF NOTIFIED

"Oh, Auntie Madge! What do you think has happened?"

"I don't know, Mary," I answered, "but we can think of that on the way down. Just now we mustn't waste a minute. Is your bag packed?"

"I always keep it partly packed," she rejoined, "and it will take me about 90 seconds to throw the last things in. I've laid out all Mrs. Underwood's things on the bed in her room, beside the bag. I'll hurry back and help you."

But by the time she returned I had my bag packed, closed and strapped, Lillian's all ready for the final closing, with a mental inventory of everything in it ready for recital to her, and Dicky's in the same condition. I had kept my ears open for Lillian's telephone conversation, but there was a slight delay in the service, and I had finished and come out into the living room before I heard her say:

"Chief, is this you?"

I know that she was talking with my father on his private wire—he always has indulged himself in that luxury—and that thus we could keep all knowledge of this catastrophe from the rest of the household. I gazed at her in astonishment as with no hint of anguish, or even excitement, save for a certain strange roughness in her voice, she told him in the fewest possible words of the disappearance of Marion and Carolyn from the school, and of our imminent departure for Whitney Hall.

TALKS TO FATHER

"Harry is getting hold of Wynne and Brock," she said. "They will be down there tomorrow morning. But I wanted your advice. What do you think?"

She stopped abruptly and her face lightened as she listened to his comments at the other end of the wire.

"Oh!" she ejaculated. "That will be wonderful, Madge!" turning to me, "your father says he will be down there in the morning also. Yes," turning back and listening intently—"yes, I'll tell them that. I think so, too. Do you want to talk to Madge?"

She held out the receiver to me and I took it, saying as I did so "Hello father dear; are the children all right?"

"They couldn't be better," he assured me. "Everything is going splendidly. I shall tell Katherine about this, but not your mother-in-law. Where can Katherine get us by telephone if she needs us?"

I gave him the telephone number of Whitney Hall, and heard his voice like a benediction:

"Good night, darling; I'll see you tomorrow."

"Good night," I said, and hung up the receiver. Lillian came back from the next room as I did so.

"What did you put in my bag?" she asked.

I recited the contents to her, and she checked them off on her fingers.

"Perfect!" she exclaimed. "There's room for one more gown and an extra sweater, and I'll put them in now. Will you find out if the rest are ready?"

START FOR SCHOOL

She was taxing every bit of her strength to keep her self-control, and I was glad, indeed, when Dicky and Mary came into the room together, Dicky carrying Harry's bag.

"All set with the luggage?" Dicky asked.

"Yes," I said, for Mary had dashed into the bedroom and, having experience with her swiftness of movement, I knew that my answer would be true of her in another minute.

"Then," Dicky said, "I'll telephone for a bellboy and also see that the car is at the door.

"You can save your energy," Mr. Underwood said from the door. The car is ready and the bellboys are here. Get on your wraps and we'll start."

It was less than five minutes before the car rolled away from the hotel with Harry Underwood in the driver's seat and Dicky beside him. Lillian, Mary and I were on the back seat of the big seven-passenger car.

We were going through the Holland Tunnel when Lillian spoke, for the first time since we had left the hotel.

"Ask Harry, Dicky," she said tensely, "just what Dr. Barnes said over the telephone."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

What is known as the dowager's hump—what an expression—can be pounded into nothingness by a massage operator who has strong hands, determination and endless energy. The roll just below the back of the neck is grasped in the palms, rolled and kneaded. Adipose structure breaks. Towels wrung out of ice cold water are slapped on to create firmness of tissue and muscle.

Cereals are what the skinny girls need. A large portion for breakfast with plenty of sugar and cream. Puts fat on the ribs, pads out the elbows, makes cushions where cushions should be. To gain weight eat the usual amount of food each meal, top off with a glassful of milk and cream, half and half. Never go to bed hungry. Do not exercise after becoming conscious of a feeling of fatigue.

Contracting the muscles of the face, sending flesh into folds, are practices that produce wrinkles. Many wrinkles are self-inflicted. Frowning makes them, so does lifting the eyebrows, opening the eyes wide to express surprise. Narrowing the eyes digs crow's feet into surrounding tissues. When lines first appear, facial gymnastics must cease, the skin surface be anointed with a heavy cream, tapped briskly with finger tips. Ironing with ice is a helpful treatment.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Wedding Present

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—My old boy friend is going to get married to a girl I have never met. I have known him five years. He will marry on his birthday. Should I send him some kind of present? If so, what? Should I send the girl anything?

2—When I bring a young man into our home and I find my mother home, should she rise when I introduce the young man, or should she remain seated?

3—Should a girl send her boy friend just a card on Christmas, or should she send something more if the young man is more than just an acquaintance, or shouldn't she send anything?

1.—If you are invited to the wedding, and if you wish to send a present, it will be thoroughly correct for you to do so. It's a question of your own wish, really.

But the present must be addressed to the bride-to-be, and sent to her at her home, for all wedding presents are sent to the bride-to-be. And the present should be one for the home, not a personal one.

2—Yes, your mother rises when you and the young man enter the room, for she is the hostess.

3—All of this sending of cards or presents, both or either or neither, is a question of one's wish. The card greeting is a charming one, and enough. Or a gift may be sent, if the length of the friendship warrants, and if the present is in good and appropriate taste. Books are excellent gifts in these cases, and we can, of course, always find appropriate ones for the person and the occasion. Or a carton of cigarets, or a desk accessory, or some white linen handkerchiefs, plain or monogrammed.

Household Hints

Salt added to the whites of eggs when whipping for meringue or cake-making enables them to stiffen more quickly.

Methylated spirit and blacklead mixed into a paste and applied with flannel is excellent for cleaning greasy stoves and grates.

Chamois leather gloves should be mended with fine wool instead of cotton. This does not tear the leather so easily.

Contract Bridge

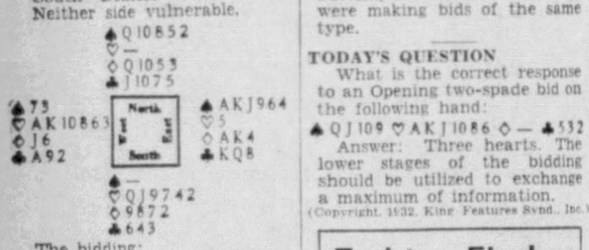
HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Remedy for Bluff Bidding

Unquestionably, the most effective remedy for a bluff bid, which is popularly known as a "psychic," is to administer a sound penalty to the players who think they can violate with impunity the laws governing defensive strength in making Opening bids. The player who lets his play or his bidding become wooden is an easy prey to bluff bidders, but bluff or psychic bids should have behind them some solid values if they are not to be heavily penalized, as two young Contract players in New York learned recently to their sorrow on the hand below:

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠ (1)	Double (2)	2 ♡ (3)	Double (4)
Pass (5)	Pass (6)	2 ♠ (7)	Double (8)
3 ♡ (9)	Double	3 ♠ (10)	Double
4 ♡ (11)	Double	4 ♠ (12)	Double
5 ♡ (13)	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—A terrible bid, viewed from any angle.

2—A strategic Double before a heart bid.

3—Expecting a heart bid and trying to avert it by bidding it himself, with a refuge in spades, if doubled.

4—Intuition told East there was something in the well-known wodopile, and he doubled to find out.

5—Gleefully thinking, "Well, this is going to be good."

6—And who wouldn't?

7—Setting things right again.

8—"Ain't we got fun!"

9—Sorry he bid the spades in the first place.

10—"Why doesn't partner understand my strategy?"

11—Foaming at the mouth.

12—Panicky by this time, and feeling they would be better in spades if partner had any at all.

13—Determined to right the wrong he committed in the first place.

North somehow managed to take 3 tricks. East and West, however, jotted down a penalty of 2,200 points in the honor score, and I wish I could add that their adversaries had taken the lesson sufficiently to heart, but only a few hands later they were making bids of the same type.

TODAY'S QUESTION

What is the correct response to an Opening two-spade bid on the following hand:

♠ Q J 10 9 ♡ A K J 10 8 6 ◇ — ♣ 5 3 2

Answer: Three hearts. The lower stages of the bidding should be utilized to exchange a maximum of information.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Simple but striking, is an ensemble of beet red wool crepe worn with a capelet of black Persian lamb, reaching only over the shoulder and made with a short, upstanding collar.

A detached air will be visible on most of the fur-trimmed wraps this season, since most of the furs can be worn with other things. A wrap of black velvet cut on long, sweeping lines has white fox cuffs that are detachable. Also there is a removable cape of the velvet trimmed with a double border of white fox. This could be worn alone with an evening frock.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Duke Scores Tell Little.

BLUFFITES MAY KEEP WASH-JEFF BUSY

THOUGH THE PANTHERS are in Philadelphia, where they appear likely to smear Penn's clean slate, and Carnegie Tech is taking a week off, football fans of the Pittsburgh district will not be left without a worthwhile attraction tomorrow. For Duquesne is to tangle with W. & J. at Forbes Field, and while no championships are at stake on the outcome, there is in prospect an old-fashioned scrap that ought to produce lots of sultry action before a decision is reached.

Nick DeCarbo

The schools met on the gridiron only once before. That was on October 13, 1928, in Washington, when the Dukes won, 12 to 6. This year the Presidents, beaten only by Detroit, would appear to have an edge by reason of having defeated West Virginia Wesleyan 20 to 0, whereas Wesleyan beat Duquesne, 7 to 6. But on the other hand Wesleyan lost to West Virginia University 14 to 0 and the Dukes beat the Mountaineers 3 to 0. So it will be seen that you can't go by previous scores. Besides, the Dukes are better than they were at the start as the result of added experience and natural development, with Nick DeCarbo now one of the best linemen in the district and a new fullback of parts found in Arthur Strutt. The Bluffites may keep the Presidents plenty busy.

NOW THAT YOU'VE heard it explained from all other angles, listen to what the scouts who were present here last Saturday reported on Notre Dame's defeat: They say it was due to tactical mistakes that never were corrected, more than to anything else. In the old days, when the Irish had exceptionally fast left halfbacks, like Jack Elder and Christy Flanagan, the defense always had to look out for one wide play to a game.

That might be all, but it would be enough. As a result, the defense had to spread wide to protect against that one sweep. This wide line then permitted Notre Dame to use the closer attack, hitting between the end and tackle.

PITT USED THE same defense, and Notre Dame, either for lack of a wide attack or failure to use it, banged into it all afternoon. Some think that the South Benders might have widened the Panther line if they had split their ends a little more. They were closer than ever.

Apparently, however, the Notre Dame ends were taking their positions from the Pitt tackles, who were in closer than formerly. This permitted the Panther ends to get outside the Irish terminals a little and bang them right into the play. It is suggested that if the Notre Dame flanks had moved out farther, the Pitt ends, perhaps, would have moved out with them, thus opening up the old space between end and tackle.

WITH FIVE MEN in the backfield, dropping back a little deeper with each down, and with an end driving through unbothered to rush the passer, Notre Dame's overhead game also was blasted. While Notre Dame failed to cross up Pitt's defense with wide plays, the Panthers won the game by catching the Irish end in too close on Sebastian's run. After using the single wing-back formation for a time, Pitt went into a double wing-back, and Notre Dame failed to widen out for it. Admitting that Sebastian deserves full credit for a clever run, the scouts say the defense slip was what made it possible.

Lew Hinchman

CAPT. LEW HINCHMAN, of Ohio State, son of Bill Hinchman, Pirate baseball scout, is voted the year's foremost injury-stricken gridder. First he suffered an injured hip, then an attack of lumbago, next he was hurt in an automobile smash and a bruised back followed.

Hinchman's fifth and latest injury was an unusual one. A dentist's drill slipped and cut Lew's tongue so severely that four stitches were necessary. In spite of all his bad breaks, the Buckeye captain has played in every game thus far and his latest misfortune is not expected to keep him out of the Northwestern contest tomorrow.

BROWN HAS A tough schedule ahead, the hardest in the East, meeting Holy Cross tomorrow, Columbia the following Saturday and Colgate on Thanksgiving Day. All three defeated the Providence team last year, and all three, like Brown, still have perfect records for 1932.

But Tuss McLaughry looks to have as good a chance to come through undefeated as any rival.

THE OUTSTANDING INTERSECTIONAL game tomorrow will see St. Mary's, from the Moraga Hills near Berkeley, Cal., tangling with Fordham in New York. Two years ago the Galloping Gaels beat Fordham 20 to 12, and another jolt for the East would appear probable tomorrow. The advance of St. Mary's in recent years is a monument to the coaching wizardry of Slip Madigan. When he took charge, the school had only 200 pupils, just a handful of football material and hardly enough equipment to go around. Slip has built it up to more than 800 pupils, put the team in the front ranks and demonstrated repeatedly that he is one of the greatest coaches in the land.

MADIGAN'S VISIT TO the East may be expected to revive stories of an impending coaching change at Notre Dame, where Slip formerly played under Knute Rockne as a guard. It has been rumored that both Jess Harper and Hunk Anderson are to be dropped by Notre Dame, and that their duties will be combined in one job. While asserting that Anderson's post is safe, it seems that Harper himself may be on the way out, as well.

Madigan is said to be the first choice for the post, with Jim Phelan, Washington mentor, second, and Adam Walsh, Yale line coach, third. If the truth were known about Notre Dame's preference, it might be disclosed that the real choice is located not a million miles from Pittsburgh.

EVEN IF CHICAGO doesn't get part of baseball's world series again next year, there will be plenty of fall sport for residents and visitors in the way of football features, as it is proposed to make the Windy City the scene of several outstanding games on account of the holding of the world fair there.

Tony Canzoneri

Among the big grid attractions planned for Chicago in 1933, in addition to the regular home schedule of the Maroon, are games between Stanford and Northwestern, Chicago and Dartmouth, Illinois and Army, and Notre Dame and Southern California.

WHEN TONY CANZONERI enters the ring in New York tonight for a 15-round battle in defense of the world lightweight championship against Billy Petrolle, one of the greatest fights in that class since the Benny Leonard-Ritchie Mitchell thriller of 11 years ago will be in prospect. The principals are just about the hardest two men in the game to bet against, and no more difficult task than picking the winner has confronted fight followers in an age. Had the bout been staged on the original date, August 8, the dope would have favored Petrolle. But now nobody knows whether or not the job of reducing to 135 pounds in cool weather has weakened Billy, and besides he has been out of action so long that he may not be on his best edge. Solely on account of this uncertainty about Petrolle, whereas his opponent is known to be in top form, the better chance by a shade must be conceded to Canzoneri.

TWO UNBEATEN TEAMS CLASH IN FEATURE

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—A captainless University of Pittsburgh football squad, which has beaten the Army and Notre Dame and played a scoreless tie with Ohio State in its last three games, arrived here this morning to do battle with another undefeated eleven, that of the University of Pennsylvania, at Franklin Field tomorrow afternoon.

Paul Reider, star back and leader of the Panthers, was left behind in Pittsburgh when the squad departed last night. He is not in playing condition and took advantage of an opportunity to go through some examinations in his studies today. He will leave tonight and join his teammates tomorrow morning, and will be in uniform on the bench, but will not enter the game. Warren Heller, all-America candidate, will act as captain from his left halfback position.

Hailed throughout the East as the wonder team of the year, Pitt is very much on the well-known spot. Penn is primed, the folks of Philadelphia are primed, and there is imminent danger of a sellout of the mammoth capacity of the Quakers' football arena, located on the west side of the placid Schuylkill River.

WARNER SYSTEM TEAMS

It will be a case of the Warner system vs. the Warner system when the teams from the two large universities of the eastern and western ends of the state lock horns in their first meeting since 1925 and their eleventh all told. Both Dr. Jock Sutherland, the Pitt coach, and Harvey Harman, mentor of the Red and Blue, were proteges of Pop Warner at the University of Pittsburgh. Jock was a member of the 1916, 1917 and 1918 Panther teams, playing a guard position; Harman was a tackle on the 1919, 1920 and 1921 teams of the Blue and Gold. Both have played for Pitt against Penn.

The invading hosts were besieged by newspaper reporters and photographers of the Philadelphia papers upon their arrival. After posing for pictures and submitting to interviews, they were hustled off to the Manufacturers' Club, outside the city limits, where they will work out this afternoon in seclusion, remaining at the club until time to leave for the playing field at noon tomorrow.

Pitt will send upon the field at the start the same lineup that was used throughout the first half against Notre Dame at the Pitt Stadium last Saturday. This means that the line will be intact, with Joe Tormey at center, and that Miller Mungas, sophomore quarterback, will bark the signals, with Sebastian at right halfback in place of Capt. Paul Reider, Warren Heller at the other half and Izzy Weinstock at fullback.

PENN PRIMED FOE

Penn is in good shape for the battle following its under-wraps 14-0 victory over the Navy here last week. It will be able to start its strongest lineup, with Eddie Masavage at quarterback, Don Kellett and Ed Lewis at the halves and Carl Perina at fullback. Kellett and Perina both are excellent punters, as also is George Munger, Kellett's relief man. Penn plays a smart kicking game. Kellett kicked out of bounds inside the 10-yard line four times against the Navy.

In Roy Engle, Coach Harman, of Penn, claims he has the best center of the year in the East. His entire team is a veteran aggregation, which will be riddled by graduations next June. The probable lineup:

PITT.		PENN.
Dailey	L. E.	Burnett
Cuba	L. T.	Sokolis (C.)
Hartwig	L. G.	Wilson
Tormey	C.	Engle
Onder	R. G.	Yablonski
Walton	R. T.	Colehower
Skladany	R. E.	Hemeon
Mungas	Q.	Masavage
Heller (A-C.)	L. H.	Kellett
Sebastian	R. H.	Lewis
Weinstock	F. B.	Perina

A. A. U. May Levy Admission Tax For Olympics

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The American Olympic committee may be relieved of its quadrennial task of raising funds to finance the participation of American teams in the Olympic games.

Under the terms of an amendment drawn up for consideration at the national convention of the Amateur Athletic Union here Nov. 20, 21 and 22, a 3 per cent levy, to be known as the "Olympic tax," would be made on admissions to all athletic events sanctioned by the A. A. U. Should the tax be approved, it is expected there will be no necessity for the American Olympic Committee to make its appeal for funds in each Olympic year. This year only a part of the $350,000 asked for was obtained, forcing curtailment of some American teams.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: CHAINED KNOWLEDGE—The Chained Library of Grantham, which is situated in a room over the south porch of the Grantham Paris Church, was founded by the Rev. Francis Trigge in 1598. Owing to the scarcity of books, a printed volume in those days frequently exceeded the value of a farm. Books, being easily movable, had to be chained to their shelves to guard them against theft. England and Holland still preserve a number of ancient chained libraries.

TOMORROW: AN AIR PILOT WHO NEVER HAD SEEN A PLANE.

CANZONERI 2-1 FAVORITE

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The scourge of the lightweight and welterweight divisions, Billy Petrolle, gets his reward in the shape of a 15-round battle with Tony Canzoneri for the world lightweight championship in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Despite his sensational record over the past two seasons, Jack Hurley's "Little Old Man" from Duluth is a short-ender in the betting which favors Champion Tony at odds as high as 2 to 1.

The betting fraternity evidently seriously doubts Petrolle's ability to make the weight without weakening himself and likewise questions his complete recovery from an elbow injury that forced postponement of the bout, originally scheduled for outdoors.

For this fistic "natural," a duel between two popular, hard-working, spectacular glovemen, a close-to-capacity crowd of 20,000 is expected to jam into the Garden and produce a gate of about $90,000.

Canzoneri completed his training without any weight worries at all, scaling 133 pounds after his final workout. Petrolle likewise has cut his poundage to within striking distance of the class limit of 135 pounds and expected to tip the beam at no more than 134½ pounds when he hopped on the scales at the New York State Athletic Commission today.

Apparently headed for the fistic scrapheap a few years ago, Billy started a comeback campaign two years ago by outpointing Canzoneri at Chicago. Since then he has knocked out Eddie Ran, Billy Townsend, King Tut, and Bat Battalino and outpointed Jimmy McLarnin and Ray Miller, among others.

Canzoneri likewise has been virtually invincible since he knocked out Al Singer in one round to win the lightweight title. In the three title defenses he has made so far, Tony has knocked out Jack (Kid) Berg, in three rounds, outpointed the Englishman decisively in a return match, and defeated Kid Chocolate on points.

Keck to Cover Penn Game And Canzoneri Fight

Killing the proverbial two birds with one stone, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will bring to its readers first hand stories of the Pitt-Penn football game at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, tomorrow and the Tony Canzoneri-Billy Petrolle 15-round bout for the world lightweight championship in Madison Square Garden, New York, tonight, written by its sports editor, Harry Keck.

Keck accompanied the Panthers when they left for Philadelphia last night. He will cover their practice in the Quaker City today and then proceed to New York for the fight, returning to Philadelphia tomorrow morning.

Penn looms as a formidable foe for the conquerors of Notre Dame, and the eyes of the entire football world will be on this battle, just as they were on the Panthers' tilt with the Irish.

Petrolle, because of his punch, long has ranked as the leading contender for the lightweight championship, and his battle with Canzoneri promises to be a thriller.

Read tomorrow's and Sunday's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph for these stories of two spectacles of the sports arena.

South High defeated Schenley in a Section I, City League gridiron clash yesterday afternoon on the Langley High School field, 13 to 0.

The first score came in the second period, Spotovich hurling a long pass to Czlapinski for the touchdown. Grad plunged through center for the extra point. Uniontown Court Card to Stand

CORAOPOLIS, Pa., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Faced with threats from Uniontown High School that it would withdraw from the basketball division of the W. P. I. A. L. unless the winter schedule is changed, George W. Cassler, chairman of the basketball committee, said last night he did not see how a change can be made.

Officials of Uniontown maintain schools listed as their opponents will not draw as large crowds as other schools which the officials claim make up more "logical" opposition.

CUE TOURNEY STARS TIED

The Harry Oswald-Billy Greenwood match at 7:30 this evening in the local sectional elimination three-cushion billiard tournament, which opened in the Crookston rooms, East Liberty, Monday and will be concluded tonight, may decide the local winner and the man who will compete in New York next week for the right to play for the national three-rail title.

Greenwood and Oswald are tied today, with five victories and one defeat each. Both have two matches to play today, Greenwood facing Kish at 3:30 this afternoon and Oswald opening the day's program with a match with Seaback at 1:30. The program will be completed with the Kish-Mackin match at 9:30.

Yesterday, Greenwood defeated Seaback, the New York star, 50 to 35, in a short 36-inning match and then downed Mackin, 50 to 43. Oswald, playing but one match, defeated Kish, 50 to 23. Mackin downed Seaback, 50 to 47, in a close 88-inning affair. Oswald had the high run of the day, a string of eight.

COACHES PLAN FINAL CHECK ON ATTACKS

By JESS CARVER

Preparations for tomorrow's clash at Forbes Field between the Dukes and Wash-Jeff reached the tapering-off stage today in the rival camps. With both coaches, Layden on the Bluff, and Hank Day at Little Washington, more or less satisfied with the defensive strength of their elevens, final drills were designed for this afternoon to check the attacking machinery.

Despite the fact that the locals will enter the contest no better than even choices and that they'll be meeting an eleven sporting a superior record for the season, the psychology of the game favors the Presidents. The Dukes have no one but themselves to blame for this. Not this particular crowd of Dukes, perhaps, but the Kelleher-Benedict-Donnelli-Pratt-Lally-Silverstein-McCarthy crowd of 1928, who so uncermoniously hung a 12-to-6 defeat on the Red and Black that year right in their own back yard.

W.-J. AFTER REVENGE

No Wash-Jeffer in the world has forgotten that defeat, or permitted a Wash-Jeff footballer to forget it, and the team that takes the field for the Washington school tomorrow will be so determined to secure revenge, ample revenge, for that '28 defeat.

Only one man who was in the starting lineup for the Dukes early in the season, and who battled through the game with West Virginia and started against Pitt, has survived the shakeup given the backfield by Coach Layden. That one is Ben Pawlina, who'll go at right halfback tomorrow. DeCoster will replace Sullivan at quarterback; McDonald will take DeLuca's place at left halfback, and Art Strutt is to take Zaninelli's place at fullback again.

It is this ball-toting corps that Layden hopes will have the speed and power to crash the cheval-de-frise of the Wash-Jeff defense.

On the line, Capt. Abele and Krankota, a neat set of performers, will be at the ends. Niccolai and Sinko will play the tackles, with Weinberg and DeCarbo at the guards, and Ciccone at center.

LINEUP UNCERTAIN

Reports out of Washington indicate that Coach Day is somewhat in a quandary regarding his selection of starting players. On the line, it looks like Miko, Ericus or Carl Johnson will be at the ends, Don Rhodes and Armstrong, the 218-pound giant, are pretty certain to start at the tackles, John Fife and either Bubenheim or Massock will be at the guards with Gray the likely choice at center.

The backfield is presenting more of a problem. Shafer and Phil Port are in the quarterback race, Rometo, Zagray, Phillips, Furjanic and Rosso will handle the halfbacking, with King favored over Demedowitz, Deacle and Earisk for full back. The combination of Shaffer-Rometo-Zagray and King appears the one most likely to start.

Headley, veteran end, is the only prexy star seriously crippled and unlikely to see action.

From this point of vision the contest looks like a real old fashioned tossup, which means that one or the other of the elevens will get "hot" and win by 90 to 0.

The Tipoff

Everything, including Brew Jackson's prediction, tenor voice, is set for the Duke's Homecoming celebration, which gets under way on the Bluff tonight with a smoker and bonfire. The smoker will be held in the gym. Speakers of the evening include Frank P. (Mac) McDermott, Duquesne coach in 1926 and 1927; Head Coach Layden and his freshmen mentor, Buff Donelli; John Holohan, graduate manager of athletics; Rev. J. J. Calnnan, president of the university, and various prominent members of the Duquesne alumni body, who'll be called on for impromptu talks by Martin Flanagan, president of the Alumni Association.

At noon tomorrow a Homecoming luncheon will be held at the P. A. A. A dinner dance is scheduled at the Plaza restaurant tomorrow evening after the ball game. McDermott will be the guest of honor at the luncheon.

It was six years ago that Brown had its famous team of "Iron Men," but Bob Chase, quarterback who weighs only 162 pounds, is carrying on the tradition. He played every minutes of the Yale, Tufts and Harvard games and in the Bruins' five contests he has toted the ball 463 yards.

Paul Starrie, Detroit end, has decided that he is not a second Red Grange. Starrie tried Grange's famous "leaman" during summer, lugging 400-pound cakes in an ice plant. He lost so much weight and energy that it was not until after his trainer prescribed a good rest that he began to work up to his present post as a regular.

If Coach Cann keeps changing the New York University lineup the Violets' line and backfield will be almost interchangeable. As it stands now the ends are Bill McNamara and Maynard White, while Bob McNamara and John White are first string backs.

The Pitt Freshmen battle Kiski's Preppers at Saltsburg this afternoon in the annual Homecoming Day game for the Kiski eleven. In the best physical condition they've attained this season, Kiski hopes to upset the Panther Cubs, a task that would hardly figure as easy under the best of conditions.

For the first time in many years, Geneva and Grove City clash tomorrow on the gridiron with one eleven, the Covenanter, a big favorite. Usually, Geneva-Grove City tussles are regarded as tossups, but this year, the Genevians appear to have a decided edge in all departments.

SCHOOL CONFERENCE SUCCESS DESPITE REVERSALS

CLASS AA RACE MAY GET NEW MEMBERS

By JULIUS LEVIN

Despite the reversals suffered by several members of the class AA High School Conference in its first season as an organization, sponsors of the double A group are well pleased with the results obtained so far and indications are that the higher classification will be continued among the top-notchers in Western Pennsylvania football.

The only fault that can be found with the double A circuit is the fact that it is not a representative one, the Beaver Valley, always a hot-bed for scholastic football, not being included in the membership.

The fact that the Beaver Valley is without membership in the Conference, however, is no fault of the sponsors as several of the schools operating in that section were invited to sit in at the organization meeting, but failed to attend.

MAY REVISE LIST

Schools such as Beaver Falls, Ambridge, Latrobe and Donora have proved their right to be classed with the best in Western Pennsylvania scholastic football circles and should be included in the double A group.

The present 12 members of the Conference, despite the records they have compiled so far this season, are without doubt the standard-bearers of scholastic football. Several of them, it is true, are not up their usual strength, but their lean football seasons can be counted on the fingers of one hand.

Who would have predicted prior to the opening of the season that teams playing under the banners of Washington, Monessen, Wilkinsburg, Charleroi and Turtle Creek Union would be found trailing the procession?

AIDS SMALL SCHOOLS

The formation of the class AA conference has accomplished a lot for high school football. It gives the little fellows a chance to bask in the spotlight. Heretofore the schools now enrolled in the double A group have monopolized the honors, but the present campaign finds new interest among the fans as newcomers are setting the pace in class A and class B.

While it is admitted that several members of the double A group have fallen before teams of lower classification, the coaches of the 12 schools in the conference still have faith in their organization. The sponsors, no doubt, will take steps to improve the circuit at the annual winter meeting when an effort will be made to make the organization a representative one.

One thing is certain, the formation of the conference has done away with setup schedules among the topnotchers. All schools enrolled must play at least four games with double A opponents, thus assuring a small list of title contenders at the close of the season.

Scholastic fans in Western Pennsylvania have an attractive schedule of games in store for them this afternoon and tonight. The City League holds the spotlight this afternoon with most of the members of the two sections slated for action.

FIFTH AT ALLDERDICE

Fifth Avenue and Allderdice clash at Allderdice in the only Section I duel, while the Section II frays find Oliver at Langley and Perry at Carrick.

Two local schools play non-league games, the feature one finding Westinghouse at Mt. Lebanon. Allegheny plays at Shady Side Academy.

The Western Pennsylvania card is featured by the annual battle between Canonsburg and Trinity High, of Washington, at College Field, Washington. The game is being played in conjunction with homecoming day at Trinity and a large group of alumni is expected to attend.

The Burgettstown Union eleven, one of the best class B teams in the district, makes its first appearance of the season in the Pittsburgh district by opposing Dick Meyers' Peabody aggregation at Peabody.

Three contenders for the class B title are slated for action today against tough opponents. East Pittsburgh will attempt to break the Edgewood streak at Edgewood. Glassport will be out to improve its standing against Pitcairn at Pitcairn, while Springdale risks its title hopes against Oakmont at Springdale.

Buddy McArthur Defeats Roberts

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Johnny Roberts, of Huntington, light-heavyweight champion of West Virginia, lost a 10-round decision to Buddy McArthur, of Fairmont, here last night, but did not risk his title.

McArthur early lead and [illegible] catch up. McArthur went down to one knee in the eighth, but came back to make that round even. Roberts weighed 168, McArthur, 175.

Jimmy Reilly, 136, of Fairmont, won a decision in six rounds over Battling Murphy, 135, of Arden, W. Va. Tommy Blankenship, 137, of Farmington, won the referee's decision over Billy McCale, 140, of Fairmont, in four rounds. Ken Notter, 139, of Worthington, won the decision over Dick Woodward, 135, of Fairmont, in four rounds.

Pitt-Penn Game Route Outlined

Football fans who drive to Philadelphia to witness the Pitt-Pennsylvania game at Franklin Field tomorrow, today were advised by the Touring Bureau of the Pittsburgh Motor Club to use Route 30, the Lincoln highway, over the entire distance. The trip is 294 miles over concrete and macadam highways in good condition and there are no detours. Motorists who use the William Penn highway, U. S. Route 22, will encounter two detours.

To reach the field, drivers should continue on the Lincoln highway, which is Lancaster avenue in Philadelphia, to the intersection of Chestnut street. Franklin Field is one block south of this intersection. Approximately eight hours driving time are required to reach Philadelphia from downtown Pittsburgh.

CRACK SOCCER TEAMS CLASH

Clan Douglas and Mt. Lebanon provide the outstanding game in the Central Soccer League tomorrow afternoon, these outstanding contenders for title honors clashing at the Mt. Lebanon grounds.

Both clubs need a victory to remain in the running with Lawrenceville. On form, the Luxbacher outfit looms the favorite.

Other games in the circuit find Union Switch, with a very much improved lineup, traveling to Leslie Park to meet the German Sport Club; McKeesport making its longest trip of the season to Ambridge, and the Lawrenceville eleven taking on Westinghouse at Swissvale.

Three interesting games will be flashed in the Keystone League Sunday. Bridgeville travels to South Park to meet the Zoneys.

This should prove to be the outstanding game of the day. A local affair will be played at Morgan when Cecil tackles Millers Run. The third game is carded at Monongahela, Curry facing Valley Camp.

Goals From Field Rare in District

By Howard Harpster

Geneva College Coach; All-America Quarterback at Carnegie Tech, 1928

Although it generally is recognized that the class of football played in Western Pennsylvania is at least on a par with that played in most sections of the country, and is outstanding when compared with many others, there is one phase of the grid game in which our teams are pitifully weak. As a matter of record, they as much as look down at this particular part of the game with disdain. I refer to the drop-kick and placement-kick, or to be more specific, to the attempt at kicking goals from the field of play.

It is true that a field goal only counts three points, but three points would have looked mighty good in a great many of the games played in this district in the past few seasons. In a closely contested game, a field goal has the same psychological effect as a touchdown, for a team which has been unable to score, often becomes panicky when the opponents score a field goal and its players realize that they must retaliate with a score themselves or admit defeat.

Mr. Harpster

FIELD GOALS FEW

With the exception of the Duquesne-West Virginia game this year when the Dukes won, 3 to 0, on a field goal by Sullivan, it has been a long time since any of the local teams have made any very serious efforts at kicking goals. In the last game of the 1926 season the writer lucked a couple of drop-kick goals against Notre Dame, and then because we didn't want to run a good thing into the ground I guess, we only tried one field goal in the next two seasons. In the past three seasons I can't remember of anyone at Carnegie Tech even attempting a field goal, and so unless my statistics are decidedly off, Tech has only tried about four field goals in the last six years.

In 1927, Booth, the Pitt fullback, made a placement kick from the field against Tech, and it is my impression that the Panthers have not made any since, and that they have attempted comparatively few. The writer is finishing his third year at Geneva and it was only two weeks ago that the Geneva team attempted its first field goal.

Why it is that teams in this section don't develop field goal kickers is beyond me, for kicking a field goal is the easiest way points can be scored in football. The kicker stands back of 10 men who are protecting him, and usually he has plenty of time to get the kick away. It's merely a matter of having had sufficient practice and being able to kick accurately.

Many times a team will find itself in front of the goal posts in scoring position, with fourth down and a few yards to go for first down. It would be a comparatively easy matter for a good kicker to step back and kick one over the cross bar for three points, yet most teams will attempt to make the yardage necessary for the first down, and oftentimes lose the ball and a chance to score.

FAVORS MORE ATTEMPTS

If a team has the ball close to the goal with last down and goal to gain, and it knows from experience that running the ball will be futile, if three points are enough to put it in the lead, I would certainly favor an attempt at a field goal rather than a forward pass, assuming of course that the kicker has some ability. Both result in touchbacks if they fail, and the field goal is the least difficult, and has the best chance of being good.

With the forward pass, there is the same chance that someone may break through and tackle the passer before he can find an open receiver. However, if the line holds, then the pass must be accurate. Even if it is correctly thrown there is always a big chance that one of the defensive backs will knock the ball down. If the pass is thrown properly and there is no defensive back to interfere, there is still the chance that the receiver may drop the ball. The pass then, has two more chances for failure than the kick.

Thus we vote for the kick for the reasons:

GRINS From the GRID

—By O. W. (Red) Severence—

NO. 22

Having played John Alden long enough in relating the favorite football stories of America's leading coaches, I've decided to end the series by "speaking for myself."

For keen humor and incomparable wit in time of deepest gloom, my personal nomination for "All-Time Wise-Cracker" goes to Vernon (Catfish) Smith, 1932 All-America end of the Georgia Bulldogs.

The Georgia team, which opened the season brilliantly by trouncing Yale for the third straight year, now was returning from California after its disastrous game with the University of Southern California.

To which Catfish Smith made the immortal reply:

ANDERSON SAYS GRID FATES FICKLE

By HEARTLY W. (HUNK) ANDERSON

Notre Dame Football Coach.

There are some items connected with coaching a football team that simply defy anticipation. I am thinking now of the unfortunate mishap which cost my friend, Howard Jones, the services of his great quarterback, Orv Mohler.

No one knows any better than I do how much Jones counted on the presence of Mohler in ball games for Southern California. He was more than a good mechanical quarterback. He was an inspiration and a leader. In all probability much of the stuff that Southern California was preparing for the critical games of its season was built around Mohler. And then all of a sudden, the mishap comes along and Mohler is lost to the team.

Most coaches, nowadays, are prepared to accept such breaks as these as part of the game. But when they do come along, they are very disconcerting just the same.

At Notre Dame, we have had our share of such things happen. They happened in Rockne's time, and they happened to us last year. Sometimes, I think football is the most uncertain game that we have.

You'll find a player at spring practice, who looks as if he is going to be very valuable. And when fall comes along, and real practice begins, he has either forgotten all the things he was shown in the spring or has lost the knack of putting them into execution.

Of course there is a balance struck in that direction. I have seen some players who were just ordinary in the spring, or even in their freshman years, come with a rush when least expected and fill in the job in fine style.

The case of Mohler, of course, is that of an accepted star. Everyone knew what he could do under any set of circumstances and most of all, his coach did. Howard Jones has my sympathy.

Coast Grid Star Hit-Run Victim

STOCKTON, Cal., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Struck down by the truck of a hit and run driver, Ellon (Smoke) Hamilton, star College of the Pacific football player, received a possible fracture of the skull and abrasions about the head and body last night.

Tom Cotter, another Pacific football player who was walking with Hamilton, said he believed the vehicle was driven by a Filipino.

MORGANO STOPS BLITMAN

EAGLES TO TRY FOR REVENGE OVER TUBERS

By TOM BIRKS

Bellaire sandlot football fans probably will revive old records when the McKeesport Olympics pull into town Sunday for the battle with the Eagles. Prior to the formation of the West Penn Conference, when the famous Olympics were making only rare trips away from the Tube City, Bellaire offered a large guarantee to get Fred Iverson and his champions into the Buckeye state.

When football is being discussed, naturally that game comes to the fore. This week, the fans will see another strong Olympic Club in action. Coach Bill Sullivan's team has more plays now than in the opening game of the season, when the Tube City contenders scored a touchdown to beat Bellaire.

Manager Bill Schultties is working hard with Coach Kramer to get the West View club in shape for the Rooney game. Art Rooney trying to keep his perfect record intact, will not take any chances. The Rooneys were considered lucky to beat West View in the last game.

At Rox Ranger field, Coach Hooks Carroll will send his Scott Morgan eleven out to try and put a crimp in the title aspirations of the Rangers. Scott Morgan's proteges are playing great football at present.

The Tarentum Firemen had an easy time with Beltzhoover last night in a game played under the lights at Legion Field, Tarentum, winning 31 to 0. One touchdown in the first period, two in the second and as many in the last brought the victory.

The lineup:

TARENTUM—31		BELTZHOOVER—0
Falcon	L. E.	Romolia
Pierson	L. T.	Bell
Kelster	L. G.	Craig
Laurent	C.	Marshall
J. Bishney	R. G.	Flock
Jule Bishney	R. T.	Mitchell
Swartzlangel	R. E.	Thier
Romeste	Q.
Factor	L. B.	Yoke

Score by quarters:

Tarentum	6	12	0	13	31

Guards—Rosenberg, Southern California, and Corbus, Stanford.

Center—Engle, Pennsylvania.

Marino Defeated By Arni Maurer

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Arni Maurer, hard-hitting bantamweight from Detroit, outpointed Tony Marino, of Pittsburgh, in a six-round bout here last night. Maurer weighed 118 pounds, Marino 117.

Lefty Gwynne, 118, Toronto, outpointed Pancho Linda, 115½, Philippines in five rounds; Ray Cooke, 124, Toronto, outpointed Tony Perrine, 117, Buffalo, in five rounds, and Bert Scala, 137, Pittsburgh, won a decision over Paul Amata, 161, Toronto, also in five rounds.

Pitt Team Guests At Dinner-Dance

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—A buffet supper and dinner dance will be held for the University of Pittsburgh football team at the Locust Club, located in the Ritz Carlton Hotel, at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow evening, under the auspices of the Eastern alumni of Pitt.

Both Jock Sutherland and Harvey Harman, rival coaches of Pitt and Penn, will attend, being Panther alumni. Alumni from New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, New York as well as from Pennsylvania will attend. Al Lefton is president of the alumni body.

Tech Frosh Set For W.-J.

Carnegie Tech's Plebe football team will make the final appearance of its short season tomorrow morning in Tartan Bowl, when the W. & J. Freshmen come here for their annual game. The game will start at 10:30 a. m., and will be ended in plenty of time for spectators to get to the Duquesne-W. & J. varsity tilt at Forbes Field.

Murray Armentrout, last year's Tech varsity captain, has worked hard with a small squad of Freshmen, and although he has yet to show a victory, he has developed several youngsters who should be good varsity prospects next year.

HASSETT VICTOR

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Dan Hassett, newcomer to the ranks of Philadelphia fighters, captured the feature bout of a boxing card here last night by winning an eight-round decision over Joe Raymond, of Baltimore. Hassett weighed 140½, Raymond eight pounds less. Johnny Lucas, 138½, of Camden, N. J., won the decision over Midget Fox, 134, of Conshocken, Pa., in the semi-final.

Mate Shows Speed In Pimlico Victory

BALTIMORE, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Mate, more like the Mate of 1931 than any other time this year, won his race as a 4-year-old yesterday, showing a clean pair of heels to seven classy rivals in a mile and 70-yard race at Pimlico.

In accounting for his initial victory in 15 trips to the post, the son of Prince Pal, which twice outstepped the mighty Twenty Grand last year, easily defeated Mrs. Payne Whitney's St. Brideaux, a stablemate of Twenty Grand, by three lengths. Andy Schuttinger's Speedy Pilate was third, another half-length to the rear.

Benswanger Talks At Franklin Fete

FRANKLIN, Pa., Nov. 4.—President William E. Benswanger of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Attorney Ben Giffen, of Pittsburgh, were the principal speakers at the annual baseball banquet held in the legion's headquarters here last night.

Nearly 200 guests were present, including officers and members of the four competing teams—the Elks, Franklin Trust Company, Exchange Bank and Rotary Club. Richard Benswanger, brother of the Pirate executive, was among the Pittsburghers in attendance.

WILD CARGO

Another Thrilling Story of the Jungle by The Author of "Bring 'Em Back Alive"

By FRANK BUCK
With EDWARD ANTHONY

passenger list) there should be considerable interest on the part of the help in the news that one of my tigers was sick. This animal was not well when I came on board, but I figured that a thorough worming would be good for what ailed it. The treatment left the big cat alarmingly weak—in fact, I had never before seen a husky full grown tiger go to pieces in just that fashion—and it began to look as if the animal were developing serious complications.

A situation of this kind is always unpleasant; but it's all part of the business of collecting live animals. In the 20 years I have devoted to this work, I have naturally had a certain percentage of losses, most of these occurring on shipboard, so I've always prepared for the worst when I put a load of live freight on board a vessel.

MANY RISKS

There are many contributing causes to such losses. Animals usually travel as deck cargo. If I happen to draw a ship that's low in the water, and then run into bad weather, with green seas coming over the sides, there are bound to be casualties. There can also be serious losses on a ship that rides high if I can't get the proper deck space aboard her. Storms raise the devil with deck cargo; and in a situation like this I have to gamble on the weather. Factors enter into the thing that often make it necessary to take a flyer on the first available boat. Waiting for the next good boat with the proper accommodations may prove to be a matter of weeks, a schedule-wrecking proposition that usually has to be passed up. Then one must also consider the fact that animals fresh from the jungle have a habit of dying even under first-class traveling conditions. Some of them are so delicately attuned that they cannot stand the sudden transition from the food they are used to in their natural state to the substitutes I am sometimes forced to use on shipboard.

This is by way of giving you a little peep into some of the risks connected with my business. And now let's get back to my sick tiger.

He kept getting worse and worse and it began to look as if there wasn't much chance of saving him. It soon became apparent to the Chinese help that Lal (who accompanied me on the trip) and I were using heroic measures to keep the animal alive, and there was naturally much excitement among the stewards and the crew.

The stewards were Hinan boys and the deck crew Cantonese. I hadn't been on board that boat very long when it became plain to me that the Hinan stewards and the Cantonese crew hated each other. Enmities between different races of Chinese are a very ordinary phenomenon and I saw nothing in the situation to get excited about.

ASKED FOR BODY

Both the Cantonese and the Hinans were helping me in my work on that glorified tub. The Cantonese assisted me in loading and placing my specimens, shifting cages when I thought that necessary, rigging up awnings over cages, etc. The Hinan boys helped me in such matters as boiling the great quantities of rice I needed for my birds and small animals. There was other food for my specimens that had to be cooked and these boys always responded cheerfully.

Once it became known to all the help on board that my tiger was not expected to live, I got more service than ever. The Cantonese and the Hinans, in other words, were in competition with each other for the remains. Each faction wanted to emerge with the gall bladder that meant so much good health to the lucky possessors.

One day the Cantonese bos'n came to me, and after standing first on one foot and then on the other, told me he understood my sick tiger was dying and that he would appreciate receiving the body. He volunteered to present me with the animal's skin if I would permit him to keep the body and remove the gall bladder. I promised to think the matter over and let him know—in which I showed real restraint, for I didn't like the idea of the fellow feverishly waiting for my tiger to die.

ANIMAL DIES

Shortly after this visit from the Cantonese bos'n I received a call from the Hinanese chief steward who, after bowing his way up to me in a series of near-somersaults, hemmed and hawed and finally reached the subject of my dying tiger. He, of course, also wanted the gall bladder. Somehow he didn't offend me nearly so much as the other applicant. He seemed to realize I felt badly over the prospect of losing the animal, and once I thought he was on the point of tears. Maybe all this proves is that Hinan boys are better actors than Cantonese; yet, on the whole, I liked him better than the too hard-shelled Cantonese bos'n.

Despite which I made no promises. I told this representative of the Hinan interests that perhaps we'd better wait for the tiger to die before disposing of his remains.

The morning after my visits from the Canton and Hinan emissaries my tiger decided to pass out of the picture. I couldn't help feeling that it was a shame to lose a thousand dollars' worth of tiger (a fair price for a specimen of this kind) especially after risking my neck, as I had, to get him out of the pit, in which I had trapped him, into a cage.

Lal and I yanked my tiger corpse out of his cage and deposited him on one of the hatches. Word of the death had not yet got out. As I stood there staring at the body and thinking what a pity it was that this animal had to die, the Hinan steward came along with some food supplies for my birds and small animals.

His eyes popped as he took a look at the dead jungle cat. Before he had a chance to say anything, I said, "Get your boys out and have 'em skin the tiger. Give me the skin and you can keep the gall."

Had this Hinanese just been handed a million dollars he could not have been more demonstrative. I thought he would kiss me.

Ben Bernie, Ed Wynn, Jessica Dragonette Lead Radio Poll

Coincidental with the coming political elections and the presidential "straws," America's radio stars are having their day... In the first annual nationwide Radio Star Popularity Poll, sponsored by the United-American Bosch Corporation, of Springfield, Mass., the leaders so far are: Ben Bernie, orchestra leaders' division; Rubinoff, the instrumentalists; Graham McNamee, the announcers; Ed Wynn, the comedians; Sherlock Holmes, the actors; Amos 'n' Andy, the miscellaneous programs, and Jessica Dragonette and Rudy Vallee, the singers. Respectively, George Olsen, Little Jack Little, James Wallington, Jack Benny, the Country Doctor, the Slebbins Boys, Kate Smith and Lawrence Tibbett are close seconds in the various divisions.

Miss Dragonette

Don Bestor's latest brainchild, "Poor Me, Poor You," makes its air debut via NBC-WCAE tonight at 12:05.

Edward D'Anna is planning to return to the CBS chain with his 50-piece Niagara Falls Band for his sixth year of broadcasting soon.

Gene Carroll, of Gene and Glenn, has at last realized one of his pet ambitions . . . Six months ago he bought a clarinet and started practicing — and during the last week has been guest member of the orchestra on the Flying Fingers program. Gene reveals that he was forced to confine his efforts during the early stages of learning to the garage—but will probably even matters . . . because now he's threatening to become a tuba virtuoso . . .

"Clarence," the favorite dromedary on those "Caravan" programs, was one of the feature's most popular stars until a recent blessed event necessitated the changing of her name to "Clarice" . . . "Clarence" had been receiving almost as much fan mail as the actors, but it's dwindled a bit and now her dromedary baby, "Annabelle," gets most of it . . . Incidentally, that sound of dromedaries treading on soft desert sands is made by beating the palms on the chest while standing close to the microphone.

ON A TWO-LEGGED CHAIR AT A TWO-LEGGED TABLE!

Nature has built her principle of support on a four-square basis. Even man, two-legged creature that he seems, couldn't stand with his legs alone, stilt-like. He needs the four-square support of heel, toe, heel, toe, for balance.

It's the same with radio tubes. The four pillars in an Eveready Raytheon give the vital elements the sturdy support they need to remain in balance—with the jolts and jars of handling, installation, the vibrations from the dynamic speaker. All other tubes have only two supports!

Use Eveready four-pillar Tubes, and enjoy guarded accuracy of reproduction! Your dealer will demonstrate!

BEARS RETREAT AS STOCKS REBOUND

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.) — Bears found themselves down a blind alley in today's stock market, and prices rebounded smartly as they retraced their steps.

The almost complete cessation of selling in the previous session left the short interest a little uncertain, and as wheat developed a better tone today, bears found the market strongly against them. Prices surged up easily, with trading still in small volume. Gains of 2 to more than 4 points were numerous.

Brokerage quarters found many explanations for the brisk upswing, but most agreed that it reflected a retreat by an uneasy short interest. After the market had been hammered down to the resistance levels established on October 10, it showed no signs of breaking through, which in itself prompted covering. Also, brokers said, there were evidently many shorts, as well as longs, who desired to lighten their commitments until after election.

Conservative quarters in Wall street have regarded the bidding up of stocks on the prospect of a change in the prohibition laws with considerable skepticism, pointing out that guesses as to what companies might benefit seemed highly premature. Another factor in favor of the alcohol stocks, however, was the arrival of the season of increasing use in automobile radiators to prevent freezing. The farm implements quickly reflected a better tone in the wheat market. Rails were evidently influenced by gossip in brokerage quarters over the prospect of constructive developments from the work of the Coolidge committee.

The tenor of mercantile reviews was mixed. Dun's said the "undercurrent of businass revival is becoming stronger each week, and increases which were believed to be merely seasonal now give evidence of being permanent achievements in a definite forward movement." On the other hand, Bradstreet's said "from all quarters come reports of the virtual paralysis of business in the suspense preceding a major political decision. . . . The second factor which is sending chills and fevers down the spines of business and the security markets is the renewed decine in commodity prices."

GRAIN VALUES TURN UPWARD

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Upturns in grain prices formed the rule early today. Liverpool reported that the wheat market there was steadier, declines having brought forward more buyers. Scantiness of domestic receipts of wheat, together with increasing premiums, helped also to impart relative firmness to values. Opening ¼-½c higher, wheat afterward rose further. Corn started unchanged to ¼-⅜c up and subsequently advanced all around.

A let up of pressure to sell was a part of the wheat pit today, with better buying power contrasting with recent persistent urgency of orders to stop losses on future delivery holdings.

Some trade authorities predicted a general merchandising market in wheat, gradually attracting purchases of futures because of unusual low prices prevailing. Fairly aggressive buying of corn found offerings light, and aided rallies both of corn and oats prices.

Provisions reflected upturns in the value of hogs.

SLUMP STIRS INTEREST IN POLITICS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The American public seems to be fed up on depression, and is now ready for a change.

Perhaps boredom over poor business accounts for the unusual interest this year in politics.

Sir Ronald Lindsey, British ambassador to Washington, ascribed the recent riots in London to boredom.

Mr. Rukeyser

Perhaps there is something in the idea. Evidently the same thought was in the mind of John Hancock, the Wall street banker, who said that business would turn when people tire of remaining pessimistic.

The time element also operates to use up the accumulation of inventories in the family cupboard and bureau drawers. Recognizing this fact, Sir Arthur Salter, British economist, who recently arrived here from abroad, said:

His remark paraphrases Roger W. Babson's observation that a depression lasts only as long as it takes the average man to wear out two pairs of pants.

The stimulus from dynamic shortages offers a good setting for effecting sound economic policies, which will tend to widen purchasing power. This raises the question of a farm policy, which will end the pauperization of farmers, and also the issue of reabsorbing at least part of the unemployed in the cities.

Constructive policies have a far better chance of succeeding if timed when natural forces of supply and demand offer some encouragement.

The recent overemphasis on politics tends to promote the vicious tendency on the part of businessmen to look to Mamma Government for aid instead of to their own ingenuity.

What is needed is a revival of business venturesomeness and daring. Such qualities are all too [illegible] at present. Incidentally, [illegible] P. Chrysler, in spending [illegible].000 for re-tooling and other [illegible]ses in connection with bringing out a new model, has shown a commendable never-say-die spirit.

The chief near-term hope for economic relief through the bond market comes from the public utility operating companies, which, relatively, have kept up their earnings fairly well through the depression. Nevertheless, they have fallen down greatly in making the usual quota of necessary capital expenditures.

It has been estimated that as a group they have deferred nearly two-thirds of such work. Much of the expenditures will eventually have to be made in order to keep up the efficiency of plant.

Lennox Surprises Mother By Going to Boston To See Elizabeth

CHAPTER XIV.

Lennox in his own room had undressed and now sat in dressing gown and pajamas, writing a letter. Elizabeth should have a letter for the train. He wrote, his pen racing over the sheets. He wrote, "I love you." He wrote it in a hundred phrases. He wrote, "June is so far away—how can I let you go? You belong to me for always."

He waited a long time, when the last word had been written. His mother's light was out. He rose and went to the door between their rooms and listened. She was asleep; he could hear her breathing.

He opened his door, softly, and slipped down the hall, turned the bend and stopped before Elizabeth's room. Stooping, he pushed the thin wedge of paper under the small space at the sill.

Elizabeth saw it, that advancing square of white. A night light burned near her, a tiny candle flame floating in a saucer. She jumped from her bed, and Lennox, turning away, heard the little thud of her bare feet. He waited, and suddenly his heart rose into his throat and choked him terribly.

WANTED TO SEE HIM

Her door opened.

She'd flung a silken kimono about her, her pale hair fell to her waist, a shining veil, her eyes were wide, they were happy and without terror.

Lennox stepped across the sill and took her in his arms. After a moment he reached back, shut the door, quite automatically. The letter lay on the floor at their feet, unheeded. She clung to him, she was shaking. She said, over and over, "I stayed awake—I wanted you to come—to say good-bye—I stayed awake."

"I love you," he answered.

Entering the church had been a less holy thing than this stepping across her sill.

The great house was very hushed and dark. Downstairs a dying ember on the hearth flared up and for a moment the tinsel, exotic fruit of the Christmas tree sparkled. The star, the silver star, shone out, the waxen angel spread her wings in futile flight. The old house slept, secure in its inviolate traditions. Louisa Sheldon slept, heavily, and without dreams.

In Elizabeth's room the night light burned, a little flame of blue and gold. Somewhere, to the sound of sighing, a trap sprang. It was inevitable, it was pitiless.

LETTERS FROM ELIZABETH

The night light guttered, was gone. Elizabeth's room was a dark forest, profoundly silent, haunted by beauty and forgetfulness, the knowledge of mortality and the lonely wisdom of the flesh.

Louisa Sheldon had scant comfort of her son after Elizabeth's going. He was remote, very withdrawn. He had the eyes of a sleepwalker.

Only when her letters came did he awaken to life. They would lie there upon the hall table, waiting his return from the office, white or tinted envelopes, the address formed in a round, careful hand. Louisa, passing them on her way in and out, would avert her eyes, such temptation had they for her. What did Elizabeth find to say to him that he should carry the letters up to his room and lock himself in with them for, literally, hours?

Louisa's very fingers itched to tear them open, but she never as much as touched them. Where Rogers had put them they remained until Lennox claimed them. Her code was rigid and very curious.

Two weeks. Three weeks. Then Lennox appeared suddenly in her room, one Friday afternoon.

"I am going to Boston."

Synopsis

Mrs. Louisa Lennox Sheldon realized her most important dream seemed to be coming true when her son, Lennox, announces that he wishes to marry Elizabeth Howland, Mrs. Sheldon's companion. The proposal was made when the trio were returning from a tour of Europe. Two years before, Mrs. Sheldon had arranged to bring Elizabeth to her home and set the situation for a romance after the vigilant dowager had discovered signs that Lennox had participated in at least one student revel where gay girls were featured parties. She decided then he must marry young. The engagement is announced formally, Lennox enters his deceased father's office, and the lovers have to exchange written notes because Mrs. Sheldon is such a constant chaperon. Mrs. Sheldon decides that Elizabeth should spend several months with her people, in Boston, before the wedding.

Now Go On

She was setting French knots in a blouse she was making for Elizabeth. She fastened one before she spoke, keeping her eyes intent upon her work. Then she looked up, quietly.

"To Boston?"

"Yes. This afternoon. I've telegraphed Elizabeth."

"Elizabeth is ill?" she asked, evenly.

"No—but I want to see her. I—they can do without me Saturdays. I spoke to Simmons. I may have my week-ends, he said."

She opened dry lips to say, quite firmly, "This is sheer nonsense—you are not going."

But she said nothing. She had looked at him. For almost the first time she saw him—a man. She could not forbid him to come and go, as pleased her. Her heart pounded, she went quite ashen.

"I'll call Cousin Henrietta . . . back Sunday night—" and was going. As he reached the door, her color returned, her breathing was easier, she halted him with a question.

"Is it necessary?"

She was better. Lennox had grown so accustomed to her attacks that latterly he had treated them as a doctor does, quickly, efficiently, almost perfunctorily. He flung out, "I must see her. You understand."

She sat as he had left her, her hand to the quieting heart. She did not understand. But she was beginning to, dimly. Her eyes, always a little prominent, started with fear. Had she overreached herself? She thought, deliberately, of Elizabeth, reciting the qualities in the girl which had so suited her own plans. Youth, health, beauty, a sort of sweet stupidity, obedience. Upon what had she not reckoned, what unknown and unrecognized strength?

Presently she said to herself—this will pass——

"It was nothing," she said, briefly.

The shabby little house on the outskirts of Boston received Lennox happily. Elizabeth was a bright flame of welcome. Ella cried on his shoulder, fussed about him, made him comfortable. The two elder girls, handsome, rather clever, teased him, admired him.

"You came?"

"Could I stay away longer? I shall come every week-end."

She was radiant white with happiness.

"But your mother?"

"Am I not with her all week? Did you think you could keep me away until June? June! Oh, Elizabeth——"

He never shortened her name as her mother and sisters did, nor did he speak it crisply as did Louisa. He lingered over the syllables, he breathed them out in tenderness—Elizabeth—Elizbeth.

Cousin Ella believed in leaving young people, engaged young people, to their enchanted selves. They might walk on the Common, they might go out to Cambridge, they might go where they pleased. They could have the homely little living room to themselves in the long, cold evenings. She and the girls went to their rooms and left them there. Cousin Ella had been a happy wife, she had loved, she was tender toward lovers.

A sentimental little fool, Louisa Sheldon had called her more than once. That ridiculous marriage, a marriage into pinching and scrimping and worry, all because Harry Howland had had broad shoulders and yellow hair and a smile to draw the heart from a woman's side. Louisa had known him first, she had introduced him to Ella. Ella had been pretty then. Harry had had no eyes save for her. Louisa remembered him definitely, he had disturbed her. Then George Sheldon had come along, his eyes turned to Emmeline.

Well, she and not Emmeline had married George, and she never thought of Harry Howland if she could avoid it.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Several months ago the members of the Enright Chapter of the Sun - Telegraph - Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club said goodbye to Frank Roberts the manager who had been transferred to New Kensington. Tomorrow they'll see his famous smile and hear his cheery "hello" as they enter the Enright, because Frank, as he is known to all the members, has returned as manager of the Enright.

Manager Roberts speaking about his return said:

"When they told me some months ago that I was to be transferred to New Kensington, I wished in my heart that I could take all the members of the Enright Komic Club with me, because I had learned to love all the youngsters and I looked forward to the regular weekly meetings. I really think that I got a bigger kick out of the meetings than the kiddies.

"One of the first things I asked my assistant "Bill" Powellson when I returned was 'Do we still have the Komic Club?' and on being assured that we did, I knew that Saturday would be a blue ribbon day in my life.

"I know also that Bill Zeilor who took my place here was a great favorite with the members and I'm sure that each and everyone of them will be sorry about his leaving."

Odd Facts

Promises fill no sack.

Avoid extremes and shun the fault of such who still are pleased too little or too much.

There may be a lot of credit due a man's wife, but she usually demands cash.

It takes more than a liberal education to make some people give themselves away.

The road to success is open to all, but too many persons want to arrive there without the trouble of going.

Bugs Baer

The Bug Winds Up Campaign

Well, my friends, The Bug has just finished his presidential campiagn swing through the sticks.

His reception was marvellous wherever he had the price of a ticket.

The businessmen who held their last convention in the poorhouse were overjoyed to see him. They cheered for 15 minutes after The Bug left. They knew he was coming back.

We spoke off the rear end of a freight train in Scattered Barns, Dakota. The engineer punctuated our words with the locomotive whistle. That, my countryman, is co-operation of the loudest kind.

Who will ever forget those nimble sentiments The Bug spouted to the farmers at the railroad station in Skipstop, Vermont? We were overwhelmed by the reception. The crowd came down the tracks to meet us. Fortunately The Bug knew how to gallop trestle bridges. No runs, no hits, or postponed game.

And at Bad Paper, Arizona? That was superb. When we told the peepul that prosperity was just around the corner they scrammed out to see if it were true. They must have found it for they didn't come back.

The meeting at Porous Roof, Texas, will live long in The Bug's memory. We gave that town the choice of a postoffice or a harbor. There ain't a postcard or a pair of oars in the burg so the city fathers chose bacon and grits.

The Bug's speech on prohibition was so well rendered at Pikkaloo, Tennessee, that he fell off the platform into the crowd. Everybody went into a huddle and spent the rest of the afternoon breathing on one another. It was the first time a temperance lecturer had brought his samples along. The boys in the town will vote for The Bug to a man. He is the most popular candidate who ever stumped the state. It only required five minutes to raise his bail.

And so it went. One triumph after another. The Bug will now rest until Tuesday so he will be in shape to stand up in a rowboat and accept the high and dizzy office of outside man for the interior decorators. Once again, he thanks all the loyal citizens who have chosen him to lead the migration of the birds to the Far North.

Fifty and Fit

Why go along with "fairly good health" when you might be enjoying vigor you haven't felt for years?

There's a simple little thing anyone can do to keep the vital organs stimulated, and feel fit all the time. People don't realize how sluggish they've grown until they've tried it. The stimulant that will stir your system to new life is Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. It will make a most amazing difference in many ways.

This famous doctor's prescription is a delicious syrup made with fresh herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. It starts its good work with the first spoonful. That's all you need to drive away the dullness and headache of a bilious spell, and rid the system of that slow poison that saps your strength. It's better than a tonic for tired bowels, and unlike habit-forming laxatives you can take it freely or give it to any child. And it isn't expensive.

Get some syrup pepsin today, and take a little tonight. Don't wait until you're sick to give your system this wonderful help. You can avoid those spells of biliousness or constipation. A spoonful every now and then is better than constant worry about the condition of your bowels, or fear of auto-intoxication as you grow older. Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin protects the system. All druggists keep this preparation.

HE'S A CARD.

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

Mayor Carlton was standing in the State Bank Friday morning. There was a sack of gold and a sack of silver lying inside one of the windows. The mayor reached over, took the sack of gold, put it into his pocket and sauntered out. He remained about a half an hour. Then he went in and asked the folks at the bank if they had missed anything. They said they had. He then handed them the bag of yellow gold.

The Low Garbage Bid

It Is to Be Hoped the City Can Take Advantage of the Offer and Save Money.

Miele, of Maplewood, N. J., has offered to collect garbage in Pittsburgh next year for $5.95 a ton, which is 63 cents a ton less than the bid of the American Reduction Company, the present holder of the contract.

A year ago a somewhat similar situation arose. A new concern underbid the American Reduction Company. The Department of Health would not permit the low bidder to have the contract, however, on the ground that it did not have the facilities and did not have enough time to prepare them for handling the garbage beginning with the first of the new year.

It is to be hoped the same objection cannot be raised against Miele, for the saving that he offers would be a boon to the taxpayers.

That a New Jersey concern should be willing to undertake the business on a one-year contract suggests that even at the low rate the profit must be attractive.

Doubtless with a contract extending over a longer period an even better rate could be obtained, and more bidders attracted.

Risk in State Barriers

Other Commonwealths, Barred from Doing Business, May Injure Our Business in Retaliation.

The warfare that is being waged between Pennsylvania and neighboring states over the question of honoring each other's motor truck licenses recalls the controversies in the pre-constitutional era, when the states behaved towards one another as if they were separate and independent nations. Virginia once claimed possession of Pittsburgh and sent troops here to enforce the claim.

There is danger in trade barriers set up by the states to protect the business of their own citizens from competition from other states.

The Pennsylvania Committee on Penal Affairs of the Public Charities Association calls attention to a local situation of this sort in an administrative study of the Allegheny County Workhouse.

Goods manufactured by the workhouse prisoners are sold through an agency in New York. The workhouse sold $64,810 worth of brooms, $9,404 worth of carpets, $38,064 worth of chairs and $9,324 worth of upholstery products in 1930—a total of $121,602.

Now the Legislature last year passed a law forbidding the sale of prison products from other states in Pennsylvania. Suppose the other states retaliate, as the Penal Affairs Committee fears they may, and as they have done in the motor truck license affair. The workhouse will have to find a new market for its products.

People who live in glass houses should not throw stones.

What Has Kline to Say?

If Vice Is as Prevalent as Judge Patterson Believes, the Police Are Winking at It.

Judge Frank P. Patterson said in an address in the Sixth Presbyterian Church that he had been led to believe, by complaints that had come to him, that there are 245 speakeasies in the East End, at least 150 immoral resorts along the Allegheny River on the North Side, and that professional gamblers of various sorts ply their trade unchecked.

Testimony from other sources corroborates the estimate as not exaggerated.

The Aged Need Watching

October Auto Fatalities Indicate That Adults Are More Careless Than Children.

On entering certain Western Pennsylvania towns the motorist is confronted with a sign bidding him "watch out for the kiddies."

Automobile fatalities in Pittsburgh last month indicate that it is the aged, rather than children, for whom drivers should "watch out."

Fifteen persons were killed by autos in the city in October. There were no children—that is, persons under 15 years of age—in the number. Thirteen of the 15 were pedestrians, and eight of the pedestrians were over 65 years of age.

It is significant that 80,000 Pittsburgh school children were writing essays in October for submission to the Better Traffic Committee's contest, and thus were made especially conscious of traffic hazards.

Safety education pays.

The Allegheny Route

War Department Opposition to Original Canal Plan Makes It Worth While to Study Alternate Proposal.

The Kiwanis Club yesterday heard Leon Gavin, secretary of the Oil City Chamber of Commerce, present the claims for the Allegheny River route for a canal to connect Pittsburgh with Lake Erie.

The Rotary Club recently heard Mr. Gavin on the same subject.

Pittsburgh has been committed for half a century to the Beaver-Mahoning River route for the canal. But the War Department persists in its opinion that the canal along such a route would be "economically inadvisable."

In the circumstances the merits of the Allegheny River route, which its advocates assert would be much less expensive, are entitled to serious consideration.

Marry-Go-Round

Thoughts in Tinsel

The "pre-war woman" looked forward to marriage as she did to Christmas, and to a husband as a life-Santa Claus. But, those were the happy days before "woman's freedom!" Now, a girl knows that she will probably have to crawl down her own little chimney and be her own little Santa—and possibly kiss herself under the mistletoe.

* * *

A clever woman can marry a store dummy and manage to make him over into something which other women think worth trying to steal from her; while a foolish woman can draw a matrimonial prize and mess him up, so that he looks like an affliction.

A woman will let a book-of-the-month club select what she puts inside her head, but what goes on the OUTSIDE of her head is important; and no Hat-of-the-Month club would survive for a day.

Some moderns try to beat the train to the crossing; some try to prove that the gun isn't loaded; and some just marry on a dare, after a whoopee party.

Many a man prides himself on having the strength to resist temptation, when the truth is that the temptation—or the woman—was too weak to hold him.

It will take at least three or four years of hard times and hard work to bring flaming youth down to a simmer.

In the good you will receive,
In the joy in store for you,
In the dream that's coming true!

Hold fast. Hold fast

Ere the heart be satisfied.

Things of gladness and repose
While life flowers like the rose.

Take heart. Take heart;
Know sorrow must depart,
And for each joy life takes
Another joy awakes!

Believe. Believe,
So that you may receive
From life's unfolding flower
New truth, new peace each hour!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Thoughts while strolling: What's become of gumdrop fish on a rubber string? J. P. McEvoy's Boul' Mich wide hat and flowing tie. Peggy Fears' cyclonic saffron-streaked coiffure. And Johnny Gruelle, who draws Yap Center cartoons with signs ballyhooing friends. Arthur Levy's omniscient carnation.

One-word description of Elizabeth Cobb Brody—chipper. Mayor McKee not only caught the ball, but made a touchdown. Yet what good did it do in this Tammany-throttled town? Sam Shipman's a shrunken Edward G. Robinson. I mix Willa Cather and Edith Wharton. On Broadway, graft is "smart money!"

Simile: "As studied as the posing of an Algonquin log-roller." Whom have they knocked off recently, by the way? Doesn't Mulrooney know Central Park is dangerously unsafe for lone women? Stark Young, a Como (Miss.) boy who made good in the city. Deems Taylor's tall forehead. Something in it, too.

That suave ex-prince who takes orders for monogrammed cigarets from penthouse to penthouse. An interesting yarn the Londoner told at breakfast. He says Kipling has not paid for groceries and meats for years. He gives tradesmen five-pound personal notes.

They, in turn, sell them to autograph hunters. What a break I'd get trying that! One of mine sold at an Iowa fair for eight cents. I can never think of anybody famous from Maine. Except, of course, Rudy what's-his-name. Lee Shubert now goes everywhere with S. Jay Kaufman's brother, Harry.

What a superbly grand actress Frieda Inescourt is! No more dinner parties. They always park me next to those hefty matrons in black velvet, who get tight. A stock salesman phoned this morning, the optimist, about shares for a new type of collar as washable and durable as celluloid. He would stress that. The only stock I have worth a marble and a skipping rope is in a linen collar plant.

Following Europe, one notices a sharp decline in sauntering. From the Bronx to the Battery one cannot flush out a mere stroller of the streets. Always the maddening gallop—eyes straight ahead. For the hurrying Manhattan there is no around-the-corner lure. I breakfasted with a successful New Yorker the other day who never noticed that directly opposite his bedroom was a frame house with a side-yard cistern—doubtlessly unused but still there. A cistern in New York! What a theme for a sugared sonneteer!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Faith—how we've needed it, you and I.

Faith to trust that things would come out right . . . faith to be sure we had a right to happiness and health . . . faith to believe that somewhere there was Someone who would understand, Someone who would help us through the bitter hours—

Faith like steel in our flabby bones, like fire in our lagging blood—how we've longed for faith like that, you and I. How we've envied those who seemed to have it. For they have been able to accomplish miracles by faith, those confident ones who knew no fear.

"By faith ye shall move mountains"—it has been said. And we have seen them moving mountains—mountains of sickness and misfortune. But we—

We never had such perfect faith, did we? Even in our bravest and most hopeful moments, doubt has come—and everything has gone wrong. But how could it be otherwise? How could we possibly have perfect faith, remembering the failures of the past, dreading the agony to come? Yet, if a man can't have faith—can't rid himself of fear—is there any hope for him?

Often and often you've asked that question, haven't you? Asked it at terrible moments, when everything seemed to depend on that perfect faith you could not summon. Asked it with tears of despair—and tears of anger, too, for God seemed to be demanding more than you had the power to deliver.

I know. Many a time I've asked that question myself. And then I'd remember a certain old story—and have been comforted. Perhaps that story will comfort you, too.

It is the story of another one who needed faith desperately—yet could not shake off fear. A father—with a son he adored. But with that love there had come terrible pain for, from birth, there had been a sickness in the child which, at times, rent him like a fiend.

Have you had to watch, helpless, the agony of someone you loved? Then you will know the hell through which that poor father and mother walked. But one day there came hope. There was—so the neighbors said—a young man called Jesus who could perform miracles. Perhaps if the child were taken to Him—

Dared they hope? They could try, once more, to hope. Could, at least, act as if they hoped. So the father went—with the child glibbering at his side. And they faced each other—the young man with that strange peace and power in his eyes, and the older man so bitterly distraught. And with all his grieving soul the father cried—

"Master, can you help?"

And Jesus said—"IF THOU CANST BELIEVE, ALL THINGS ARE POSSIBLE TO HIM THAT BELIEVETH."

If he could believe! What an agonizing demand—what a cruel test! For what would he not have given to believe? To die—that would have been easy. Always he would have been willing to die—willing to suffer any torture—if thereby his child could have been saved. But to believe—? Where, in his broken heart and bewildered brain could he find the courage and confidence that made for perfect faith? How could the Christ ask such an impossibility?

Yet suddenly, amazingly, the power came upon him! For one flaming instant he believed! For one flaming instant he was filled with such faith that every black memory vanished, every fear was crowded out and he cried—

"LORD, I BELIEVE . . ."

Yet, even as he shouted, doubt swept over him—and the cry of triumph ended in a wail—

"LORD, I BELIEVE . . . HELP THOU MINE UNBELIEF!"

His voice broke. Once more he was defeated. The chance had come and he had given all he had . . . but it was not enough. An instant of faith—then the old fear again. He had failed. Sobbing, he turned away—

AND THERE, BESIDE HIM, STOOD HIS CHILD—HEALED AND WHOLE!

Even though imperfect, his faith had worked a miracle. He had given what he could—and God had done the rest.

Faith—how we need it, you and I!

Yet how can we believe—believe perfectly, remembering the failures of the past, dreading the agonies to come?

We can't! But we can cry—

"LORD, I BELIEVE: HELP THOU MINE UNBELIEF!"

And if, in that cry, we offer all we have, perhaps the One who made us will, somehow, understand—and do the rest.

A Cabinet of All the Deficiencies

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

We are now in the last week of the campaign with every indication of an overwhelming Roosevelt landslide. Nothing in conditions has changed since the opening gun was fired. There are still 11,000,000 people on the streets; there are still 40,000,000 people in distress, and as soon as the polls have closed we must all do what we can to prevent the starvation of women and children in this third Hoover Winter of Human Misery.

Business still is prostrate. Agriculture is sinking deeper into the slough of ruin. Our foreign markets still are lost, and the ineptitude of the administration has been more than ever manifest on the stump.

The trend toward Roosevelt has gained constantly in momentum, and the desperate attempts of demagogues to intimidate the weak-minded among businessmen and to blackjack the workers have failed utterly. It is inconceivable that anything can or will occur in the interval before the election to change the situation one iota.

All This Has Failed

Mr. Hoover at the beginning, surrounded by sycophants, as men in power always are, and by the meaningless applause of the Knights of the Rapidan, assumed that he could remain comfortable in the fishing camp and merely wait with folded hands for the people to vote for "four years more of Hoover." He has been shaken out of his lethargy by the reports his own people have brought him.

He and his crowd have imagined that they could turn the tide by methods antiquated and discredited. Big business men—some of them largely responsible for the mess in which we find ourselves—would give out pompous statements about the return of prosperity. Some big industrialists, like Henry Ford, would blackjack their employes into voting as they said, as though they were Chinese coolies. The Democrats, whose Federal Reserve System has saved all that has been saved of the financial structure of the nation, would be described as "radicals." And Mr. Hoover and his Cabinet would take liberties with the record in setting forth things with which the people are too familiar to be deceived.

All this has failed.

Mr. Hoover Has Had No Proper Advisers

The campaign has done one thing effectively—it has rather shocked the people with a realization of the type of mentalities that have been in charge of our destinies. Somehow Mr. Hoover's Cabinet of All the Deficiencies has mercifully escaped the analysis of the public until these gentlemen took the stump. If anything now can be said in extenuation for Mr. Hoover it is that he has no proper advisers. The character of the campaign speeches of the cabinet members explains much. Most of them have been petty, purely personal, wholly irresponsible.

Mr. Mills, with considerable arrogance and a domineering manner and a loud voice, has been the only one whose support on the stump has meant anything at all. He has juggled figures that Jack Garner has devastatingly exposed; but everyone with the knowledge that one of the principal reasons for the delay in the balancing of the budget was the inability of Mr. Mills to come within hundreds of millions of dollars of the deficit is more than a bit dubious about his figures anyway.

From the beginning of the government no Secretary of the Treasury has been so undependable in his estimates as Mr. Mills and his predecessor who is campaigning for Mr. Hoover in England—by mistake. These two gentlemen have the rare distinction of having been off in their estimates by almost a billion dollars.

Secretary Stimson Made One Denial

Secretary Stimson has been utterly worthless on the stump. His part in the floating of foreign loans on which the investors hold the bag has been painfully apparent. He made one denial; but when Carter Glass and Robinson pulled the record on him he sank into a becoming silence. His mussy mixing with the Manchurian issue almost forced us into war. His relations with the international bankers and foreign statesmen seeking to transfer the foreign debts to American taxpayers are too well known.

Secretary Hurley—Hurley of the bayonets and tanks—has been a liability ever since he summoned the tanks and gas squad and the torches to attack penniless and unarmed veterans and to burn their miserable shacks.

Secretary Wilbur has been a liability ever since he told the convention of welfare workers in Philadelphia that the suffering and privation of the children of the jobless would be "good for their character."

Secretary Hyde, spewing personalities mostly, ought, because of his position, to be of service on the stump in agricultural sections. But his utter worthlessness to the farmers, and his unpopularity among them, has made him a liability, too.

Secretary of Labor Doak, forced on labor over its vehement protest, cannot be sent into labor communities because of his notorious sympathy with labor's exploiters. When he lobbied against the Wagner bill he put the stamp upon himself.

Attorney General Mitchell lost his value in this campaign when he said he would have no District Attorney who did not personally believe in the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act—and thereafter appointed Mr. Medalie the senatorial nominee in New York, in that position.

A Cabinet of The Minnows

On the whole, it has been a Cabinet of Minnows, but it required a few campaign speeches to awaken the public to the fact. These are the advisers of the President in the most critical period in American history. And they were the personal choice of the President.

One has but to look at the personnel of the administration to understand why the nation has been so poorly served.

The Forgotten Man

By EDWIN MARKHAM

Dedicated to Franklin D. Roosevelt, after hearing his lofty and noble appeal for the Forgotten Man.
—Edwin Markham.

Not on our golden fortunes builded high—
Not on our boasts that soar into the sky—
Not upon these is resting in this hour
The fate of the future; but upon the power
Of him who is forgotten—yes, on him
Rest all our hopes reaching from rim to rim.
In him we see all of earth's toiling bands,
With crooked backs, scarred faces, shattered hands,

He seeks no office and he asks no praise
He is the one supporting the huge weight:
He is the one guarding the country's gate.
He bears the burdens on these earthly ways:
We pile the debts, he is the one who pays.
He is the one who holds the solid power
To steady nations in their trembling hour.
Behold him as he silently goes by,
For it is at his word that nations die.

Shattered with loss and lack,
He is the man who holds upon his back
The continent and all its mighty loads—
This toiler who makes possible the roads
On which the gilded thousands travel free—
Makes possible our feasts, our roaring boards,
Our pomps, our easy days, our golden hoards.
He gives stability to nations: he
His strength makes possible our college walls—
Makes possible our legislative halls—
Makes possible our churches soaring high
With spires, the fingers pointing to the sky.

Shall then this man go hungry, here in lands
Do something for him: let him never be Forgotten: let him have his daily bread:
He who has fed us, let him now be fed.
Let us remember all his tragic lot—,
Remember, or else be ourselves forgot!

All honor to the one that in this hour
Cries to the world as from a lighted tower—
Cries for the Man Forgotten. Honor the one
Who asks for him a glad place in the sun.
He is a voice for the voiceless. Now, indeed,
We have a tongue that cries the mortal need.
